GERMANY PLANS TO SUBMIT PEACE FEELERS

Britain and France Near Complete Diplomatic Break

Entente Breaking Up as England Prepares To Go On with the War Alone

Charge d'Affairs Cambon Resigns after Protesting British Attack on the French Fleet

By The Associated Press

Britain and France last (Friday) night were going through the melancholy formalities of erasing the last vestiges of the entente which was to have won the war and become a basis for a new, peacetime Europe.

Britain, alone against the axis, literally cleared her shores for her own battle.

While German warplanes early today (Saturday) continued their regular forays against England, a neutral diplomatic source in London predicted that new German peace "feelers" would be extended within three or four weeks.

He said, however, that most neutral diplomats and observers had been convinced in advance of the failure of any such overtures in view of the "new British aggressiveness" in regard to the French fleet.

Complete Break Indicated

Presumably in prelude to a complete diplomatic break, already reported ordered by the French Petain government, the charge d'affaires in London, Roger Cambon, presented to the foreign office a stern and bitter protest against the smashing of the French Mediterranean fleet by British naval guns.

Then Cambon resigned, presumably in protest to his government's protest. His superior, Ambassador Charles Corbin, sent his own resignation to Petain last week.

British sailors in Alexandria stood by ready to fire on French ships, if necessary ,to prevent their escape from that British base in Egypt.

The British pledged themselves to see that "no French ship shall ever leave Alexandria to surrender to the enemy."

The French remained aboard their ships apparently undecided as to the next move. One French battleship, four cruisers and a number of small craft are at Alexandria.

French Sailors Perplexed

The perplexed French sailors were said to be "deeply affected by the fate of their fellows who felt the British blows Wednesday off Algeria when they tried to escape to the sea.

Three British cruisers were reported to have landed at Gibraltar thirty bodies of British sailors killed in the battle.

Britain's big stronghold at Gibraltar was raided by bombers yesterday for the first time since the war began but almost all of their bombs fell into the sea. A Madrid radio broadcast heard in London said it had been "established" that the raiding planes were French. British sources would not comment.

(Across the bay from Gibraltar, at Algeciras, Spain, it was reported that three British cruisers, damaged off Oran in Wednesday's British attack on the French Mediterranean fleet, had landed the bodies of thirty British seamen killed in the action.

(It also was reported in Algeciras that a French armed vessel escaped from Gibraltar today despite the presence there of the most powerful of all warships, the mighty British battle cruiser Hood.)

Willkie Manager May Be Named in New York Today

Entire Campaign Setup Nearly Ready, Candidate Says

By SCOTT HERSHEY

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—The question of who will manage Wendell L. Willkie's presidential campaign was still unanswered tonight after the nominee and a special twelve-member sub-committee of the Republican national committee concluded an all-afternoon session.

Willkie said that any mention of names in connection with the post was "pure speculation."

At the same time he stimulated the speculation with his announcement that he would have as a dinner guest Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, House minority leader and permanent chairman of last week's Philadelphia convention.

Martin's name frequently has been mentioned in connection with the campaign manager's job as has that of Samuel W. Pryor, Jr., Connecticut National Committeeman and others.

Select 12 of Committee

Willkie twice emerged from today's closed meeting to talk with newsmen. He disclosed that the campaign organization was gradually taking form and that twelve members of the fifteen-member executive committee had been agreed upon, although their names were not announced.

Willkie and the sub-committee will resume their session tomorrow

British Defense Area Extended To Cover the Coast

Public Excluded from Section 12,000 Miles Square

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 5—In a vast extension of Britain's "defense area"—her last ramparts against German invasion—the government excluded the public today from the entire English east coast and substantially all of the southern coast, a 12,000-square-mile region.

While the creation of this big no-man's land signaled the intensity of preparations for the supreme test, British men-of-war searched the seas for the last fugitive units of the French fleet—and a final bitter dissolution of the old allied partnership appeared under way because of what already has been done by the British to the bulk of that fleet.

In an apparent preliminary to a formal break-off of all diplomatic relations between Britain and France, the French charge d' affairs here presented, on orders, a "draconic and stern" protest against the British action afainst the French British action against the French

End Of Old French Navy

This action destroyed or put out of action a 22,000-ton battleship, a 26,000-ton battle cruiser, a 10,000-ton seaplane carrier and two destroyers. Along with seizure of other ships at Alexandria and in British ports, it made an end to the old French navy as an effective force and destroyed the plan of France to turn it over to Hitler as France had promised to do.

Just how many French warships remained at large was not discussed officially, but an authoritative source said that at the beginning of this week, this was the approximate disposition of the French fleet:

One-third in British ports.

One-third off Oran, in the Mediterranean, the scene of the British attack.

One-sixth at Casablanca.

One-sixth at Alexandria.

Aside from stating also that two units of the French navy now are in Scottish waters, all this—in view of what had happened since the firt of the week—suggested that the French ships not now in British hands or out of action were very few.

Solid Defense Line

The other lengthening and deepening the defense area will, in supplement with the previously declared defense area, make a solid line, twenty miles deep, given over entirely to military operations from Berwick-on-Tweed, in Scotland, clear down the east coast and round to Dorset on the south coast.

In addition, the home office took two other home defense steps:

All civilian former Austrians, Germans and Italians—men and women who became British subjects after Dec. 31, 1932,—to report to the police Sunday and Monday.

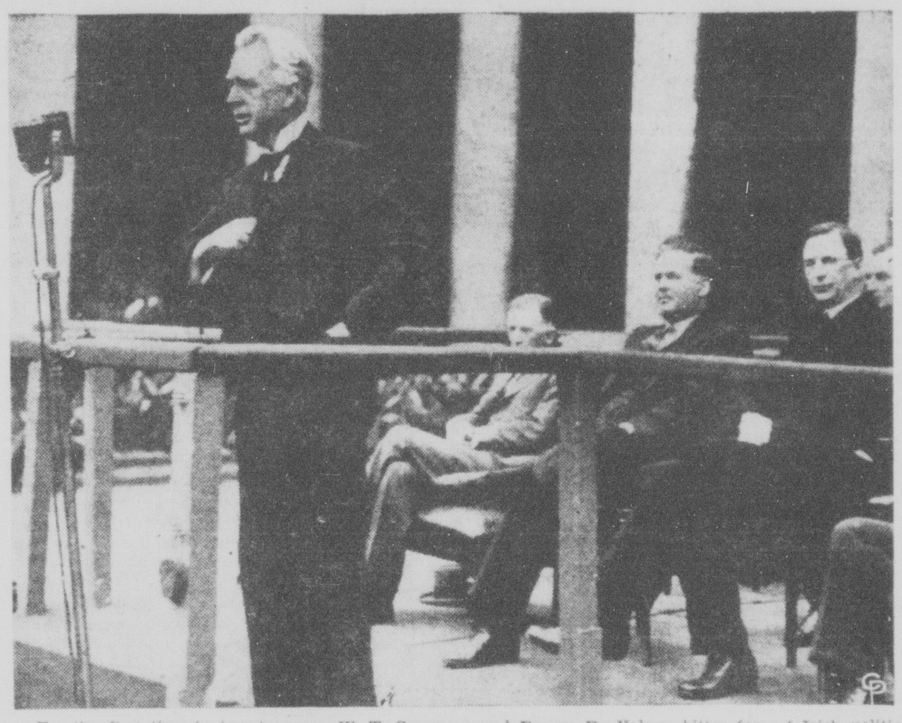

All aliens possessing maps of a scale exceeding twelve miles to one inch, and guide books, to surrender them to the police.

The French protest against the British fleet action had one unusual aftermath—the reported resignation of the charge who delivered it, Roger Camron. The French ambassador, Charles Corbin, resigned last week.

(Both Camron and Corbin, long have been in London and have close British attachments. Their resignations indicate they do not desire to

Roosevelt Sees Early Scrapping Of War Machines

Must Be Destroyed If Lasting Peace Is To Be Secured, He Says

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt suggested today that world powers, now pouring billions into war machines, must dump their armaments onto the scrap heap if a lasting peace is to be secured, and contrasted the American way of government with that of the totalitarian powers.

The first essential for a permanent peace listed by Mr. Roosevelt was freedom from fear, for, he said, people must not live in fear of being bombed from the air or attacked by another nation.

He conceded that what he termed a corporate state, like Germany or Italy or Russia, could operate more efficiently than a democracy, and added that he was sorry to say some Americans seem to favor such a state because of this.

Mr. Roosevelt started this discussion himself in a press conference and said he wanted to remind those who apparently favored such a government that the system has scrapped two safeguards to democracy—the legislature and the judiciary.

Favors Disarmament

On the subject of fear, the president said the United States has held that freedom from such terror must be based on the removal of the weapons that cause it, and that means disarmament.

Mr. Roosevelt, of course, was looking into the future in talking of disarmament at a time when his defense lieutenants in Washington were whipping into shape another $5,000,000,000 arms program for submission to Congress next week.

His words gave weight, however, to a possibility that America might build up the mightiest sea and air armadas in history, only to sacrifice a portion of them if the rest of the world could be persuaded to join in disarmament in another effort to attain a real peace.

The chief executive made it clear that he believed disarmament alone ROOSEVELT SEES (B) G09' ..... offered no formula for permanent peace, any more than it did in the 1920's.

As corollary essentials to peace, when the time comes to propose it, he named:

Declares Again That United States Will Uphold Monroe Doctrine; May Oust Germans

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Confronted with a challenging note from Germany calling the United States government's interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine "untenable," the state's department today served notice anew that it would uphold the doctrine and, in addition, virtually threatened to oust any German diplomats in this country who publicly discussed American policy.

Chances of Ending War At Early Date Appear Negligible in London

Neutral Diplomats Are Convinced That England Will Be Cold to All Proposals and That Air and Naval Warfare Will Be Greatly Accelerated; Chamberlain Group Believed Active

LONDON, July 6 (Saturday) (AP) — A neutral diplomatic source who has good contacts with both principal belligerents predicted early today that new German peace feelers will be made within three or four weeks.

However, he said most neutral diplomats were convinced by "the new British aggressiveness" that any such move would be a failure.

He explained that a trial balloon which had been sent aloft by a member of the Spanish cabinet had been exploded by the British seizure of most of the French fleet and by Prime Minister Churchill's fighting talk in commons yesterday.

Speed Up Diplomatic War

Nevertheless, he predicted acceleration of warfare on the diploatic front as well as in the sea and air—to be followed by peace hints when the British are feeling the strain most.

There still are many, he said, who believe that "peace and appeasement possibilities" never will be definitely ruled out so long as the faction of former Prime Minister Chamberlain is as strong in the government as at present.

Evidence that the British are strengthening the diplomatic offensive was seen in Prime Minister Churchill's reception last night of Ivan Maisky, the Russian ambassador—Churchill's first invitation to the Soviet envoy since taking office. It was understood they talked over the European situation in friendly fashion.

Britain Wooing Russia

Britain, while wooing the Russians, also was said by the neutral source to be expected to grant further concessions to the Japanese, thus strengthening her hand in Europe in the "one war at a time" policy.

Such concessions, he speculated, likely would be limited only by the British wish to avoid injuring friendly feelings in the United States.

Britain is well aware, he said, that the United States would regard with a chilly eye, due to America's interest there, British "diplomatic capitulation" to the Japanese.

British Holding French Warships At Alexandria

Will Not Permit any of Them To Leave Port in Egypt

By The Associated Press

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 5.—The British pledged themselves tonight to see that "no French ship shall ever leave Alexandria to surrender to the enemy."

With one French battleship, four cruisers and, a number of smaller craft swinging at anchor in melancholy bondage off this British naval base, the situation wwas tense.

British naval authorities acknowledged they did not know what the French warship commanders would decide to do; they said the French were "deeply affected" by the fate of the French warships and men which were sunk or pounded to wreckage by the British Wednesday off Algeria when they tried to escape to sea.

Situation "Well in Hand"

But, the British added, the situation is "well in hand."

The French commanders have been advised formally by the British they cannot leave the harbor "to fall into the power of the German conquerors of France."

They have been told they will receive pay equal to British officers and seamen if they will continue the war.

They have been given the same alternatives as those handed to the French naval men at Oran and Mers El-Kebir:

Fight with the British, turn their ships over to the British, or: sail to a French West Indies port for

Guilty Motorists Must Take Exams., Elgin Announces

Those Convicted Will Be Given New Tests Commissioner Says

BALTIMORE, July 5, (AP)—Motorists convicted of certain motor vehicle law violations which result in "reportable" accidents will be given re-examinations for a thirty-day period, beginning July 10, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin announced today.

"There seems to be no doubt," Elgin asserted, "that the public stages a jamboree of carelessness in July and changes a holiday month into a month of horror.

"As commissioner of motor vehicles it is part of my duty to safeguard the lives of our citizens and put forth every effort to reduce automobile accidents.

"With this thought in mind, we feel that it would be well to arrange for a re-examination of persons convicted on charges of reckless driving, speeding or passing stop sign or automatic signal, in every instance where such violation results in a reportable motor vehicle accident.

"For thirty days, effective July 10, persons involved in such accidents will be summoned to appear either at the Baltimore office of the commissioner of motor vehicles, or at one of the county seats where operating license examinations are held."

Elgin said statistics prove that motorists' defective vision increased the number of accidents. He added that too many cars were being operated by persons who needed glasses or whose glasses needed adjusting.

"The re-examination of these motor vehicle drivers," the commissioner said, "does not mean that all persons summoned to appear will be given a driving test; this

War and Navy Departments To Give Views on Compulsory Training

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The war and navy departments agreed today to give the Senate Military Committee next Tuesday their official views on compulsory military training.

The committee had voted to suspend hearings until the war department was ready to present its views. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) pointed out that department experts had been working on compulsory training plans since World War days and said it would be best to get their view before enacting any legislation.

The committee has been holding hearings on a training bill sponsored by Senator Burke (D-Neb) and Rep Wadsworth (R-NY).

During today's hearings Senator Minton, (D-Ind) asserted that Adolf Hitler was attempting to prevent compulsory military training in the United States.

Minton made the assertion while Julius Ochs Adler, general manager of the New York Times, was testifying in support of the pending legislation, which would require registration and possible military training for all men from eighteen to sixty-five.

Sees Hitler Propaganda

"There is subtle propaganda going around," Minton declared, "that there should not be compulsory military training. It is part of the program of Mr. Hitler in his subtle way to weaken us at a vital point.

"If we are not willing to go ahead and meet our obligations as citizens, then we deserve what we'll get. I've got two boys and I would be ashamed of them if they turned their backs on their country's flag."

Minton's comment followed an assertion by Senator Downey (D-Calif) that he knew "no better way to create saboteurs and disloyal

Immigration Laws Bar Children From Entering U. S. from Europe

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Present immigration laws would pevent thousands of poorer refugee European children from landing in United States ports, a representative of the British children's overseas reception board said today.

More fortunate, said J. Roland Robinson, member of Parliament and board representative, would be those children whose parents can afford to pay their youngsters' trans-Atlantic steamer fares.

Immigration regulations now forbid the landing in U. S. ports of persons whose passage has been paid by a foreign government, and Robinson explained that those refugee children whose passage was paid by the British government would be first taken to Canada, there to await entrance under the quota of 6,500 a month into the United States.

Immigration authorities said they believed many of the children would be permitted to enter as non-quota temporary visitors, providing American sponsors proved their financial responsibility to maintain the children and showed that they would not become public charges.

Robinson estimated that of the 50,000 refugee children he expects to come to the United States by fall, seventy-five per cent would be from working class families.

Every ship scheduled to leave England between now and the end of August, he said, has been requisitioned to transport child refugees from Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The first ship, he added, is scheduled to sail from England with 2,000 children, "sometime next week."

More than 15,000 requests already have come for temporary adoption of the youngsters, he disclosed.

Chances of Ending War At Early Date Appear Negligible in London

Neutral Diplomats Are Convinced That England Will Be Cold to All Proposals and That Air and Naval Warfare Will Be Greatly Accelerated; Chamberlain Group Believed Active

LONDON, July 6 (Saturday) (AP) — A neutral diplomatic source who has good contacts with both principal belligerents predicted early today that new German peace feelers will be made within three or four weeks.

However, he said most neutral diplomats were convinced by "the new British aggressiveness" that any such move would be a failure.

He explained that a trial balloon which had been sent aloft by a member of the Spanish cabinet had been exploded by the British seizure of most of the French fleet and by Prime Minister Churchill's fighting talk in commons yesterday.

Speed Up Diplomatic War

Nevertheless, he predicted acceleration of warfare on the diploatic front as well as in the sea and air—to be followed by peace hints when the British are feeling the strain most.

There still are many, he said, who believe that "peace and appeasement possibilities" never will be definitely ruled out so long as the faction of former Prime Minister Chamberlain is as strong in the government as at present.

Evidence that the British are strengthening the diplomatic offensive was seen in Prime Minister Churchill's reception last night of Ivan Maisky, the Russian ambassador—Churchill's first invitation to the Soviet envoy since taking office. It was understood they talked over the European situation in friendly fashion.

Britain Wooing Russia

Britain, while wooing the Russians, also was said by the neutral source to be expected to grant further concessions to the Japanese, thus strengthening her hand in Europe in the "one war at a time" policy.

Such concessions, he speculated, likely would be limited only by the British wish to avoid injuring friendly feelings in the United States.

Britain is well aware, he said, that the United States would regard with a chilly eye, due to America's interest there, British "diplomatic capitulation" to the Japanese.

British Holding French Warships At Alexandria

Will Not Permit any of Them To Leave Port in Egypt

By The Associated Press

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 5.—The British pledged themselves tonight to see that "no French ship shall ever leave Alexandria to surrender to the enemy."

With one French battleship, four cruisers and a number of smaller craft swinging at anchor in melancholy bondage off this British naval base, the situation wwas tense.

British naval authorities acknowledged they did not know what the French warship commanders would decide to do; they said the French were "deeply affected" by the fate of the French warships and men which were sunk or pounded to wreckage by the British Wednesday off Algeria when they tried to escape to sea.

Situation "Well in Hand"

But, the British added, the situation is "well in hand."

The French commanders have been advised formally by the British they cannot leave the harbor "to fall into the power of the German conquerors of France."

They have been told they will receive pay equal to British officers and seamen if they will continue the war.

They have been given the same alternatives as those handed to the French naval men at Oran and Mers El-Kebir:

Fight with the British, turn their ships over to the British, or: sail to a French West Indies port for

Guilty Motorists Must Take Exams., Elgin Announces

Those Convicted Will Be Given New Tests Commissioner Says

BALTIMORE, July 5. (AP)—Motorists convicted of certain motor vehicle law violations which result in "reportable" accidents will be given re-examinations for a thirty-day period, beginning July 10, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin announced today.

"There seems to be no doubt," Elgin asserted, "that the public stages a jamboree of carelessness in July and changes a holiday month into a month of horror.

"As commissioner of motor vehicles it is part of my duty to safeguard the lives of our citizens and put forth every effort to reduce automobile accidents.

"With this thought in mind, we feel that it would be well to arrange for a re-examination of persons convicted on charges of reckless driving, speeding or passing stop sign or automatic signal, in every instance where such violation results in a reportable motor vehicle accident.

"For thirty days, effective July 10, persons involved in such accidents will be summoned to appear either at the Baltimore office of the commissioner of motor vehicles, or at one of the county seats where operating license examinations are held."

Elgin said statistics prove that motorists' defective vision increased the number of accidents. He added that too many cars were being operated by persons who needed glasses or whose glasses needed adjusting.

"The re-examination of these motor vehicle drivers," the commissioner said, "does not mean that all persons summoned to appear will be given a driving test; this

War and Navy Departments To Give Views on Compulsory Training

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The war and navy departments agreed today to give the Senate Military Committee next Tuesday their official views on compulsory military training.

The committee had voted to suspend hearings until the war department was ready to present its views, Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) pointed out that department experts had been working on compulsory training plans since World War days and said it would be best to get their view before enacting any legislation.

The committee has been holding hearings on a training bill sponsored by Senator Burke (D-Neb) and Rep Wadsworth (R-NY).

During today's hearings Senator Minton, (D-Ind) asserted that Adolf Hitler was attempting to prevent compulsory military training in the United States.

Minton made the assertion while Julius Ochs Adler, general manager of the New York Times, was testifying in support of the pending legislation, which would require registration and possible military training for all men from eighteen to sixty-five.

Sees Hitler Propaganda

"There is subtle propaganda going around," Minton declared, "that there should not be compulsory military training. It is part of the program of Mr. Hitler in his subtle way to weaken us at a vital point.

"If we are not willing to go ahead and meet our obligations as citizens, then we deserve what we'll get. I've got two boys and I would be ashamed of them if they turned their backs on their country's flag."

Minton's comment followed an assertion by Senator Downey (D-Calif) that he knew "no better way to create saboteurs and disloyal

Immigration Laws Bar Children From Entering U. S. from Europe

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Present immigration laws would pevent thousands of poorer refugee European children from landing in United States ports, a representative of the British children's overseas reception board said today.

More fortunate, said J. Roland Robinson, member of Parliament and board representative, would be those children whose parents can afford to pay their youngsters' trans-Atlantic steamer fares.

Immigration regulations now forbid the landing in U. S. ports of persons whose passage has been paid by a foreign government, and Robinson explained that those refugee children whose passage was paid by the British government would be first taken to Canada, there to await entrance under the quota of 6,500 a month into the United States.

Immigration authorities said they believed many of the children would be permitted to enter as non-quota temporary visitors, providing American sponsors proved their financial responsibility to maintain the children and showed that they would not become public charges.

Robinson estimated that of the 50,000 refugee children he expects to come to the United States by fall, seventy-five per cent would be from working class families.

Every ship scheduled to leave England between now and the end of August, he said, has been requisitioned to transport child refugees from Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The first ship, he added, is scheduled to sail from England with 2,000 children, "sometime next week."

More than 15,000 requests already have come for temporary adoption of the youngsters, he disclosed.

235 Third Corps Men Start Drills At Camp Meade

Bankers, Brokers and Others Learning about Army Life

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., July 5 (AP)—Wealth, position and social background climbed into a buck private's uniform today and 235 third corps area business men began finding out what might happen to them if the U. S. went to war.

Bankers, brokers, engineers, lawyers, merchants—even a U. S. senatorial nominee—went from Mufti to Khaki and a place in the ranks as the army opened its first thirty-day special training course for business and professional men.

From youths of twenty-five to grey-haired dignified citizens of 50, representing Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, the 235 meekly paid in $43.50 for the privilege of being bossed around, worked from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.—and studying the national defense program first-hand.

Few Are Trained Men

For some of them, army life was an old story; a few trained at Fort Meade during the World War and many of the others had seen service. One, Francis R. Kenney of Chevy Chase, Md., formerly was a captain of cavalry in the regular army.

Like the rookiest rookies, they lugged suitcases and duffle bags, drew piles of equipment—regular issue uniforms worn by enlisted men—stood physical examinations, piled in and out of trucks, and said "yes, sir" to corporals.

Among the smartest-appearing of the lot was Judge Theodore Rosen, one-armed judge of Philadelphia's court of Common Pleas, a war veteran with an excellent service record. In his platoon was Jay Cooke, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate from Pennsylvania; Graeme Lorimer, editor of the Ladies Home Journal, from Conshohocken, Pa.; and J. Marshall Boone, Baltimore broker and one-time Olympic shot-put champion.

Prosecutor Enrolls

With Judge Rosen was Norris S. Barratt, Jr., assistant district attorney of Philadelphia. Another registrant was Richard Wallach, Jr., Warrenton, Va., racing secretary. Two school principals enrolled, as well as one clergyman, The Rev. John F. Hall of Drexel Hill, Pa.

Organization of the platoons found Judge Rosen a platoon messenger, Boone rated a corporalcy; Lorimer and Cooke wound up in the ranks. The selection was based solely on where the trainees happened to be standing when they "counted off".

Instruction the two companies will receive is essentially the same as that given basic students in the regular CMTC, with modifications made because of the age group.

Aluminum Co. Men Threaten Strike

Demand Higher Wages and May Tieup Big Industry

PITTSBURGH, July 5 (AP)—Union leaders and officials of the Aluminum Company of America remained deadlocked tonight after hours of conferring over demands for a ten cents an hour wage increase which were accompanied by a union threat to tie up a major part of the nation's vital almuinum industry by strike.

Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the federal labor department's conciliation division, who sat in on the conference with an assistant, J. A. Addicks, said as the meeting recessed:

"There is nothing in sight, yet."

The CIO's Aluminum Workers of America has been dickering for a wage boost for several months. The present minimum scale is sixty-three cents an hour.

The aluminum company produces all of the "raw" aluminum, or ingots, made in the United States. Through subsidiaries it manufacturers a major share of the finished products.

A strike in the industry would quickly affect the national defense program, since the company has stated almost forty percent of its production now is for government or airplane orders. Almost ninety percent of the modern airplane is made from aluminum.

Report Increases in Gas Tax Payments

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—The Maryland petrolium industries committee said today Maryland motorists had paid $1,090,740 in state gasoline taxes in May, an increase of $51,500 over May, 1939.

The committee estimated motorists would pay more than $1,000,000 a month under the four-cent per gallon state levy from now until the end of the year.

Maryland motorists paid $272,685 in May to the federal government under the one-cent federal tax, the committee's report said.

Hull Issues

with the German embassy here," said the announcement, "and it has been pointed out that public discussion of questions relating to this country's policies and and attitudes does not properly come within the province of foreign government officials in the United States."

Then the department added pointedly that permission granted to foreign government officials to remain in this country is dependent upon observance of this rule.

The exchange concerning the Monroe Doctrine grew out of the United States' action in informing the Reich on June 18 that it would not "recognize" nor "acquiesce" in any transfer of Western Hemisphere territory from one non-American power to another. This amounted to a notice to Germany not to try to take over French, British or other possessions in the New World.

Germans Make Three Points

The German reply, as given out in substance by Secretary of State Hull today, made these three points:

That Germany has "given on occasion whatever for the assumption" that she intends to acquire territory in this hemisphere and that the American note to Germany was thus "without object."

That the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine implicit in the American note was "untenable" because it would "amount to conferring upon some European countries the right to possess territories in the Western Hemisphere and not to other European countries."

That the Monroe Doctrine's principle that Europe must not intervene in American affairs can be "legally valid only on condition that the American nations for their part do not interfere in the affairs of the European continent."

Not Direct Reply

Hull's counter-argument did not take the form of a direct reply to Germany. He issued a statement saying that "no useful purpose" would be served by "any further communication" to the Reich on the subject at this time.

But his statement went on to reiterate that the United States would not acquiesce in any transfer of New World land from one non-American power to another.

Sharply, Hull declared that the Monroe Doctrine has "not the remotest connection with the fact that certain European nations exercise sovereignty over colonies in the Western Hemisphere and that certain other European nations do not."

The situation existed before the Monroe Doctrine was proclaimed," his statement said. "The doctrine did not undertake to interfere with the existing situation, but did announce that further incursions would not be tolerated."

Moreover, Hull disdainfully rejected the idea that there is any similarity between the Monroe Doctrine and certain policies being put into effect abroad. In language which appeared aimed at Japan as well as Germany, he said:

Not Like European Policies

"It (the American Monroe Doctrine) never has resembled and it does not today resemble, policies which appear to be arising in other geographical areas of the world, which are alleged to be similar to the Monroe Doctrine, but which, instead of resting on the sole policies of national defense and of respect for existing sovereignties, as does the Monroe Doctrine, would in reality seem to be only the pretext for the carrying out of conquest by the sword, of Military occupation, and of complete economic and political domination by certain powers of other free and independent peoples."

Apparently defending the right of the United States to give aid to Britain or other nations, Hull declared the government was pursuing "a policy of non-participation and of non-involvement in the purely political affairs of Europe."

But it will, he said, continue to cooperate with all other nations "whenever the policies of such nations make it possible, and whenever it believes that such efforts are practicable and in its own best interests, for the purpose of promoting economic, commercial, and social rehabilitation, and of advancing the cause of interal law and order, of which the entire world stands so tragically in need today."

people than to conscript mechanics to service your planes."

"It would seem to me," Downey contended, "that the thing we have to do is to search out through every governmental agency for the number of mechanics we want, not just throw out a dragnet and pull in boys who are not married or who have no fathers and mothers.

"I would say, let us get 500,000 of the finest boys we can get for this mechanized war. We can't get the type of men we want at $5 or $21."

Under the bill, men called up for active training would be paid $5 a month in addition to transportation and subsistence. The starting pay of a regular army recruit is $21.

Based on estimates of proponents that it would cost $400 to $600 per man for the contemplated eight months training period, Senator Johnson (D-Colo) calculated that to train 2,000,000 men for an emergency reserve force would cost $1,200,000,000.

Adler said he believed 2,000,000 men should be trained as rapidly as possible, with an equal number called up successively over a period of several years, or as long as the present emergency continues.

Lewis Sanders, reserve officer and New York engineer, disagreed with a contention by Downey that to provide the kind of troops needed for a mechanized army would require a training period of several years. A man could be trained in four months, Sanders said, to "operate any machine that was ever made."

In response to questions by Downey and Senator Reynolds (D-NC), Sanders said he thought an attempted invasion of the United States was "very probable" if Germany won a decisive victory over England.

He said he believed any such attempt would be accompanied by a threat from Japan which would immobilize much of the United States fleet.

"I do not fear an attack from Germany if we are fully equipped to meet it," he added.

The immediate concern of the new cabinet was restoration of more normal conditions after many days of deep unrest.

Rumania Joins Axis

With Rumania generally considered completely Allied now with the Rome-Berlin axis, British citizens were reported liquidating their interests in anticipation of governmental measures against them.

American authorities formally requested the Rumanian government today to grant an extension of stay for three of thirty British Oil men ordered to leave the country within twenty-four hours.

Two large American corporations would be directly affected by expulsion of the three British citizens, the Rumanian government was informed.

Withdrawal Completed

A government communique today said withdrawal from Bessarabia and Bucovina had been completed July 3.

Small Rumanian military losses were acknowledged.

The communique said that in Bucovina "where the Russians inadvertently went past the agreed line, they have fallen back."

In Transylvania, Jewish leaders were reported ready to make a mass migration to Palestine, Africa or anywhere there is room for them.

The press in French territory not occupied by Germany published a bitter communique by the French admiralty which said:

"The French admiralty has the painful feeling that the misfortunes of France left English rulers unmoved, they thinking only of becoming masters of the French fleet, which must remain French or perish.

"The French navy did not, in any case, deserve to be stabbed in the back on the order of (British Prime Minister) Churchill, who last winter implored the French admiralty to lend its principal forces to protect Canadian ships because the British admiralty's forces had no longer the necessary means."

Vote to Break Relations

Dispatches from Vichy, France, reported that the government as early as yesterday had come to a final decision to break off with England because of what was officially described as "unjustifiable aggression" against the French fleet.

German radio broadcasts attributed to the French radio service a statement "destined above all for America" in which the British action against the French fleet was called "an act of aggression without precedent in world history."

During the day, the British reported that enemy airplanes had made three unsuccessful attacks upon Gibraltar, the naval stronghold in the Mediterranean.

They reported also that British planes had been busy, to this effect:

A supply ship attacked and damaged near Stavanger, Norway.

The English coastal defense area—a part of the country which would be handiest to Hitler's reach across the channel or the North Sea—was taken under such complete control that no one may enter or leave the district save on business of national importance.

The east and south coasts of England now present a picture very close to that of a World War battlefront.

There are barbed wire entanglements, trenches, strategic fields, machinegun and heavy artillery emplacements, dfigouts and redoubts. Germany Reports Greater Success Against British

Blockade Being Tightened, Berlin Statement Declares

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—The German high command reported increasing success of its counter-blockade against Great Britain today with submarines doing the deadliest work.

Submarines were credited with 86,000 tons of the total.

Dive bombers and torpedo speedboats accounted for the balance.

While Germany heralded its successes against British shipping an authoritative source charged that in sending the Arandora Star through "a dangerous war route" loaded with German and Italian prisoners bound for Canada the British were guilty of "irresponsibly" breaking "her obligations under international law."

The Arandora Star was sunk by a German submarine with apparently heavy loss of prisoners' lives.

The German source said belligerents were obliged to keep prisoners out of war zones.

It was the second time in twenty-four hours that expressions of indignation were heard from the Berlin-Rome axis over British action termed contrary to international law.

The seizure or destruction of most of the French fleet was labeled "Churchill's cowardly raid." The British prime minister was called "the butcher of Europe" in the Berlin press.

French government action in severing relations with Great Britain was "the only thing that any government with a feeling of decency and regard for its political existence could do," authorized German sources said.

Comment was declined on a reported statement by Chairman Key Pittman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "every patriotic American citizen" would applaud Churchill "upon his wisdom and courage in preventing use of the French navy by Hitler."

Bomb German Hangars

British airmen reported the bombing of a large German supply ship off the Dtch coast Thursday and bomb attacks on Hamm and Tmmerich in the Ruhr. The airmen also hit hangars at the Amsterdam and Brussels airports and attacked German naval bases at Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Emden, the air ministry said.

Germany told of successes in her counter-blockade against Great Britain, with submarines doing the most of the work. A high command communique said British merchantmen totaling 106,543 tons have been sunk recently. Submarines were credited with 86,000 tons of the total.

In Rumania, the pro-Nazi government of the new premier, Ion Gigurtu, ordered thirty British oil men to leave the country within twenty-four hours. It was said other British subjects were preparing to liquidate their business interests in Rumania.

A German challenge to the Monroe doctrine, which has stood for more than 100 years as a barrier to European penetration of the Americas, was met by a statement by Secretary of State Hull that it was a "basic policy of the government" of the United States to prevent "aggression" in the western hemisphere.

A delegation of Italian foreign ministry officials, headed by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, left Rome yesterday for Berlin on the invitation of the German government. Berlin spokesmen would not discuss the purpose of the trip.

Whether French Vice-Admiral Godfroy, commanding, had been given a time-limit to make decision was not known.

Under Own Officers

Today, however, no British had boarded the French ships; they still were under their own officers and crews, and it was believed the British were not pressing for an immediate decision.

The British seemed to believe the majority of the French officers and men are with them.

Both British and French fleets have had other things to think about, too: the bombs of Italian planes which rained down on them and on Alexandria yesterday. Fifteen persons were killed and seven wounded.

As troubled comrades, both French and British warships opened up on the Italians with anti-aircraft guns.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A formal break in relations between the Petain government of France and Britain would be an anti-climax gesture which London might well ignore or attribute to orders of France's master, Hitler.

It could have no bearing on Britain's fate in her war with Germany and Italy unless it was implemented by a fantastic alliance in arms between defeated France and her Nazi conquerors.

Whatever Germany's hopes of ultimately drawing continental France wholly into the Nazi-Fascist ideological and military orbit, it is improbable that she would dare now to permit France to rearm.

Generations of French hatred and fear of Germany have been fanned into fresh life by defeat and the gruesome French casualty lists of this war. Rather than arming France, Germany must be on guard against that smouldering menace.

There can be no question, even in Nazi minds, that a turn of the battle odds against Germany would stir rumblings of revolt everywhere in the vast territory she has seized and over which her areas of occupation are thinly spread.

German Views Disclosed

Berlin's recognition of that is disclosed in the steady flow of dispatches recording Nazi efforts at conciliation and appeasement in German-occupied France, in the low countries and in Norway. It is the dominant undertone of Berlin press insistence that England must and will be crushed without delay to insure stability of the "new order" which Hitler proposes for Europe.

It follows logically, therefore, that Britain need have small immediate concern over the Petain government's reaction to her stroke to eliminate the French navy as a potential factor of mortal danger for her. London must be much more concerned with the reaction of French and world public opinion.

Mass opinion in conquered France is muzzled. It can only be guessed. But the reaction is clearly favorable to Britain in the Western Hemisphere, and in still neutral fragments of Europe. It sets down British elimination of the French navy as essential and as at least an important negative victory in the grim struggle.

A taste of victory is particularly sweet in British mouths at this critical junction, although achieved at the somber price of British shedding of French blood for the first time in nearly a century. It tends to hearten a national fighting spirit as well as to bolster world belief that Britain can and will fight to the bitter end.

Russian Course a Mystery

It may prove significant that rumors of new Russian demands on Rumania synchronized with the British action against the French fleet.

Despite insistence of the Moscow press that Russia's incursions into southeastern Europe are aimed at Franco-British "warmongers," not at Germany, Britain must be the beneficiary and Germany the victim of internal disorders or war in the Balkans.

Nazi concentrations for attack on England are affected to the extent that Germany must man her eastern and southeastern frontiers watchfully against Russia's uncertain purposes and motives.

German air power is the weapon on which Berlin must rely primarily in the west. Without an overwhelming Nazi air superiority to fear, Britain still could laugh behind the steel walls of her ships of war at Germany's threats of invasion. She could still have confidence in her ability to prevent a blockade by Nazi under-sea craft alone.

Yet at the moment when Hitler's generals are mapping their final drive against Britain, they are confronted with the necessity of scattering their vaunted air power. They must hold some substantial part of it in the east in readiness for whatever may happen there.

800 Civilians at Plattsburgh Camp

Rockefeller, Duke and Biddle among Those Enrolled

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—The army demoted captains of industry to privates today as 800 civilians, bent on a month of military training, staged a homecoming at the birthplace of "The Plattsburg idea."

Like the first contingent which received lessons in soldiering a quarter century ago, business and professional men, firemen and policemen, bankers and farmers trooped into Plattsburg barracks to undergo a rigid training in behalf of national preparedness.

But vastly different from their predecessors in 1915, the civilians, ranging in years from 25 to 50, displayed that the "business man's bulge," the portly "middle-aged middle," is out of style.

Lieutenant Colonel F. T. Chamberlain, post surgeon, said the trainees were in the best physical condition of any of the civilian groups that have participated in the summer camp periods.

"They're fit," he asserted. "They exercise more now than the business man did twenty-years years ago. The bulging tummies are rare but even those will disappear after a month at this camp."

Regardless of condition, however, the new privates found the hard army cots as inviting as their comparatively soft beds at home after the day's routine preparing for the "official" camp opening tomorrow.

Between physical examinations and "processing" they tended to other army chores. Winthrop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller Jr., was assigned to kitchen police and helped prepare the noon meal of frankfurtes and sauerkraut.

Other enrollees include Newbold Morris, president of the New York city council; John Hay Whitney; Angier Biddle Duke; Robert P. Patterson, judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and polo star Michael J. Phipps.

will be required only in the event it is deemed necessary by reason of the operator's condition.

"The eye test and examination of the motor vehicles laws, however, will form part of the re-examination of all persons who may be summoned to appear.

"This checkup will in no way interfere with the usual penalties imposed on drivers whose records call for suspension or revocation of operating licenses," he declared.

The commissioner said in the last five years, fatal accidents in July have been twenty-two per cent higher than in the average month.

Defense Bill of 3 Billions Each Year Predicted

And It Will Be Much More for Next Seven Years, Leaders Say

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Whether war or peace lies ahead, congressional sources estimated today, the country's national defense bill will run to more than $3,000,000,000 annually from now on and a good deal more than that for the next seven years.

In the period just ahead, the projected two-ocean navy with its $4,000,000,000 expansion of the fleet is to be under construction and the army is to be buying planes, tanks, guns and other equipment in huge quantities, as well as increasing its personnel to a total strength of 375,000 men.

With the army and navy fully equipped, it was said, there will be a maintenance cost of as much as $1,800,000,000 annually for the navy and $850,000,000 for the army.

Third Set of Canal Locks

On top of these outlays, a third set of locks for the Panama canal has been authorized and such proposals as a second canal through Nicaragua and compulsory military training are pending.

In hearings before the Senate Military Committee today, Senator Johnson (D-Colo) estimated the cost of compulsory military training at $1,200,000,000 a year, an army of 2,000,000 trainees annually at a cost of $600 each.

While the capital speculated on these figures, other developments related to the defense situation arose.

Senator Clark (D-Ida) announced his opposition to confirming Frank Knox as secretary of the navy and Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war. It was "travesty" he said, to place "two aging, wealthy, pronounced interventionists in these positions."

The Senate, meanwhile, met briefly and adjourned until Monday when the question of confirmation is scheduled for consideration.

Confirmation Likely

Majority Leader Barkley said the two Republicans named to the cabinet would be confirmed by easy majorities, but that the Senate would have to listen to some speeches before acting.

The defense commission announced that Dr. Will W. Alexander, until recently head of the Farm Security Administration, would become one of its aides in charge of planning a youth training program to meet defense requirements. He is to have the task of coordinating the work of the C. C., the National Youth Administration, the office of education and other youth training agencies.

Officials noted a sharp upturn in trade with South America—at a time when a $1,000,000,000 system controlling Western Hemisphere exports and imports is under consideration as a means of combatting totalitarian economic penetration. In May trade with South America jumped to $40,332,000 as compared with $22,668,000 in the same month of 1939.

Suspect Held in New York Bombing

Caesar Kroeger Arrested When Found with German Revolvers

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Grim, tired-eyed detectives, in relentless mood, tonight sought to connect the theft of thirty-nine sticks of dynamite with a bomb which blasted two of their comrades to death yesterday soon after it had been hustled from its hiding place in the New York World's Fair British pavilion.

The dynamite was stolen May 29 at gun's point from a magazine guarded by a watchman for a synagogue excavation.

Investigators said the weight and size of the dynamite sticks approximated the weight—twenty pounds—of the bomb explosive.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine described the bomb as a "dynamite shrapnel" type which was powerful enough to have blown asunder a wall of the pavilion.

Suspect Arrested

Meanwhile, as police continued their roundup of all known radicals in an unprecedented effort to track down the terrorists who planted the bomb, detecetives arrested Caesar Kroeger, 38, whom they described as a former member of the German-American bund.

They said they discovered in K...ger's apartment two German-made pistols, one loaded; and they reported finding on the wall of the apartment a huge map of the world, which bore chalk and pin marks at intervals. The pistols, they said, were found in a drawer, undre a copy of Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf," Kampf."

Pin hole perforations surrounded principal United States cities on the map, said the detectives, who quoted Kroeger as explaining the mark indicated communities in which Communists were located.

Booked Under Sullivan Law

Kroeger was booked on charges of violating the Sullivan law.

Associates of the two slain detectives—Joseph J. Lynch, 33, and Ferdinand A. Soch, 35—offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the bombing. Mayor La Guardia announced he would ask the board of estimate to offer $25,000 reward.

The effect of the bombing spread to Washington, where the police guard was increased about the United States capitol and every visitor to the building was required to identify himself.

No Communists or Bund Members in Md. WPA

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—The WPA in Maryland is devoid of Communists and Bund members, WPA officials here announced today.

They said all employes and administrative force of the state WPA had signed affidavits that they were not members of the Communist party or of the Nazi.

Affidavits were distributed to workers under the provisions of the emergency relief appropriation act.

State WPA officials said 145 workers had signed the blanks. Each affidavit had to be signed by the employe concerned and three witnesses.

$100,000,000 War Order Placed by British

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—A spokesman for the British purchasing commission said today the British government had placed orders for $100,000,000 of war material in the United States in the last week.

The new buying, he said, brought the total placed here by the British and the French previous to the surrender, to $1,800,000,000. Of this amount, it was stated, sixty per cent represented airplanes.

235 Third Corps Men Start Drills At Camp Meade

Bankers, Brokers and Others Learning about Army Life

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., July 5 (AP)—Wealth, position and social background climbed into a buck private's uniform today and 235 third corps area business men began finding out what might happen to them if the U. S. went to war.

Bankers, brokers, engineers, lawyers, merchants—even a U. S. senatorial nominee—went from Mufti to Khaki and a place in the ranks as the army opened its first thirty-day special training course for business and professional men.

From youths of twenty-five to grey-haired dignified citizens of 50, representing Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, the 235 meekly paid in $43.50 for the privilege of being bossed around, worked from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.—and studying the national defense program first-hand.

Few Are Trained Men

For some of them, army life was an old story; a few trained at Fort Meade during the World War and many of the others had seen service. One, Francis R. Kenney of Chevy Chase, Md., formerly was a captain of cavalry in the regular army.

Like the rookiest rookies, they lugged suitcases and duffle bags, drew piles of equipment—regular issue uniforms worn by enlisted men—stood physical examinations, piled in and out of trucks, and said "yes, sir" to corporals.

Among the smartest-appearing of the lot was Judge Theodore Rosen, one-armed judge of Philadelphia's court of Common Pleas, a war veteran with an excellent service record. In his platoon was Jay Cooke, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate from Pennsylvania. Graeme Lorimer, editor of the Ladies Home Journal, from Conshohocken, Pa.; and J. Marshall Boone, Baltimore broker and one-time Olympic shot-put champion.

Prosecutor Enrolls

With Judge Rosen was Norris S. Barratt, Jr., assistant district attorney of Philadelphia. Another registrant was Richard Wallach, Jr., Warrenton, Va., racing secretary. Two school principals enrolled, as well as one clergyman, The Rev. John F. Hall of Drexel Hill, Pa.

Organization of the platoons found Judge Rosen a platoon messenger, Boone rated a corporalcy; Lorimer and Cooke wound up in the ranks. The selection was based solely on where the trainees happened to be standing when they "counted off".

Instruction the two companies will receive is essentially the same as that given basic students in the regular CMTC, with modifications made because of the age group.

Aluminum Co. Men Threaten Strike

Demand Higher Wages and May Tieup Big Industry

PITTSBURGH, July 5 (AP)—Union leaders and officials of the Aluminum Company of America remained deadlocked tonight after hours of conferring over demands for a ten cents an hour wage increase which were accompanied by a union threat to tie up a major part of the nation's vital almuinum industry by strike.

Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the federal labor department's conciliation division, who sat in on the conference with an assistant, J. A. Addicks, said as the meeting recessed:

"There is nothing in sight, yet."

The CIO's Aluminum Workers of America has been dickering for a wage boost for several months. The present minimum scale is sixty-three cents an hour.

The aluminum company produces all of the "raw" aluminum, or ingots, made in the United States. Through subsidiaries it manufacturers a major share of the finished products.

A strike in the industry would quickly affect the national defense program, since the company has stated almost forty percent of its production now is for government or airplane orders. Almost ninety percent of the modern airplane is made from aluminum.

Report Increases in Gas Tax Payments

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—The Maryland petrolium industries commitee said today Maryland motorists had paid $1,090,740 in state gasoline taxes in May, an increase of $51,500 over May, 1939.

The committee estimated motorists would pay more than $1,000,000 a month under the four-cent per gallon state levy from now until the end of the year.

Maryland motorists paid $272,685 in May to the federal government under the one-cent federal tax, the committee's report said.

Hull Issues

with the German embassy here," said the announcement, "and it has been pointed out that public discussion of questions relating to this country's policies and and attitudes does not properly come within the province of foreign government officials in the United States."

Then the department added pointedly that permission granted to foreign government officials to remain in this country is dependent upon observance of this rule.

The exchange concerning the Monroe Doctrine grew out of the United States' action in informing the Reich on June 18 that it would not "recognize" nor "acquiesce" in any transfer of Western Hemisphere territory from one non-American power to another. This amounted to a notice to Germany not to try to take over French, British or other possessions in the New World.

Germans Make Three Points

The German reply, as given out in substance by Secretary of State Hull today, made these three points:

That Germany has "given on occasion whatever for the assumption" that she intends to acquire territory in this hemisphere and that the American note to Germany was thus "without object."

That the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine implicit in the American note was "untenable" because it would "amount to conferring upon some European countries the right to possess territories in the Western Hemisphere and not to other European countries."

That the Monroe Doctrine's principle that Europe must not intervene in American affairs can be "legally valid only on condition that the American nations for their part do not interfere in the affairs of the European continent."

Not Direct Reply

Hull's counter-argument did not take the form of a direct reply to Germany. He issued a statement saying that "no useful purpose" would be served by "any further communication" to the Reich on the subject at this time.

But his statement went on to reiterate that the United States would not acquiesce in any transfer of New World land from one non-American power to another.

Sharply, Hull declared that the Monroe Doctrine has "not the remotest connection with the fact that certain European nations exercise sovereignty over colonies in the Western Hemisphere and that certain other European nations do not."

The situation existed before the Monroe Doctrine was proclaimed," his statement said. "The doctrine did not undertake to interfere with the existing situation, but did announce that further incursions would not be tolerated."

Moreover, Hull disdainfully rejected the idea that there is any similarity between the Monroe Doctrine and certain policies being put into effect abroad. In language which appeared aimed at Japan as well as Germany, he said:

Not Like European Policies

"It (the American Monroe Doctrine) never has resembled and it does not today resemble, policies which appear to be arising in other geographical areas of the world, which are alleged to be similar to the Monroe Doctrine, but which, instead of resting on the sole policies of national defense and of respect for existing sovereignties, as does the Monroe Doctrine, would in reality seem to be only the pretext for the carrying out of conquest by the sword, of Military occupation, and of complete economic and political domination by certain powers of other free and independent peoples."

Apparently defending the right of the United States to give aid to Britain or other nations, Hull declared the government was pursuing "a policy of non-participation and of non-involvement in the purely political affairs of Europe."

But it will, he said, continue to cooperate with all other nations "whenever the policies of such nations make it possible, and whenever it believes that such efforts are practicable and in its own best interests, for the purpose of promoting economic, commercial, and social rehabilitation, and of advancing the cause of interal law and order, of which the entire world stands so tragically in need today."

War and Navy

people than to conscript mechanics to service your planes."

"It would seem to me," Downey contended, "that the thing we have to do is to search out through every governmental agency for the number of mechanics we want, not just throw out a dragnet and pull in boys who are not married or who have no fathers and mothers.

"I would say, let us get 500,000 of the finest boys we can get for this mechanized war. We can't get the type of men we want at $5 or $21."

Under the bill, men called up for active training would be paid $5 a month in addition to transportation and subsistence. The starting pay of a regular army recruit is $21.

Based on estimates of proponents that it would cost $400 to $600 per man for the contemplated eight months training period, Senator Johnson (D-Colo) calculated that to train 2,000,000 men for an emergency reserve force would cost $1,200,000,000.

Adler said he believed 2,000,000 men should be trained as rapidly as possible, with an equal number called up successively over a period of several years, or as long as the present emergency continues.

Lewis Sanders, reserve officer and New York engineer, disagreed with a contention by Downey that to provide the kind of troops needed for a mechanized army would require a training period of several years. A man could be trained in four months, Sanders said, to "operate any machine that was ever made."

In response to questions by Downey and Senator Reynolds (D-NC), Sanders said he thought an attempted invasion of the United States was "very probable" if Germany won a decisive victory over England.

He said he believed any such attempt would be accompanied by a threat from Japan which would immobilize much of the United States fleet.

"I do not fear an attack from Germany if we are fully equipped to meet it," he added.

The immediate concern of the new cabinet was restoration of more normal conditions after many days of deep unrest.

Rumania Joins Axis

With Rumania generally considered completely Allied now with the Rome-Berlin axis, British citizens were reported liquidating their interests in anticipation of governmental measures against them.

American authorities formally requested the Rumanian government today to grant an extension of stay for three of thirty British Oil men ordered to leave the country within twenty-four hours.

Two large American corporations would be directly affected by expulsion of the three British citizens, the Rumanian government was informed.

Withdrawal Completed

A government communique today said withdrawal from Bessarabia and Bucovina had been completed July 3.

Small Rumanian military losses were acknowledged.

The communique said that in Bucovina "where the Russians inadvertently went past the agreed line, they have fallen back."

In Transylvania, Jewish leaders were reported ready to make a mass migration to Palestine, Africa or anywhere there is room for them.

represent a government antagonistic to the British war effort. Cambon, prior to Ambassador Corbin's resignation, was minister plenipotentiary to Britain, the French maintaining both ambassador and minister in London and the British doing likewise in Paris.)

The press in French territory not occupied by Germany published a bitter communique by the French admiralty which said:

"The French admiralty has the painful feeling that the misfortunes of France left English rulers unmoved, they thinking only of becoming masters of the French fleet, which must remain French or perish.

"The French navy did not, in any case, deserve to be stabbed in the back on the order of (British Prime Minister) Churchill, who last winter implored the French admiralty to lend its principal forces to protect Canadian ships because the British admiralty's forces had no longer the necessary means."

Vote to Break Relations

Dispatches from Vichy, France, reported that the government as early as yesterday had come to a final decision to break off with England because of what was officially described as "unjustifiable aggression" against the French fleet.

German radio broadcasts attributed to the French radio service a statement "destined above all for America" in which the British action against the French fleet was called "an act of aggression without precedent in world history."

During the day, the British reported that enemy airplanes had made three unsuccessful attacks upon Gibraltar, the naval stronghold in the Mediterranean.

They reported also that British planes had been busy, to this effect:

A supply ship attacked and damaged near Stavanger, Norway.

The English coastal defense area—a part of the country which would be handiest to Hitler's reach across the channel or the North Sea—was taken under such complete control that no one may enter or leave the district save on business of national importance.

The east and south coasts of England now present a picture very close to that of a World War battlefront.

There are barbed wire entanglements, trenches, strategic fields, machinegun and heavy artillery emplacements, dugouts and redoubts. There are airfields, anti-aircraft batteries, listening posts, seadchlight batteries and the toughest of all British troops—the survivors of Flanders and of Dunkerque.

Germany Reports Greater Success Against British

Blockade Being Tightened, Berlin Statement Declares

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—The German high command reported increasing success of its counter-blockade against Great Britain today with submarines doing the deadliest work.

British merchantmen totalling 106,543 tons have been sunk "recently," a communique declared.

Submarines were credited with 86,000 tons of the total.

Dive bombers and torpedo speedboats accounted for the balance.

While Germany heralded its successes against British shipping an authoritative source charged that in sending the Arandora Star through "a dangerous war route" loaded with German and Italian prisoners bound for Canada the British were guilty of "irresponsibly" breaking "her obligations under international law."

The Arandora Star was sunk by a German submarine with apparently heavy loss of prisoners' lives.

The German source said belligerents were obliged to keep prisoners out of war zones.

It was the second time in twenty-four hours that expressions of indignation were heard from the Berlin-Rome axis over British action termed contrary to international law.

The seizure or destruction of most of the French fleet was labeled "Churchill's cowardly raid." The British prime minister was called "the butcher of Europe" in the Berlin press.

French government action in severing relations with Great Britain was "the only thing that any government with a feeling of decency and regard for its political existence could do," authorized German sources said.

Comment was declined on a reported statement by Chairman Key Pittman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "every patriotic American citizen" would applaud Churchill "upon his wisdom and courage in preventing use of the French navy by Hitler."

Bomb German Hangars

British airmen reported the bombing of a large German supply ship off the Dtch coast Thursday and bomb attacks on Hamm and Tmmerich in the Ruhr. The airmen also hit hangars at the Amsterdam and Brussels airports and attacked German naval bases at Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Emden, the air ministry said.

Germany told of successes in her counter-blockade against Great Britain, with submarines doing the most of the work. A high command communique said British merchantmen totaling 106,543 tons have been sunk recently. Submarines were credited with 86,000 tons of the total.

In Rumania, the pro-Nazi government of the new premier, Ion Gigurtu, ordered thirty British oil men to leave the country within twenty-four hours. It was said other British subjects were preparing to liquidate their business interests in Rumania.

A German challenge to the Monroe doctrine, which has stood for more than 100 years as a barrier to European penetration of the Americas, was met by a statement by Secretary of State Hull that it was a "basic policy of the government" of the United States to prevent "aggression" in the western hemisphere.

A delegation of Italian foreign ministry officials, headed by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, left Rome yesterday for Berlin on the invitation of the German government. Berlin spokesmen would not discuss the purpose of the trip.

demilitarization, or: sink the ships, or: face whatever force the British deem necessary to keep the ships from falling into enemy hands.

Whether French Vice-Admiral Godfroy, commanding, had been given a time-limit to make decision was not known.

Under Own Officers

Today, however, no British had boarded the French ships; they still were under their own officers and crews, and it was believed the British were not pressing for an immediate decision.

The British seemed to believe the majority of the French officers and men are with them.

Both British and French fleets have had other things to think about, too: the bombs of Italian planes which rained down on them and on Alexandria yesterday. Fifteen persons were killed and seven wounded.

As troubled comrades, both French and British warships opened up on the Italians with anti-aircraft guns.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A formal break in relations between the Petain government of France and Britain would be an anti-climax gesture which London might well ignore or attribute to orders of France's master, Hitler.

It could have no bearing on Britain's fate in her war with Germany and Italy unless it was implemented by a fantastic alliance in arms between defeated France and her Nazi conquerors.

Whatever Germany's hopes of ultimately drawing continental France wholly into the Nazi-Fascist ideological and military orbit, it is improbable that she would dare now to permit France to re-arm.

Generations of French hatred and fear of Germany have been fanned into fresh life by defeat and the gruesome French casualty lists of this war. Rather than arming France, Germany must be on guard against that smouldering menace.

There can be no question, even in Nazi minds, that a turn of the battle odds against Germany would stir rumblings of revolt everywhere in the vast territory she has seized and over which her areas of occupation are thinly spread.

German Views Disclosed

Berlin's recognition of that is disclosed in the steady flow of dispatches recording Nazi efforts at conciliation and appeasement in German-occupied France, in the low countries and in Norway. It is the dominant undertone of Berlin press insistence that England must and will be crushed without delay to insure stability of the "new order" which Hitler proposes for Europe.

It follows logically, therefore, that Britain need have small immediate concern over the Petain government's reaction to her stroke to eliminate the French navy as a potential factor of mortal danger for her. London must be much more concerned with the reaction of French and world public opinion.

Mass opinion in conquered France is muzzled. It can only be guessed. But the reaction is clearly favorable to Britain in the Western Hemisphere, and in still neutral fragments of Europe. It sets down British elimination of the French navy as essential and as at least an important negative victory in the grim struggle.

A taste of victory is particularly sweet in British mouths at this critical junction, although achieved at the somber price of British shedding of French blood for the first time in nearly a century. It tends to hearten a national fighting spirit as well as to bolster world belief that Britain can and will fight to the bitter end.

Russian Course a Mystery

It may prove significant that rumors of new Russian demands on Rumania synchronized with the British action against the French fleet.

Despite insistence of the Moscow press that Russia's incursions into southeastern Europe are aimed at Franco-British "warmongers," not at Germany, Britain must be the beneficiary and Germany the victim of internal disorders or war in the Balkans.

Nazi concentrations for attack on England are affected to the extent that Germany must man her eastern and southeastern frontiers watchfully against Russia's uncertain purposes and motives.

German air power is the weapon on which Berlin must rely primarily in the west. Without an overwhelming Nazi air superiority to fear, Britain still could laugh behind the steel walls of her ships of war at Germany's threats of invasion. She could still have confidence in her ability to prevent a blockade by Nazi under-sea craft alone.

Yet at the moment when Hitler's generals are mapping their final drive against Britain, they are confronted with the necessity of scattering their vaunted air power. They must hold some substantial part of it in the east in readiness for whatever may happen there.

800 Civilians at Plattsburgh Camp

Rockefeller, Duke and Biddle among Those Enrolled

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 5 (AP)—The army demoted captains of industry to privates today as 800 civilians, bent on a month of military training, staged a homecoming at the birthplace of "The Plattsburg idea."

Like the first contingent which received lessons in soldiering a quarter century ago, business and professional men, firemen and policemen, bankers and farmers trooped into Plattsburg barracks to undergo a rigid training in behalf of national preparedness.

But vastly different from their predecessors in 1915, the civilians, ranging in years from 25 to 50, displayed that the "business man's bulge," the portly "middle-aged middle," is out of style.

Lieutenant Colonel F. T. Chamberlain, post surgeon, said the trainees were in the best physical condition of any of the civilian groups that have participated in the summer camp periods.

"They're fit," he asserted. "They exercise more now than the business man did twenty-years years ago. The bulging tummies are rare but even those will disappear after a month at this camp."

Regardless of condition, however, the new privates found the hard army cots as inviting as their comparatively soft beds at home after the day's routine preparing for the "official" camp opening tomorrow.

Between physical examinations and "processing" they tended to other army chores. Winthrop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller Jr., was assigned to kitchen police and helped prepare the noon meal of frankfurtes and sauerkraut.

Other enrollees include Newbold Morris, president of the New York city council; John Hay Whitney; Angier Biddle Duke; Robert P. Patterson, judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and polo star Michael J. Phipps.

will be required only in the event it is deemed necessary by reason of the operator's condition.

"The eye test and examination of the motor vehicles laws, however, will form part of the re-examination of all persons who may be summoned to appear.

"This checkup will in no way interfere with the usual penalties imposed on drivers whose records call for suspension or revocation of operating licenses," he declared.

The commissioner said in the last five years, fatal accidents in July have been twenty-two per cent higher than in the average month.

Defense Bill of 3 Billions Each Year Predicted

And It Will Be Much More for Next Seven Years, Leaders Say

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Whether war or peace lies ahead congressional sources estimated today, the country's national defense bill will run to more than $3,000,000,000 annually from now on and a good deal more than that for the next seven years.

In the period just ahead, the projected two-ocean navy with its $4,000,000,000 expansion of the fleet to be under construction and the army is to be buying planes, tanks, guns and other equipment in huge quantities, as well as increasing personnel to a total strength of 375,000 men.

With the army and navy fully equipped, it was said, there will be a maintenance cost of as much as $1,800,000,000 annually for the navy and $850,000,000 for the army.

Third Set of Canal Locks

On top of these outlays, a third set of locks for the Panama canal has been authorized and such proposals as a second canal through Nicaragua and compulsory military training are pending.

In hearings before the Senate Military Committee today, Senator Johnson (D-Colo) estimated the cost of compulsory military training at $1,200,000,000 a year, an army of 2,000,000 trainees annually at a cost of $600 each.

While the capital speculated on these figures, other developments related to the defense situation arose.

Senator Clark (D-Ida) announced his opposition to confirming Frank Knox as secretary of the navy and Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war. It was "travesty" he said to place "two aging, wealthy, politically interventionists in these positions."

The Senate, meanwhile, met briefly and adjourned until Monday when the question of confirmation is scheduled for consideration.

Confirmation Likely

Majority Leader Barkley said the two Republicans named to the cabinet would be confirmed by big majorities, but that the Senate would have to listen to some speeches before acting.

The defense commission announced that Dr. Will W. Alexander, until recently head of the Farm Security Administration would become one of its aides in charge of planning a youth training program to meet defense requirements. He is to have the task of coordinating the work of the C. C., the National Youth Administration, the office of education and other youth training agencies.

Officials noted a sharp upturn in trade with South America—at a time when a $1,000,000,000 system controlling Western Hemisphere exports and imports is under consideration as a means of combatting totalitarian economic penetration. In May trade with South America jumped to $40,332,000 as compared with $22,668,000 in the same month of 1939.

Suspect Held in New York Bombing

Caesar Kroeger Arrested When Found with German Revolvers

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Grim, tired-eyed detectives, in relentless mood, tonight sought to connect the theft of thirty-nine sticks of dynamite with a bomb which blasted two of their comrades to death yesterday soon after it had been hustled from its hiding place in the New York World's Fair British pavilion.

The dynamite was stolen May 29 at gun's point from a magazine guarded by a watchman for a synagogue excavation.

Investigators said the weight and size of the dynamite sticks approximated the weight—twenty pounds—of the bomb explosive.

Suspect Arrested

Meanwhile, as police continued their roundup of all known radicals in an unprecedented effort to track down the terrorists who planted the bomb, detectives arrested Caesar Kroeger, 38, whom they described as a former member of the German-American bund.

They said they discovered in K...er's apartment two German-made pistols, one loaded; and they reported finding on the wall of the apartment a huge map of the world, which bore chalk and pin marks at intervals. The pistols, they said, were found in a drawer, undre a copy of Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf," Kampf."

Pin hole perforations surrounded principal United States cities on the map, said the detectives, who quoted Kroeger as explaining the mark indicated communities in which Communists were located.

Booked Under Sullivan Law

Kroeger was booked on charges of violating the Sullivan law.

Associates of the two slain detectives—Joseph J. Lynch, 33, and Ferdinand A. Soch, 35—offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the bombing. Mayor La Guardia announced he would ask the board of estimate to offer $25,000 reward.

The effect of the bombing spread to Washington, where the police guard was increased about the United States capitol and every visitor to the building was required to identify himself.

THE DAILY STORY

TWO OF A KIND

Everything Comes in Doubles for Pierre, Including Trouble—and His Greatest Happiness

BY CATHERINE ATWOOD

"How many?" asked the clerk, putting the skates back in their box as Pierre indicated he would take them.

"Two," said Pierre.

"Two pairs?"

"Yes." As the clerk eyed him questioningly, he moved his shoulders in an expressive gesture and explained, "Twins . . . girls."

For seven years it had been this way. "Two dolls, two little dresses, two little pairs of shoes." From the very day when Pierre had leaped up from his chair in the anteroom at the hospital and, half in joy, half in dismay, heard the nurse say, "Twins!" it had been two . . . or two pairs . . . of everything.

It has been wonderful, of course, he and Juliette having two beautiful little girls. But there had been just enough money for one! One layette, one crib, one carriage, Pierre remembered how hard he had worked after Juliette, with shining eyes, had confided that soon their family was to be larger. All day and almost all night, he would bend over his drawing board. He created designs for dresses, for his designing, and upon whom fate had bestowed only one daughter.

Not that there was anything wrong with Pierre's designs. On the contrary, Pierre's was the fate of all perfectionists. He poured his artist soul into every model he created, laboring over every detail until it was the perfect part of a perfect whole. Of course, each model was burning a good sum these days. But there were other designers, less exacting, who pleased the manufacturers just as well and turned out twice as many creations.

That was how there never seemed to be enough money to do all the things he longed to do for his little girls. And that was how, yesterday, he had bought just one pair of roller skates. Never would he forget their faces as they had unwrapped the package, the joyous anticipation at first, then the bewilderment.

"One pair?" they had chorused, their eyes fixed on his face.

Gently he had explained. "Papa hasn't a lot of money just now. See, you can take turns!"

Dutifully, with quiet little faces, they had marched off, each with a skate in his hand. Not another word had he heard from them about the matter. But he had to sit in his studio all afternoon trying to work, while outside his window a poignant little drama unfolded.

Jeanne skated first. But Marie ran along beside her, her fascinated eyes never leaving her sister's figure. Then back at the steps, they exchanged roles and the performance was repeated. Pierre, watching uneasily, knew what would come next.

Pierre could stand no more. He sprang up, called Juliette and asked her to have the children come in for chocolate in order that he might sit down and work in peace. He confided to his wife that, first thing in the morning, he would get a second pair of skates.

But today, just his cursed luck, the toy shop hadn't had another pair exactly like the ones he had bought yesterday. Take an unlike pair? Ah, no. The children themselves, though obviously twins, were like dawn and dusk. Marie fair, Peanne dark. But ever since they had been old enough to speak, they had insisted that all their possessions be identical.

At sight of their two pairs of skates ("Just alike, Papa! Goody, goody!") the twins were beside themselves with joy. Over and over ...fingers, for accessories, designs for every conceivable article of the world of feminine fashion. Many nights, in the small hours when his head had fallen forward on his board and the brush had slipped from his fingers, Juliette would come into his studio to awaken him and bid him get some rest.

At last, however, just before Juliette's time had some, they had had enough. There were the little clothes, the tiny basinette, all in readiness and enough money in the bank for doctor and hospital. And then . . . twins!

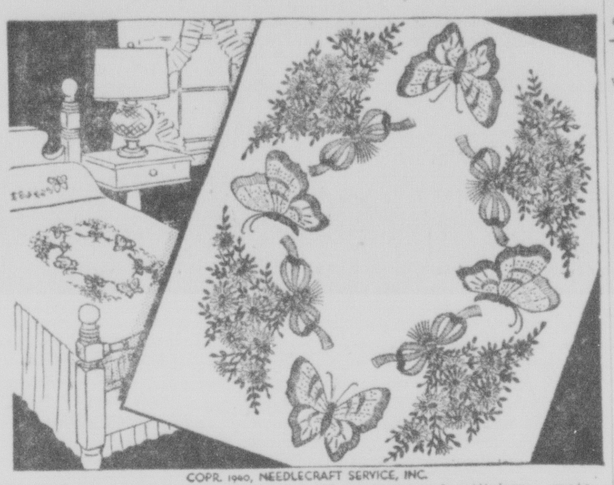

"Two queens, eh?" chuckled the clerk, handing Pierre the two heavy packages.

"Mais oui, two queens!" said Pierre. Then he remembered the one pair of used skates in his hand. He turned to the young man again. "Could you—" he began with his slight accent. —"do you suppose you could take these back?"

The clerk was sorry, but that was impossible.

Pierre thanked him and turned away. His shoulders drooped ever so lightly. The extra skates would have to be a gift, then, to Cousin Antoine for his little Yvonne . . . Cousin Antoine who made considerably more money at his French pastry business than Pierre did at them by a tiny bug known as the melon aphid.

When lilies have become infected with this virus disease, the foliage becomes mottled as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, and there is a general stunting of the plant.

Since there is no cure for mosaic once a plant has become infected with the disease, special care should be taken to prevent the disease by spraying lilies with a nicotine solution at the very first sign of varicolored aphids clusterring on the undersides of the leaves.

Plants which show difinite signs of the disease should be taken up and burned immediately to prevent the further spread of the disease.

Do not permit any of the flower stalks of iris to go to seed. Cut them off as the flowers wither. At the same time watch for signs of the iris borer in the leaves.

If you want to achieve color in a shaded area all through the summer, use tuberous-rooted begonias. Potted plants can be set out at this time.

House plants should not be set outdoors. A sheltered location, or the shade under a tree, is best for them. Set the pots into the soil up to their rims. During dry spells remember to water them.

Keep watering any newly transplanted evergreens, trees, shrubs or perennials. Instead of frequent light sprinkling give them a thorough soaking once a week.

Mulch sweet pea plants to keep the roots cool and moist. Keep the blossoms picked as free cuttings means more flowers.

Lawns can receive a second application of fertilizer at this time. A third feeding should not be given until fall. When feeding the lawn at this season use care not to cause burning of the grass.

Presently, they wanted Pierre to take them to Cousin Antoine's so they might give the extra skates to little Yvonne. Pierre consented. Marie was on his right, Jeanne on his left, and each little girl had one hand clasped tight in one of his.

Pierre did not see the car come speeding in front of the cross street . . . until too late. The children never saw it. A screech of brakes, a spit second of agonized desperation, then blackness.

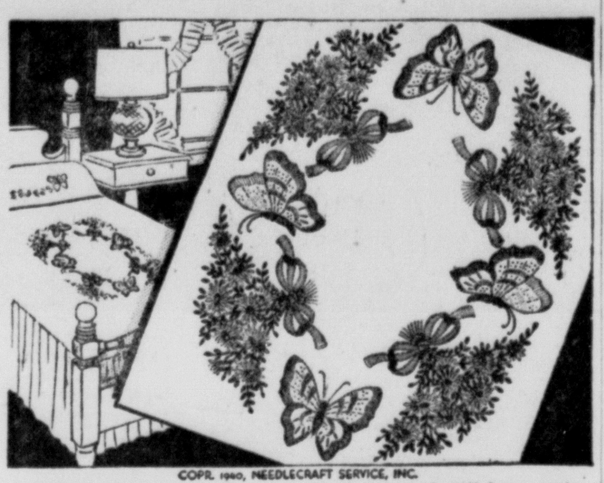

For Pierre, it was largely a matter of cuts and bruises; he was out of the hospital the next day. The first place he went was directly to the nearest top shop. "What do you have to amuse the child convalescing from an accident?" he asked. The clerk brought out books paper dolls crayon sets, funny stuffed animals. Pierre sedected a crayon set, very handsome, with long crayons in a dazzling array of colors.

"One?" asked the clerk, reaching for the wrapping paper.

"Two," cried Pierre, and as the clerk eyed him questionably, he moved his shoulders in an expressive jesture and explained joyously, "Twins!"—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Ordinance and Spirit Both Gratifying

WHILE the ordinance banning the use of fireworks within the city limits is not a complete preventive and a state-wide law is needed to round out the prohibition in the interest of safety, nevertheless the first experience under it this week was highly gratifying. According to reports in hand at this writing it was almost completely effective.

As compared with the Fourth of July celebration a year ago, quiet and peace prevailed to an extraordinary extent this year and many expressions of gratitude and commendation have been heard on all sides. Everybody feels that the city fathers have done the right thing in adopting and enforcing the ordinance.

While it was a comparatively quiet Fourth of July observance, that was as it should have been this year of all years by reason of the consciousness on the part of citizens that it was a more solemn occasion than in many years in view of the grave problems that face the nation and the need for conserving our energies and resources for other things. That consciousness was amply demonstrated by the large attendance and patriotic ferver that marked the gathering at Constitution park which in both respects far outshone the one held the previous year.

For the fireworks ban and more especially for this sober manifestation of a greater consciousness of the meaning of liberty and of the need for protecting it, there is every reason to be grateful.

Britain's Navy Again Proves Its Worth

IT WAS, indeed, excruciating for the British to be obliged to go to battle at sea with its former ally, but in the circumstances it was fully justifiable. Franace, overpowered and ground beneath the heel of a ruthless victor, was forced to surrender its navy and its arms to the conqueror and he would have utilized all of them in his war of greed and hate against Britain, regardless of his soapy promises, which history has amply proved to be utterly worthless. Hence, it was stern necessity that Britain faced and it is gratifying that it had a leader in Winston Churchill who had the courage to make a prompt decision, however painful, at a time when that was imperative and to follow it up with quick action.

The British succeeded splendidly in the undertaking and now fortunately has the bulk of the French fleet in its hands and practically all of the remainder out of commission for months to come. That is indeed heartening to all who sympathize with the democratic cause, as it gives Britain now a much better chance to cope with its enemy and possibly to defeat him in the end. Certainly the swift and effective action of the British navy sustained splendidly its tradition of victory and enhances the faith that its people have placed in its chief arm of defense.

Army Call Response Is Close to Requirements

THOSE who have been worried by reports that the response to the national call for army enlistments has been satisfactory will be relieved to learn that thus far the schedule has been very close to requirements. Last September the United States had a standing army of 167,000. In the ten months since then it has been increased by forty-three per cent.

Between September 16 and January 31, 60,000 recruits were accepted following President Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency. Another enlistment period which began on May 20 ended on July 1. Of the 15,000 asked for, all but a few hundred were obtained. If the current period, July and August, produces the 38,000 recruits hoped for, the United States for the first time since 1920, will have an army of 280,000 men, its full authorized peace-time strength.

Congress has, however, appropriated funds for an additional emergency expansion of 95,000, to bring the total strength of the army to 375,000 —or 125 per cent over the size of last September.

Until now it has been just as well to have accepted no more recruits than the service was prepared to equip and train properly. As the program proceeds for enlarging training facilities and obtaining more rifles and motorized apparatus, larger numbers can be accomodated in what is still a peace-time army. If the United States were in actual danger or even if trouble should break out in Latin America, the rate of enlistment would probably jump.

War Tanks Out Of the Clouds

THE RUSSIAN ARMY, which invented the "parachute troops" technique, employed by the Germans with much success in the Low Countries, now has added another innovation to modern mechanized warfare. In its advance into Rumania, the Red army, dispatches have said, successfully carried and landed "baby tanks" by large transport planes.

While military experts in Washington say that Russia has been experimenting for some years in aerial transport of five-ton and seven-ton tanks, the feat in Rumania marked the first successful use of this technique in actual military operations. Far more important than employment of this technique against a Rumanian force which, according to dispatches, was so surprised that it didn't even take rifles from barracks racks to resist, is the ominous hint of the possibility of German use of similar tactics in the threatened blitzkrieg on Britain.

Inasmuch as the Germans proved themselves far more skillful and scientific than the Russians in the parachute tehcnique invented by the latter, it is to be presumed that the Germans will be more efficient than the Russians in aerial transport of tanks. This obviously gives the British something more to worry about.

Military observers will be prompt, however, to note one or two differences between the Russian exploit in Rumania and the problem of flying German tanks to Britain. Obviously it would take a fleet of such gigantic transport planes as the world never has seen to fly German 80-ton super tanks to Britain—and, even if such gigantic transport planes secretely have been built, they would make ideal targets for small, fast fighting planes of the Hurricane or Spitfire type.

It seems more reasonable to suppose that the Germans will content themselves with trying to fly light "baby tanks" across the Channel, leaving the super tanks to be carried by boat—if and when the Germans succeed in annihilating the British fleet and air force, destroying British coast defenses and immobilizing British troops so that they cannot attack disembarking German forces.

Baby tanks and parachute troops, flown across the Channel, can help in performing all these necessary preliminaries to successful invasion of England—if British fliers fail to prevent the tanks and troops from alighting and if British land forces fail to put them out of action after they alight.

These are "ifs" which the German high command undoubtedily is trying to devise means to consummate. At all events, the Russian strategy in Rumania is a clear forecast of one of the new perils of mechanized warfare which the British and all nations which seek to resist aggression must be prepared to meet.

Lynching Seems To Be On the Way Out

ANOTHER MARK has been scored for the march of American civilization. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskagee Institute, the negro school in Alabama that has for many years recorded lynchings and attempted lynchings in the United States, sends its semi-annual report thereof to the newspapers of the country, and it is worth applauding for it carries a blank.

"According to the information compiled in the Department of Records and Research," Patterson states, "there is no record of a lynching for the first six months of 1940. This information is based on news releases and on investigations made by persons living in various areas."

Thus the reign of law over the ungovernable passions of man goes forward. There is no excuse for mob law and it is good, indeed, to see that it is being completely stamped out in this country. Let it be hoped that Tuskagee's next report will be as gratifying as this one.

New Dealers think war would mean a third term, but others think a third term means war.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Marshall Maslin

The Browser has decided that, whether he knows it or not, Hitler has made a grave tactical error in capturing and keeping Mr. P. G. Wodehouse, the eminent persiflageur and humorist. You know, of course, that Mr. Wodehouse was having a house party in his summer home in France while the German army was advancing. He didn't take the war seriously enough to believe the Nazis were coming to town—until they came in the front door and removed that delightful humorist from circulation. And as he trudged off to Germany he remarked that now he might have time to write a serious book. . . But Hitler should exchange Wodehouse promptly. Humorists are a dangerous commodity. They are an element disruptive to any solemn or pretentious society. More powerful than TNT, more subtly subversive than any Fifth Columnist, the humorist in action can down dictators, overturn tyrants, and may even nullify the nazis. . . And, besides, what's the reading public going to do for humor with a Wodehouse tucked away in a German prison camp? Are there no limits to war?

The Browser has suddenly remembered a passage in Upton Sinclair's "World's End" that is very discriminating on Mr. Sinclair's part. He is describing the attitude of the lovely Beauty Budd toward a young English girl's moral standards. Beauty, who is herself somewhat declasse, is upset because the girl is violating the old code without feeling that she is doing wrong, whereas whenever Beauty violates her own code she knows she is sinning—and that makes it all right. Interesting point of view, don't you think? And an accurate analysis of the conventional sinner's mind.

If you are like the Browser, always with an eye out for a book for a small boy or girl, you will be glad to know that the Macmillan Co. has just published a fat book of "Story and Verse for Children", selected and edited by Miriam Blanton Huber, who must have a child's heart. The book is rich in old favorites and the Browser has spent hours and hours poring over it. It begins with seventy nursery rhymes. Then comes a series of verse for children, like Stevenson's "My Bed Is a Boat"; Eugene Field's "Wynken, Blynken and Nod", and James Whitcomb Riley's "Little Orphant Annie". Next are fairy stories and poems about birds and animals. Then poems by Robert Frost and Robert Browning, Vachel Lindsay and Emily Dickinson, and a group of humorous verse beginning with Carryl's "Plaint of the Camel" and ending with Holmes' "Wonderful One-Hoss Shay". . . The first 200 pages are poetry, the last 600 pages are old tales, legends, make-believe stories, a section on the making of America and a concluding one on "workers and their work". . . "Story and Verse for Children" is the book the Browser has been seeking for years.

BOOK ENDS: Dutton and "The Virginia Quarterly Review" have joined to offer an annual award of $2,500 and a gold medal for "the best book manuscript submitted by a Southern author". And they define "a Southern author" as a person born in the South, although he may at present be living elsewhere, or even a damyankee who has been living in the South for the past five years. They don't want any poetry, but the manuscript may be fiction or non-fiction. Contest closes April 13, 1941. . . Quotation from a sentence in "Great Wings and Small" (Macmillan): "Today the stuffed skin and hollow eggshell of a great auk, when sold at auction, bring more than the price of three new eight-cylinder sedans". And imagine how many hopeful young authors the proceeds would support for how many years? It amazes Marsh Maslin.

THE BROWSER.

Fingerprinting Is A Positive Means Of Identification

By EDWIN C. HILL

J. Edgar Hoover

All alien seamen entering the port of New York are being fingerprinted and again fingerprinted when they leave the port. Unless the prints match up as identical, their seaman's books, passports and other indispensable records will not be returned to them. The system is aimed to trap Fifth Columnists and saboteurs.

David, the Psalmist, wrote, you may recall, of "bloody men in whose hands are mischief"—a pretty neat definition of a Fifth Columnist, that is. Fingerprints are the only accurate, dependable, understandable way of reading the inner man from the outer. A squirrel-headed, meek-looking little man may fight like a cat full of mouse meat. A big, ferocious, abysmal brute with the out-thrust jaw may be yellow from the ground up. Only in large outlines and in subtle ways are criminality, courage, cowardice, or nobility recorded in the features of the human face.

Often Fooled

We all think we know a crook when we see one, and often we do, but a lot of times we're fooled. Those infinitely complicated whorls, concentric circles, tangents and parabolas make a tiny Euclidian equation which serves to set every man apart from Mike the Bite to Dr. Einstein. We have indisputable evidence that the fingerprint does differentiate every man from every other man in the world. And when one thinks of all the billions who have passed this way, down through the centuries, it stands out as one of the greatest phenomena in human experience.

Uncle Sam's extremely active and able Number One crook-hunter, John Hoover, has the most amazing collection of fingerprints—some eight million, as I recall—and he is adding to them all the time. And not a day goes by without these prints betraying one who may have changed his face, his name and even his country. Take this case from the many thousands:

California Case

The police of a California city arrested two men and a girl as suspicious characters. They were fingerprinted, and while the records were en route to Washington the prisoners were discharged. The classifier in Mr. Hoover's criminal identification bureau scanned the papers in routine fashion only to stop short over one. "Where did I see this before?" he mused. In a flash he remembered. Within half an hour, which it takes to check a set of prints, he had read the riddle. The prints before him matched a set photographed from a cake of blood on the left mudguard of an automobile abandoned in a Kansas field a year before.

They were the fingerprints of Jake Fleagle who, with his father and two brothers, held up the First National Bank of Lama, Colorado, killed three guards and took two hundred thousand dollars in cash. Then they kidnapped Dr. Wineinger of Dighton, Kansas, and after compelling him to treat a wounded member of the gang, they murdered the doctor by the roadhouse. It was the doctor's blood wiped on the mudguard of his car by Jake Fleagle, which, in the end, brought death to Jake and the rest of his killing kin.

Go Away Back

Mr. Hoover will tell you that finger-prints as a sure means of identification—go back a long way in human annals. Ancient Cambodian kings, sitting on their golden thrones four thousand years ago, ruling those dead and lost cities of marble buried deep in the jungles of French Indo-China, knew that no two fingerprints are ever alike. And before them even, Mr. Hoover will tell you, the Chinese who seem to have been first with about everything, used fingerprints to catch men in whose hands is mischief."

With the recent exhibition of Fifth Column treachery in France and shocking disloyalty cropping out all over Europe, this might be a good time to re-read that beautiful prayer which the cadets of West Point recite every Sunday in their beautiful chapel, the cadet prayer which begins an invocation to God, and then, in phrases like those of the Bible of King James it contains:

For Honest Dealing

"Strengthen and increase our admiration for honest dealing and clean thinking, and suffer not our hatred of hypocrisy and pretense ever to dimisish. Encourage us in our endeavor to live above the common level of life. Make us to choose the harder right, instead of the easier wrong, and never to be content with a half-truth, when the whole can be won. Endow us with courage that is born of loyalty to all that is noble and worthy, that scorns to compromise with vice and injustice, and knows no fear when truth and right are in jeopardy".

There's more of it, but no need to repeat it all, for there's a whole religion in those few lines, and there's a lot of it those young men take out into life. It is not the buildings of stone or its storied relics that make West Point. It's the spirit which dominates it—the spirit of democracy, square-dealing, honor, decency, loyalty, and patriotism, and along with these, willingness to work and to endure. — Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Business and The People

From the Industrial News Review

Writing in Fortune a short time ago, Wendell Willkie said: "This effort to separate 'business' from the ordinary life of the people and to set it in a distinct and inferior category represents a profoundly false conception of our economic system. There are about 10,000,000 private enterprises in the United States, which employ about 34,000,000 people, who in turn support many millions of other people. Business is a part of life and a way of life. By it we earn our bread, build our homes, care for our children, find expression for ourselves. Every one of us lives directly or indirectly by business . . . It is business, in the broadest sense of the word—including industry and technology, and including the modern farm, which is a business enterprise—that has made the American people so great."

For a long time, we, the people, who live by business, have sat supinely by while the public servants who manage our governmental affairs denounced business, reviled business, fought business, and attempted to destroy private business at every opportunity. The result was the greatest and longest business depression in our history.

And now, almost overnight, we find it imperative that we embark on an unprecedented program of defense rearmament. Do we turn to politicians in this emergency? No! We turn to business, to industry, to the great factories of America. The principal members of the preparedness board lately appointed by the President are business men. And that is as it should be. Even as industry must provide us with the tools of peace, so must it provide us with the weapons of defense.

It has taken the direst of crises to reawaken us to the role that private industry plays in our lives. Let us not forget it again

CLEARING THE TRACK FOR THE BIG DEMOCRATIC ONE HORSE RACE

New Dealers' Efforts To Smear Willkie Will Result in Failure, Waltman Says

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Nomination of Wendell L. Willkie as the Republican candidate for the presidency has been variously hailed as a "miracle," as the "political phenomenon" of the twentieth century and as one of those inexplicable political developments which takes place only once in a generation.

Wendell Willkie

The reason for such ejaculations of wonderment spring, of course, from the suddenness with which Mr. Willkie emerged as a major figure on the national political scene. Without previous political experience, only a few years distant from the Democratic party and without organized support, Mr. Willkie became the presidential nominee of a major party within 48 days after he formally launched his campaign.

It is no wonder the country is amazed and political observers bewildered. Nothing like it ever before has happened in this country. Some draw a parallel between the rise of the Willkie star and that of William Jennings Bryan in 1896.

But really the two events have little in common between them. Bryan had been in Congress before his nomination and many state conventions had instructed for him. The story about Bryan stampeding the 1896 Democratic national convention with the "Cross of Gold" speech contains more legend than fact.

Nomination Unprecedented

The truth is that there is no precedent for the Willkie nomination, just as there never has been a session of a national convention like the one at which the Republican standard bearer was nominated.

But there is no secret or mystery regarding the forces which brought about the Willkie nomination. Mr. Willkie several weeks previously at the National Press Club in Washington gave the key to the "secret." He said that success was meeting his efforts because he was "in front of a trend." What he meant was that he stood for the things which the American people had come to believe and to want in the last few years.

It has been obvious to most political observers that the American people had become wearied of emergencies, continued unemployment and depression, experimentation, wasteful spending and incompetence in their federal government.

Mr. Willkie voiced their feelings and in doing so he displayed a pleasant, magnetic personality. This is the reason that once the Republican rank-and-file saw and heard him, they forgot about the other Republican aspirants. It also is the reason why he will be elected in November, no matter who runs against him.

Strongest Ticket

In selecting Wendell Lewis Willkie for the presidency and Senator Charles L. McNary for the vice presidency, the Republican national convention selected the strongest possible ticket—a fact attested by the widespread commendation of the ticket in the press of the country, both Democratic and Republican.

The New Dealers without doubt will undertake to smear this ticket. Every effort will be made to paint Mr. Willkie as a creature of Wall Street—as a public utility magnate and to attribute to him all the sins ever committed in that quarter. Indeed, the New Dealers in their fright are even stooping to efforts to make it appear that Mr. Willkie in some way is sympathetic with Nazism.

But these efforts will fail—because such charges are untrue. For seven years the New Deal has tried to besmirch and destroy Wendell Willkie. It has been through his life and career with a fine sieve. But the effort has failed and it will fail again.

The country knows that Wendell Willkie is not a Wall Street tycoon —that he is not a rich playboy— that he worked his way by hard labor from the bottom to the top just as American boys in every generation do. It knows that what he has he has earned and that he has played square with his associates and with the customers of his companies.

In brief, the country knows—and as the campaign goes on will know better—that in Wendell Lewis Willkie it has a man of character and common sense—and it is such a man that the country today wants in the White House.

No Place for Witch Burners

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Intelligencer believes that the recently enacted legislation providing for the finger-printing of aliens is wise; that such identification is a necessary step in the protection of the country from the so-called fifth column activity. It also agrees with Mr. Roosevelt, that the law should be regarded as a measure of protection for "loyal aliens" who are the country's guests as well as a means of unmasking enemies within our gates. It feels, too, that the president's implied warning against the extreme application of the law was timely. We agree with him that it would be unfortunate if "any loyal aliens were subject to harassment."

This country is no place for witch burners. Our traditions of liberty and tolerance must be upheld. Indeed, it is in times such as these that we must be particularly careful to preserve all of the American way in all our dealings. Hysteria, intolerance, hasty action where aliens are concerned will not add anything to our protection. On the other hand, the application of restraint and realism to our anti-fifth column campaign will in no way impair the efficiency of the undertaking.

It is to be hoped that the public and officials alike will keep these simple truths in mind as the job of registering and fingerprinting the several million aliens residing in this country is carried on.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator Alva B. Adams, Democrat, of Colorado

We may disapprove, we do disapprove, we abhor what is going on in Europe, but how many American boys are we willing to throw upon the altar of martial sacrifice in order that affairs in Europe may be conducted and regulated as you and I would have them conducted and regulated?

Action Is Needed Behind Spending, Johnson Says

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON July 5.—Industrial mobilization isn't just madly appropriating billions. It isn't even necessarily the swift and unstudied placing of contracts. It is like the creation of a new industry for competition in quality, low-cost and speedy mass production.

Billions are necessary, but success is threatened if they are thrown away. Contracts with suppliers are necessary, but they are no good if they don't result in swift and acceptable production so regulated that all the separate parts come to the assembly line properly timed to all other deliveries and with no spoiled work or parts that do not fit.

Too Much Ballyhoo

I doubt if we are giving enough attention to either one of these principles. There is too much ballyhoo about billions. It tends to pacify the demand of the people for drive and effectiveness. That demand is the necessary pressure to procure the production and speed to end our present disgraceful defenselessness. Appropriations should be no greater for any period than can reasonably be spent in that period.

They should be made in the broadest and most flexible terms. If ours were a more businesslike administration which had not proved its willingness to use lump-sum appropriations for such surprise and purely political monstrosities as Quoddy and the Florida ship canal, it would be wiser than an item-by-item donation if we made the money available on some such broad designation as "for raising and supporting armies" and "providing and maintaining" a navy. That can't be done with this crowd. We might, as in WPA, find ourselves raising, supporting, providing and maintaining adagio dancers to "maintain the morale of the armed forces."

Not Bill's Line

This column began insisting years ago that we call in Bill Knudsen —but not in his present job of passing on and clearing contracts. What this situation needs is a great production man and Bill is the best we have. He may be good at contracts, but if he is it's just luck. That has not been his life's work. There are many men more expert in contracting.

What he should be doing is fitting army design and specification to civilian manufacture to insure the speediest, best and most economical production. Army design engineers are excellent, but few know civilian manufacture. Frequently a particular specification of steel is utterly unsuited to established machine tool equipment and practice. Slight changes would make it adaptable and not less effective in practical use. Often a beautiful blue print design presents problems and delays in machining and manufacture that could all be avoided and with an effect of greatly increased speed and economy.

Practicality Needed

Your designer is always a perfectionist. The whole secret of American mass production and sale—speed, quality and economy—has been due to hard-headed common sense production managers—usually graduate machinists—who knew how to compromise between drawing board perfection in material, precision and gadgets on one hand and practical limits and requirements on the other.

That is Bill Knudsen's specialty. That is what he should be doing—exclusively. It is also necessary to know that the contractor is not merely the low bidder but the surest operator. Knudsen knows that.

Not a Lecture

He hasn't been given that job. Nobody is doing it. This sounds like a trade school lecture. It isn't. It is the most important constructive criticism of what is being done. It is hard to dramatize it in barnyard language. But failure to recognize and provide for just this service cost us needless billions and months of avoidable deadly delay in the World War. God gave us time to fumble then. Maybe He won't this time.

Why do we have to fumble at all? The lesson was taught in 1918. But this administration's outfit if amateurs are too brilliant to need experience. They've got three whole Harrys' haven't they — Hopkins' Wallace and Morgenthau?—not to mention whole regiments of jazzy Joes'.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Ordinance and Spirit Both Gratifying

WHILE the ordinance banning the use of fireworks within the city limits is not a complete preventive and a state-wide law is needed to round out the prohibition in the interest of safety, nevertheless the first experience under it this week was highly gratifying. According to reports in hand at this writing it was almost completely effective.

As compared with the Fourth of July celebration a year ago, quiet and peace prevailed to an extraordinary extent this year and many expressions of gratitude and commendation have been heard on all sides. Everybody feels that the city fathers have done the right thing in adopting and enforcing the ordinance.

While it was a comparatively quiet Fourth of July observance, that was as it should have been this year of all years by reason of the consciousness on the part of citizens that it was a more solemn occasion than in many years in view of the grave problems that face the nation and the need for conserving our energies and resources for other things. That consciousness was amply demonstrated by the large attendance and patriotic ferver that marked the gathering at Constitution park which in both respects far outshone the one held the previous year.

For the fireworks ban and more especially for this sober manifestation of a greater consciousness of the meaning of liberty and of the need for protecting it, there is every reason to be grateful.

Britain's Navy Again Proves Its Worth

IT WAS, indeed, excruciating for the British to be obliged to go to battle at sea with its former ally, but in the circumstances it was fully justifiable. Franace, overpowered and ground beneath the heel of a ruthless victor, was forced to surrender its navy and its arms to the conqueror and he would have utilized all of them in his war of greed and hate against Britain, regardless of his soapy promises, which history has amply proved to be utterly worthless. Hence it was stern necessity that Britain faced and it is gratifying that it had a leader in Winston Churchill who had the courage to make a prompt decision, however painful, at a time when that was imperative and to follow it up with quick action.

The British succeeded splendidly in the undertaking and now fortunately has the bulk of the French fleet in its hands and practically all of the remainder out of commission for months to come. That is indeed heartening to all who sympathize with the democratic cause, as it gives Britain now a much better chance to cope with its enemy and possibly to defeat him in the end. Certainly the swift and effective action of the British navy sustained splendidly its tradition of victory and enhances the faith that its people have placed in its chief arm of defense.

Army Call Response Is Close to Requirements

THOSE who have been worried by reports that the response to the national call for army enlistments has been satisfactory will be relieved to learn that thus far the schedule has been very close to requirements. Last September the United States had a standing army of 167,000. In the ten months since then it has been increased by forty-three per cent.

Between September 16 and January 31, 60,000 recruits were accepted following President Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency. Another enlistment period which began on May 20 ended on July 1. Of the 15,000 asked for, all but a few hundred were obtained. If the current period, July and August, produces the 38,000 recruits hoped for, the United States for the first time since 1920, will have an army of 280,000 men, its full authorized peace-time strength.

Congress has, however, appropriated funds for an additional emergency expansion of 95,000, to bring the total strength of the army to 375,000 —or 125 per cent over the size of last September.

Until now it has been just as well to have accepted no more recruits than the service was prepared to equip and train properly. As the program proceeds for enlarging training facilities and obtaining more rifles and motorized apparatus, larger numbers can be accomodated in what is still a peace-time army. If the United States were in actual danger or even if trouble should break out in Latin America, the rate of enlistment would probably jump.

War Tanks Out Of the Clouds

THE RUSSIAN ARMY, which invented the "parachute troops" technique, employed by the Germans with much success in the Low Countries, now has added another innovation to modern mechanized warfare. In its advance into Rumania, the Red army, dispatches have said, successfully carried and landed "baby tanks" by large transport planes.

While military experts in Washington say that Russia has been experimenting for some years in aerial transport of five-ton and seven-ton tanks, the feat in Rumania marked the first successful use of this technique in actual military operations. Far more important than employment of this technique against a Rumanian force which, according to dispatches, was so surprised that it didn't even take riffes from barracks racks to resist, is the ominous hint of the possibility of German use of similar tactics in the threatened blitzkrieg on Britain.

Inasmuch as the Germans proved themselves far more skillful and scientific than the Russians in the parachute tehcnique invented by the latter, it is to be presumed that the Germans will be more efficient than the Russians in aerial transport of tanks. This obviously gives the British something more to worry about.

Military observers will be prompt, however, to note one or two differences between the Russian exploit in Rumania and the problem of flying German tanks to Britain. Obviously it would take a fleet of such gigantic transport planes as the world never has seen to fly German 80-ton super tanks to Britain—and, even if such gigantic transport planes secretely have been built, they would make ideal targets for small, fast fighting planes of the Hurricane or Spitfire type.

It seems more reasonable to suppose that the Germans will content themselves with trying to fly light "baby tanks" across the Channel, leaving the super tanks to be carried by boat—if and when the Germans succeed in annihilating the British fleet and air force, destroying British coast defenses and immobilizing British troops so that they cannot attack disembarking German forces.

Baby tanks and parachute troops, flown across the Channel, can help in performing all these necessary preliminaries to successful invasion of England—if British fliers fail to prevent the tanks and troops from alighting and if British land forces fail to put them out of action after they alight.

These are "ifs" which the German high command undoubtedly is trying to devise means to consummate. At all events, the Russian strategy in Rumania is a clear forecast of one of the new perils of mechanized warfare which the British and all nations which seek to resist aggression must be prepared to meet.

Lynching Seems To Be On the Way Out

ANOTHER MARK has been scored for the march of American civilization. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskagee Institute, the negro school in Alabama that has for many years recorded lynchings and attempted lynchings in the United States, sends its semi-annual report thereof to the newspapers of the country, and it is worth applauding for it carries a blank.

"According to the information compiled in the Department of Records and Research," Patterson states, "there is no record of a lynching for the first six months of 1940. This information is based on news releases and on investigations made by persons living in various areas."

Thus the reign of law over the ungovernable passions of man goes forward. There is no excuse for mob law and it is good, indeed, to see that it is being completely stamped out in this country. Let it be hoped that Tuskagee's next report will be as gratifying as this one.

New Dealers think war would mean a third term, but others think a third term means war.

The Browser's Findings

Marshall Maslin

The Browser has decided that, whether he knows it or not, Hitler has made a grave tactical error in capturing and keeping Mr. P. G. Wodehouse, the eminent persiflageur and humorist. You know, of course, that Mr. Wodehouse was having a house party in his summer home in France while the German army was advancing. He didn't take the war seriously enough to believe the Nazis were coming to town—until they came in the front door and removed that delightful humorist from circulation. And as he trudged off to Germany he remarked that now he might have time to write a serious book. . . But Hitler should exchange Wodehouse promptly. Humorists are a dangerous commodity. They are an element disruptive to any solemn or pretentious society. More powerful than TNT, more subtly subversive than any Fifth Columnist, the humorist in action can down dictators, overturn tyrants, and may even nullify the nazis. . . And, besides, what's the reading public going to do for humor with a Wodehouse tucked away in a German prison camp? Are there no limits to war?

The Browser has suddenly remembered a passage in Upton Sinclair's "World's End" that is very discriminating on Mr. Sinclair's part. He is describing the attitude of the lovely Beauty Budd toward a young English girl's moral standards. Beauty, who is herself somewhat declasse, is upset because the girl is violating the old code without feeling that she is doing wrong, whereas whenever Beauty violates her own code she knows she is sinning—and that makes it all right. Interesting point of view, don't you think? And an accurate analysis of the conventional sinner's mind.

If you are like the Browser, always with an eye out for a book for a small boy or girl, you will be glad to know that the Macmillan Co. has just published a fat book of "Story and Verse for Children", selected and edited by Miriam Blanton Huber, who must have a child's heart. The book is rich in old favorites and the Browser has spent hours and hours poring over it. It begins with seventy nursery rhymes. Then comes a series of verse for children, like Stevenson's "My Bed Is a Boat"; Eugene Field's "Wynken, Blynken and Nod", and James Whitcomb Riley's "Little Orphant Annie". Next are fairy stories and poems about birds and animals. Then poems by Robert Frost and Robert Browning, Vachel Lindsay and Emily Dickinson, and a group of humorous verse beginning with Carryl's "Plaint of the Camel" and ending with Holmes' "Wonderful One-Hoss Shay". . . The first 200 pages are poetry, the last 600 pages are old tales, legends, make-believe stories, a section on the making of America and a concluding one on "workers and their work". . . "Story and Verse for Children" is the book the Browser has been seeking for years.

BOOK ENDS: Dutton and "The Virginia Quarterly Review" have joined to offer an annual award of $2,500 and a gold medal for "the best book manuscript submitted by a Southern author". And they define "a Southern author" as a person born in the South, although he may at present be living elsewhere, or even a damyankee who has been living in the South for the past five years. They don't want any poetry, but the manuscript may be fiction or non-fiction. Contest closes April 13, 1941. . . Quotation from a sentence in "Great Wings and Small" (Macmillan): "Today the stuffed skin and hollow eggshell of a great auk, when sold at auction, bring more than the price of three new eight-cylinder sedans". And imagine how many hopeful young authors the proceeds would support for how many years? It amazes Marsh Maslin.

Wendell Willkie

The reason for such ejaculations of wonderment spring, of course, from the suddenness with which Mr. Willkie emerged as a major figure on the national political scene. Without previous political experience, only a few years distant from the Democratic party and without organized support, Mr. Willkie became the presidential nominee of a major party within 48 days after he formally launched his campaign.

It is no wonder the country is amazed and political observers bewildered. Nothing like it ever before has happened in this country. Some draw a parallel between the rise of the Willkie star and that of William Jennings Bryan in 1896.

But really the two events have little in common between them. Bryan had been in Congress before his nomination and many state conventions had instructed for him. The story about Bryan stampeding the 1896 Democratic national convention with the "Cross of Gold" speech contains more legend than fact.

Nomination Unprecedented

The truth is that there is no precedent for the Willkie nomination, just as there never has been a session of a national convention like the one at which the Republican standard bearer was nominated.

But there is no secret or mystery regarding the forces which brought about the Willkie nomination. Mr. Willkie several weeks previously at the National Press Club in Washington gave the key to the "secret." He said that success was meeting his efforts because he was "in front of a trend." What he meant was that he stood for the things which the American people had come to believe and to want in the last few years.

It has been obvious to most political observers that the American people had become wearied of emergencies, continued unemployment and depression, experimentation, wasteful spending and incompetence in their federal government.

Mr. Willkie voiced their feelings and in doing so he displayed a pleasant, magnetic personality. This is the reason that once the Republican rank-and-file saw and heard him, they forgot about the other Republican aspirants. It also is the reason why he will be elected in November, no matter who runs against him.

Strongest Ticket

In selecting Wendell Lewis Willkie for the presidency and Senator Charles L. McNary for the vice presidency, the Republican national convention selected the strongest possible ticket—a fact attested by the widespread commendation of the ticket in the press of the country, both Democratic and Republican.

The New Dealers without doubt will undertake to smear this ticket. Every effort will be made to paint Mr. Willkie as a creature of Wall Street—as a public utility magnate and to attribute to him all the sins ever committed in that quarter. Indeed, the New Dealers in their fright are even stooping to efforts to make it appear that Mr. Willkie in some way is sympathetic with Nazism.

But these efforts will fail—because such charges are untrue. For seven years the New Deal has tried to besmirch and destroy Wendell Willkie. It has been through his life and career with a fine sieve. But the effort has failed and it will fail again.

The country knows that Wendell Willkie is not a Wall Street tycoon —that he is not a rich playboy— that he worked his way by hard labor from the bottom to the top just as American boys in every generation do. It knows that what he has he has earned and that he has played square with his associates and with the customers of his companies.

In brief, the country knows—and as the campaign goes on will know better—that in Wendell Lewis Willkie it has a man of character and common sense—and it is such a man that the country today wants in the White House.

Business and The People

From the Industrial News Review

Writing in Fortune a short time ago, Wendell Willkie said: "This effort to separate 'business' from the ordinary life of the people and to set it in a distinct and inferior category represents a profoundly false conception of our economic system. There are about 10,000,000 private enterprises in the United States, which employ about 34,000,000 people, who in turn support many millions of other people. Business is a part of life and a way of life. By it we earn our bread, build our homes, care for our children, find expression for ourselves. Every one of us lives directly or indirectly by business . . . It is business, in the broadest sense of the word—including industry and technology, and including the modern farm, which is a business enterprise—that has made the American people so great."

For a long time, we, the people, who live by business, have sat supinely by while the public servants who manage our governmental affairs denounced business, reviled business, fought business, and attempted to destroy private business at every opportunity. The result was the greatest and longest business depression in our history.

And now, almost overnight, we find it imperative that we embark on an unprecedented program of defense rearmament. Do we turn to politicians in this emergency? No! We turn to business, to industry, to the great factories of America. The principal members of the preparedness board lately appointed by the President are business men. And that is as it should be. Even as industry must provide us with the tools of peace, so must it provide us with the weapons of defense.

It has taken the direst of crises to reawaken us to the role that private industry plays in our lives. Let us not forget it again

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Intelligencer believes that the recently enacted legislation providing for the finger-printing of aliens is wise; that such identification is a necessary step in the protection of the country from the so-called fifth column activity. It also agrees with Mr. Roosevelt, that the law should be regarded as a measure of protection for "loyal aliens" who are the country's guests as well as a means of unmasking enemies within our gates. It feels, too, that the president's implied warning against the extreme application of the law was timely. We agree with him that it would be unfortunate if "any loyal aliens were subject to harassment."

This country is no place for witch burners. Our traditions of liberty and tolerance must be upheld. Indeed, it is in times such as these that we must be particularly careful to preserve all of the American way in all our dealings. Hysteria, intolerance, hasty action where aliens are concerned will not add anything to our protection. On the other hand, the application of restraint and realism to our anti-fifth column campaign will in no way impair the efficiency of the undertaking.

It is to be hoped that the public and officials alike will keep these simple truths in mind as the job of registering and fingerprinting the several million aliens residing in this country is carried on.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator Alva B. Adams, Democrat, of Colorado

We may disapprove, we do disapprove, we abhor what is going on in Europe, but how many American boys are we willing to throw upon the altar of martial sacrifice in order that affairs in Europe may be conducted and regulated as you and I would have them conducted and regulated?

Action Is Needed Behind Spending, Johnson Says

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON July 5.—Industrial mobilization isn't just madly appropriating billions. It isn't even necessarily the swift and unstudied placing of contracts. It is like the creation of a new industry for competition in quality, low-cost and speedy mass production.

Billions are necessary, but success is threatened if they are thrown away. Contracts with suppliers are necessary, but they are no good if they don't result in swift and acceptable production so regulated that all the separate parts come to the assembly line properly timed to all other deliveries and with no spoiled work or parts that do not fit.

Too Much Ballyhoo

I doubt if we are giving enough attention to either one of these principles. There is too much ballyhoo about billions. It tends to pacify the demand of the people for drive and effectiveness. That demand is the necessary pressure to procure the production and speed to end our present disgraceful defenselessness. Appropriations should be no greater for any period than can reasonably be spent in that period.

They should be made in the broadest and most flexible terms. If ours were a more businesslike administration which had not proved its willingness to use lump-sum appropriations for such surprise and purely political monstrosities as Quoddy and the Florida ship canal, it would be wiser than an item-by-item donation if we made the money available on some such broad designation as "for raising and supporting armies" and "providing and maintaining" a navy. That can't be done with this crowd. We might, as in WPA, find ourselves raising, supporting, providing and maintaining adagio dancers to "maintain the morale of the armed forces."

This column began insisting years ago that we call in Bill Knudsen —but not in his present job of passing on and clearing contracts. What this situation needs is a great production man and Bill is the best we have. He may be good at contracts, but if he is it's just luck. That has not been his life's work. There are many men more expert in contracting.

What he should be doing is fitting army design and specification to civilian manufacture to insure the speediest, best and most economical production. Army design engineers are excellent, but few know civilian manufacture. Frequently a particular specification of steel is utterly unsuited to established machine tool equipment and practice. Slight changes would make it adaptable and not less effective in practical use. Often a betautiful blue print design presents problems and delays in machining and manufacture that could all be avoided and with an effect of greatly increased speed and economy.

Practicality Needed

Your designer is always a perfectionist. The whole secret of American mass production and sale—speed, quality and economy—has been due to hard-headed common sense production managers—usually graduate machinists—who knew how to compromise between drawing board perfection in material, precision and gadgets on one hand and practical limits and requirements on the oth-

That is Bill Knudsen's specialty. That is what he should be doing—exclusively. It is also necessary to know that the contractor is not merely the low bidder but the surest operator. Knudsen knows that.

Not a Lecture

He hasn't been given that job. Nobody is doing it. This sounds like a trade school lecture. It isn't. It is the most important constructive criticism of what is being done. It is hard to dramatize it in barnyard language. But failure to recognize and provide for just this service cost us needless billions and months of avoidable deadly delay in the World War. God gave us time to fumble then. Maybe He won't this time.

Why do we have to fumble at all? The lesson was taught in 1918. But this administration's outfit if amateurs are too brilliant to need experience. They've got three whole Harrys' haven't they — Hopkins' Wallace and Morgenthau?—not to mention whole regiments of jazzy Joes'.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Maps during the middle ages showed the geographic location of Paradise on earth. It was put at the top of the map, and to indicate its location, the map usually bore a picture of Eden.

Prunes had their origin in western Asia around the Caucasus mountains and the Caspian sea. They were carried by settlers to other climes and are grown today for California.

'The Democratic Party Left Me,' Says Willkie

Republican Party Nominee Seems To Enjoy Being Heckled about Political Shift

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

"Tell him," said Wendell Willkie, "that I haven't left the Democratic party; the Democratic party left me."

It's the stock reply when people ask why the president of Commonwealth and Southern and his wife changed their registration to Republican, why Willkie turned from the New Deal booster who put $150 in the campaign pot for Roosevelt in 1932, into a Republican leader.

Willkie with his blaring, fresh Indiana voice, enjoys giving that answer when a heckler from the gallery pops the question, and it wows the audience.

Since childhood, Willkie has believed in individual freedom. He holds, too, that large corporations sanely run are efficient, and give management an opportunity to serve the public at bargain prices, where smaller units fail.

His Is A One-Man Show

Willkie knows this corporation efficiency stems from one-man or small-group decisions. By many accounts, he himself is a one-man boss of the system he runs, a system spread through ten operating companies into several states.

And yet this same Willkie is a passionate believer in the federal system of government with maximum freedom for individuals, and decentralized government of the states in a country whose Supreme Court has recently recognized that state lines have been dimmed by nationally operated corporations, transport lines, distribution systems.

Willkie says the problem of America often has been big business' abuse of its powers, but that now it's the problem of big government abusing business.

Loses But Wins

His argument stems from his fight with Dave Lillienthal, another Indiana boy who made good, but in the TVA, Willkie fought TVA because it invaded his Tennessee public utility zone. He argued there's no soap for either consumer, government or private corporation if you have two sets of power plants and power lines serving the same communities.

And in the heat of the fight, with Congress pouring more and more millions into TVA, he proposed to sell out. Suspicious, New Dealers took a deep breath, backed a national power policy committee and renewed the scrap.

Eventually, they decided Willkie meant business. Thus Wendell Willkie lost the fight, but he won a war.

"His constant shrieking was worth $30,000,000 to Commonwealth & Southern," a New Deal bigwig is supposed to have said.

For the government paid $78,600,000 to Willkie to abandon TVA territory — $30,000,000 more than they had planned to. And the fight gave Willkie a national reputation.

History Of A Boom

The Willkie boom for president began on the typewriter of his secretary, clicking out the Willkie, philosophy in magazine articles, speeches.

Gen. Hugh Johnson and Arthur Krock asked newspaper readers why Willkie was not presidential material. Elihu Root's grandson, Oren Root, Jr., stepped out of a New York law firm, and started Willkie-for-President clubs.

More astonishing was Russel W. Davenport's reaction to Willkie's article in "Fortune," outlining an American creed. Davenport, managing editor of the magazine, quit his job and went to work for Willkie for president early this spring.

"I tried to tell him I thought he was making a serious mistake," says Willkie.

A rough and tumble speaker who loves good argument.

Willkie is careless of clothes and hair. He admits he thinks an Indiana twang and shabbiness of dress is an asset in his business. He owns up to a joint fortune with his wife of a half million dollars.

A man of brutal candor, yet he is full of all the tricks of the oratorical trade, a political "it" man who bowled over a presidential nomination with a crew of amateurs.

"It's not me; it's the trend!" That's Willkie's explanation of it.

'The Democratic Party Left Me,' Says Willkie

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

"Tell him," said Wendell Willkie, "that I haven't left the Democratic party; the Democratic party left me."

It's the stock reply when people ask why the president of Commonwealth and Southern and his wife changed their registration to Republican, why Willkie turned from the New Deal booster who put $150 in the campaign pot for Roosevelt in 1932, into a Republican leader.

Willkie with his blaring, fresh Indiana voice enjoys giving that answer when a heckler from the gallery pops the question, and it wows the audience.

Since childhood, Willkie has believed in individual freedom. He holds, too, that large corporations sanely run are efficient, and give management an opportunity to serve the public at bargain prices, where smaller units fail.

His Is A One-Man Show

Willkie knows this corporation efficiency stems from one-man or small-group decisions. By many accounts, he himself is a one-man boss of the system he runs, a system spread through ten operating companies into several states.

And yet this same Willkie is a passionate believer in the federal system of government with maximum freedom for individuals, and decentralized government of the states in a country whose Supreme Court has recently recognized that state lines have been dimmed by nationally operated corporations, transport lines, distribution systems.

Willkie says the problem of America often has been big business' abuse of its powers, but that now it's the problem of big government abusing business.

Loses But Wins

His argument stems from his fight with Dave Lillienthal, another Indiana boy who made good, but in the TVA, Willkie fought TVA because it invaded his Tennessee public utility zone. He argued there's no soap for either consumer, government or private corporation if you have two sets of power plants and power lines serving the same communities.

And in the heat of the fight, with Congress pouring more and more millions into TVA, he proposed to sell out. Suspicious, New Dealers took a deep breath, backed a national power policy committee and renewed the scrap.

Eventually, they decided Willkie meant business. Thus Wendell Willkie lost the fight, but he won a war.

"His constant shrieking was worth $30,000,000 to Commonwealth & Southern," a New Deal bigwig is supposed to have said.

For the government paid $78,600,000 to Willkie to abandon TVA territory — $30,000,000 more than they had planned to. And the fight gave Willkie a national reputation.

History Of A Boom

The Willkie boom for president began on the typewriter of his secretary, clicking out the Willkie, philosophy in magazine articles, speeches.

Gen. Hugh Johnson and Arthur Krock asked newspaper readers why Willkie was not presidential material. Elihu Root's grandson, Oren Root, Jr., stepped out of a New York law firm, and started Willkie-for-President clubs.

More astonishing was Russel W. Davenport's reaction to Willkie's article in "Fortune," outlining an American creed. Davenport, managing editor of the magazine, quit his job and went to work for Willkie for president early this spring.

"I tried to tell him I thought he was making a serious mistake," says Willkie.

A rough and tumble speaker who loves good argument.

Willkie is careless of clothes and hair. He admits he thinks an Indiana twang and shabbiness of dress is an asset in his business. He owns up to a joint fortune with his wife of a half million dollars.

A man of brutal candor, yet he is full of all the tricks of the oratorical trade, a political "it" man who bowled over a presidential nomination with a crew of amateurs.

"It's not me; it's the trend!" That's Willkie's explanation of it.

The Maryland Way is the American Way

Our forefathers fought and bled for the right of free men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That's the good old American Way, the good old Maryland Way! Force and compulsion prevail in foreign lands. But not over here! In free America and free Maryland, law-abiding citizens can pursue happiness; can enjoy, among other good things of life, good Maryland beer, "the moderation beverage." Good beer brings happiness to thousands of good Marylanders—and benefits thousands more. Over seven million dollars in state, federal and local taxes paid in 1939 . . . thousands of dollars in wages paid . . . thousands of dollars in purchases made in Maryland by Maryland brewers. . . . a few reasons why Maryland's Brewing Industry is truly a "good neighbor" in the land of the free.

THE GIRL with the seeing eye avoids a lot of beauty pitfalls. She watches the feminine merry-go-round, regards this and that which have to do with dress, make up, manners and carriage, makes notes on her mental cuffs and profits thereby. She is a true goddess of the beauty hunt; knows what she is about.

Bad examples teach as well as good ones. She asks herself "do I look like that?" Awkward women appear so terrible that she yanks up her own spinal column and walks with spirit. Shrieking women give her food for thought; what about her own voice and the way she uses it? Untidy women lead her to cultivate neatness.

This girl about whom we are preaching this day spots a young lady in the restaurant who has her legs twined around the chair legs, which picture promptly inspires our observer to place her own cute little tootsies on the floor. There is also present, perhaps, the cute dolly who is making herself a new complexion at the table, making also during the process some grotesque and unsightly mugs. Our heroine won't do that any more.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work.

YESTERDAY: Linda takes Caroline to live with her. After Caroline goes to bed, Linda steps out on her balcony and hears Robert arguing with a woman in his apartment above. He sees Linda and climbs down. Just then somebody appears on Robert's balcony.

"I see you clearly, my dear. Please don't look so frightened."

CHAPTER EIGHT

AS THE DOOR opened above her, on Robert's balcony, Linda glanced up. It was an instinctive gesture. She was not aware that she hesitated in her movement toward the hidden part of her own small terraced porch. But the few seconds required for that voluntary gesture were all the occupant of the higher balcony needed.

A dazzling, brilliant flashlight described an arc around Linda's face. She knew that she stood clearly revealed to whomever stood up there, while she herself could see nothing. A voice, low, rich, dramatic, entirely in control of itself, spoke in the sudden silence.

"I see you clearly, my dear. Now I know where Bob is. Sort of a retreat for him you maintain, I imagine. It's sweet of you, but no help at all. I always get what I want—and I am marrying him! I'm glad I witnessed tonight's by-play. I'll know you when we meet again."

Before the speech ended Linda felt a strong hand pulling her out of the flashlight's ray, and another hand on her mouth, preventing any words she might have spoken.

Not until the door upstairs closed did Rob speak, though. His words were low, hurried, dismayed. "Good grief, the old girl will make your life a bedlam until I get her convinced I'm as important to you as last night's newspaper. I'm no end sorry, but I'll get you out of it."

Even yet Linda had no fear, there in the April night on the balcony with the monastary dreaming just below, and the towers of the city, ghosted now, and silent, hemming in the garden. She said:

"Her voice is beautiful, although it said such spiteful things. She might have been giving an impersonation, playing a role. Who is she?"

"Good girl, Linda! You got it. She's Mina Nevins, the actress, and maybe it is a role."

"Mina Nevins!" She knew that name. The actress' face and voice had been favorites as far back as Linda could remember. But the woman wasn't young any more. Not old, but burdened with years so far as her favorite roles went. She must have passed forty long ago. The stage still honored her, asked for her in mature roles, but she liked the younger parts of yesterday. So there hadn't been so many appearances lately.

But her name spelled magic anywhere, even on a balcony still ringing with her insults.

"I have to dash in a second, Linda, but I owe you an explanation. It sounds fishy, I know, but it's the truth. I had an uncle who died a long time ago. I guess I inherited the old boy's chin or nose or something. Anyway, Mina was engaged to him and when she saw me she started to believe in reincarnation. She unpacked her old affection and offered it to me and, well, I can't make her see sense."

His voice sounded so forlorn and baffled that unconsciously Linda slipped her hand through his arm. "She's good material for a psychiatrist, I take it, isn't she?"

"Splendid, but nobody knows, and I can't barge in and say, "Examine this woman. She thinks I'm my uncle." No, I have to manage some other way. May I use your rooms for a thoroughfare again? I seem to land on you like a ton of bricks every 24 hours."

"Where are you going?"

"Back upstairs. I'm not getting you into this."

"Can you put her out?"

"I'll go to my club after I tell the lady a few truths. Sometimes I think I'd like the peace of the war in China."

"Let me know how you come out, won't you?" Linda asked. "Drop by tomorrow."

Caroline stirred and opened her eyes as Linda let Rob out the door. "I thought I saw a trousered person," she said.

"You did," Linda answered, and explained briefly. "It's sort of silly—nothing that ever can touch you."

She was to remember those words such a little while later. Nothing that ever can touch you! But life moved in widening ripples and one circle opened to enclose another as the chain went on.

At the moment Linda went to bed, forgetful of the curious chain of happenings that had made her pedestrian life grow exciting within 24 hours. When she awakened at 8 o'clock in response to the whirring of a silvery alarm, she thought of Ronnie, not Rob.

She would see Ronnie today. Some time before five he would call and tell her where to meet him. She must look attractive, as smart as Sarah Markley.

She stretched luxuriously, remembering that she had a slim black suit, youthful as a new spring breeze, which went with a ruffled pink organdy blouse and a bonnet of horsehair lace, that looked like an old-fashioned valentine. She had spent too much on the ensemble, she had thought. Now she knew she hadn't. She would be femininity and smartness combined.

So, at a quarter of five she sat at her desk in the agency. Ever since morning she had been waiting for Ronnie to call. Each time she lifted the receiver she expected to hear his gay, low voice.

Surely, she told herself at 3 o'clock, he would get word to her before four. And now it was a quarter of five, ten of five, five of five.

Her heart felt strange and numb and her body dragged. How could just one message from one man do this to you? And hundreds of things could be detaining Ronnie. Of course they could. Only—she knew they weren't.

She outlined her lips in braver red, dusted a brief powder puff across her nose. And the telephone rang. No sense now in growing needlessly excited. None at all, she cautioned herself, as she answered.

"Linda, honey?" With the voice across town speaking her name, Linda felt the tight bands around her heart relax, felt strength, sweet and clean and new, flow through her veins. Oh, it wasn't fair that one man's voice could change the world for a girl. Not fair, but ever so true.

"Yes, Ronnie," she answered happily.

Then, as he hesitated, her heart toppled again. Perhaps he had called to say that he could not meet her.

"Linda, how about the Iridium room at the St. Regis? Can you come right away?"

The Iridium room! It represented wealth, gaiety, assurance. She was glad she had worn the new suit and the frivolous hat.

"I'm there waiting," Ronnie was saying, and she wondered if his voice was embarrassed or the singing wires could work a change in tone.

MAKE AN ENTRY FOR HIM

IF YOUR partner's suit is on the way to establishment against a hostile No Trump contract, you should usually bend every energy to helping him score the remnants of it. Frequently the fate of the contract will depend on whether he has sufficient entries to get in the lead after he has one or more cards of it set up. So on every trick that comes along, your job is to examine the situation closely and see if there is anything you can do to help make an entry for him, even throwing away possible winners of your own at times in order to promote his lower cards.

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass

Since no slam conventions were being used, South passed North's invitational bid of 4-No Trumps, and West made the good old-fashioned lead of his fourth-best spade. East won with the A and returned the 8 to the K. The heart 3 brought the 7 from West and the Q from dummy.

East studied the trick. It dawned on him that, if the 3 was a singleton, his partner had the A and 9. So he himself played the 10 on North's Q. When the K was then led from dummy, East put on the J, and declarer's goose was cooked.

West got that trick with the A and led a third spade, which North won. When a third heart was led from dummy, East had the 8 to play on it, so that West's 9 was a winner of the third trick for the side, and the spade 6 then set the contract, which was just one trick too high.

If East had played his heart 8 on either of the first two tricks of that suit, he would have won the third trick instead of his partner, and the thirteenth spade never could have been gathered in for the setting trick.

CHAPTER EIGHT

AS THE DOOR opened above her, on Robert's balcony, Linda glanced up. It was an instinctive gesture. She was not aware that she hesitated in her movement toward the hidden part of her own small terraced porch. But the few seconds required for that voluntary gesture were all the occupant of the higher balcony needed.

A dazzling, brilliant flashlight described an arc around Linda's face. She knew that she stood clearly revealed to whomever stood up there, while she herself could see nothing. A voice, low, rich, dramatic, entirely in control of itself, spoke in the sudden silence.

"I see you clearly, my dear. Now I know where Rob is. Sort of a retreat for him you maintain, I imagine. It's sweet of you, but no help at all. I always get what I want—and I am marrying him! I'm glad I witnessed tonight's byplay. I'll know you when we meet again."

Before the speech ended Linda felt a strong hand pulling her out of the flashlight's ray, and another hand on her mouth, preventing any words she might have spoken.

Not until the door upstairs closed did Rob speak, though. His words were low, hurried, dismayed. "Good grief, the old girl will make your life a bedlam until I get her convinced I'm as important to you as last night's newspaper. I'm no end sorry, but I'll get you out of it."

Even yet Linda had no fear, there in the April night on the balcony with the monastary dreaming just below, and the towers of the city, ghosted now, and silent, hemming in the garden. She said:

"Her voice is beautiful, although it said such spiteful things. She might have been giving an impersonation, playing a role. Who is she?"

"Good girl, Linda! You got it. She's Mina Nevins, the actress, and maybe it is a role."

"Mina Nevins!" She knew that name. The actress' face and voice had been favorites as far back as Linda could remember. But the woman wasn't young any more. Not old, but burdened with years so far as her favorite roles went. She must have passed forty long ago. The stage still honored her, asked for her in mature roles, but she liked the younger parts of yesterday. So there hadn't been so many appearances lately.

But her name spelled magic anywhere, even on a balcony still ringing with her insults.

"I have to dash in a second, Linda, but I owe you an explanation. It sounds fishy, I know, but it's the truth. I had an uncle who died a long time ago. I guess I inherited the old boy's chin or nose or something. Anyway, Mina was engaged to him and when she saw me she started to believe in reincarnation. She unpacked her old affection and offered it to me and, well, I can't make her see sense."

His voice sounded so forlorn and baffled that unconsciously Linda slipped her hand through his arm. "She's good material for a psychiatrist, I take it, isn't she?"

"Splendid, but nobody knows, and I can't barge in and say, "Examine this woman. She thinks I'm my uncle." No, I have to manage some other way. May I use your rooms for a thoroughfare again? I seem to land on you like a ton of bricks every 24 hours."

"Where are you going?"

"Back upstairs. I'm not getting you into this."

"Can you put her out?"

"I'll go to my club after I tell the lady a few truths. Sometimes I think I'd like the peace of the war in China."

"Let me know how you come out, won't you?" Linda asked. "Drop by tomorrow."

Caroline stirred and opened her eyes as Linda let Rob out the door. "I thought I saw a trousered person," she said.

"You did," Linda answered, and explained briefly. "It's sort of silly—nothing that ever can touch you."

She was to remember those words such a little while later. Nothing that ever can touch you! But life moved in widening ripples and one circle opened to enclose another as the chain went on.

At the moment Linda went to bed, forgetful of the curious chain of happenings that had made her pedestrian life grow exciting within 24 hours. When she awakened at 8 o'clock in response to the whirring of a silvery alarm, she thought of Ronnie, not Rob.

She would see Ronnie today. Some time before five he would call and tell her where to meet him. She must look attractive, as smart as Sarah Markley.

She stretched luxuriously, remembering that she had a slim black suit, youthful as a new spring breeze, which went with a ruffled pink organdy blouse and a bonnet of horsehair lace, that looked like an old-fashioned valentine. She had spent too much on the ensemble, she had thought. Now she knew she hadn't. She would be femininity and smartness combined.

So, at a quarter of five she sat at her desk in the agency. Ever since morning she had been waiting for Ronnie to call. Each time she lifted the receiver she expected to hear his gay, low voice.

Surely, she told herself at 3 o'clock, he would get word to her before four. And now it was a quarter of five, ten of five, five of five.

Her heart felt strange and numb and her body dragged. How could just one message from one man do this to you? And hundreds of things could be detaining Ronnie. Of course they could. Only—she knew they weren't.

She outlined her lips in braver red, dusted a brief powder puff across her nose. And the telephone rang. No sense now in growing needlessly excited. None at all, she cautioned herself, as she answered.

"Linda, honey?" With the voice across town speaking her name, Linda felt the tight bands around her heart relax, felt strength, sweet and clean and new, flow through her veins. Oh, it wasn't fair that one man's voice could change the world for a girl. Not fair, but ever so true.

"Yes, Ronnie," she answered happily.

Then, as he hesitated, her heart toppled again. Perhaps he had called to say that he could not meet her.

"Linda, how about the Iridium room at the St. Regis? Can you come right away?"

The Iridium room! It represented wealth, gaiety, assurance. She was glad she had worn the new suit and the frivolous hat.

"I'm there waiting," Ronnie was saying, and she wondered if his voice was embarrassed or the singing wires could work a change in tone.

MAKE AN ENTRY FOR HIM

IF YOUR partner's suit is on the way to establishment against a hostile No Trump contract, you should usually bend every energy to helping him score the remnants of it. Frequently the fate of the contract will depend on whether he has sufficient entries to get in the lead after he has one or more cards of it set up. So on every trick that comes along, your job is to examine the situation closely and see if there is anything you can do to help make an entry for him, even throwing away possible winners of your own at times in order to promote his lower cards.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East

Since no slam conventions were being used, South passed North's invitational bid of 4-No Trumps, and West made the good old-fashioned lead of a his fourth-best spade. East won with the A and returned the 8 to the K. The heart 3 brought the 7 from West and the Q from dummy.

East studied the trick. It dawned on him that, if the 3 was a singleton, his partner had the A and 9. So he himself played the 10 on North's Q. When the K was then led from dummy, East put on the J, and declarer's goose was cooked.

West got that trick with the A and led a third spade, which North won. When a third heart was led from dummy, East had the 8 to play on it, so that West's 9 was a winner of the third trick for the side, and the spade 6 then set the contract, which was just one trick too high.

If East had played his heart 8 on either of the first two tricks of that suit, he would have won the third trick instead of his partner, and the thirteenth spade never could have been gathered in for the setting trick.

Cookies and pineapple frost, a treat for youngsters that not many adults would refuse.

Catering to Young Palates Does Adults a Good Turn, Too

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

When youngsters speak out their food likes, it behooves us grown-ups to listen. We can learn a lot from scientifically-reared young moderns. Specialized child feeding has gone far in forming sensible food habits and in building sturdy bodies.

Children naturally prefer simple food, well cooked and attractively served. They enjoy real food flavors and do not want them disguised by highly seasoned gravies, rich stuffings, pungent sauces.

But youngsters, like the rest of us, do like variety in their menus. Here are some new dishes especially planned to appeal to the young folks—and you'll find that oldsters will enjoy them, too.

For a speedy pick-up on a sultry day serve FRUIT CHILLS. They have plenty of minerals, acids and vitamins, they're easy to make up and they will keep two weeks if you store them in a very cold place. Make them this way: Boil together for 2 minutes, 2 cups of granulated sugar and 3 cups of water. Cool and add 2 cups each of pineapple juice, grape juice and orange juice and ½ cup lemon juice. Pour into glass jars, cover and keep in the refrigerator. This makes a concentrated base. When you're ready to serve, half-fill glasses with the fruit blend and use cold water for the rest.

Build a hot weather luncheon around this CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE. To make the syrup, boil together until thick and creamy, 6 squares chocolate, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1½ cups water. Stir constantly while cooking. Cool, add 2 teaspoons of vanilla. Use 2 tablespoons of this syrup for each cup of milk. Beat or shake until frothy. Top with marshmallows, beaten egg whites or whipped cream. Serve this with a meat and a lettuce sandwich, some fruit and a few sugar cookies, and you have a very satisfying luncheon or supper.

Children will crave the coolness of this SUMMER SALAD BOWL. It is as refreshing to taste as it looks. Mix together ½ cup grated raw carrots (very crisp), ½ cup each of diced celery, cabbage and cooked beets, ½ cup cooked meat) beef, veal, lamb or chicken), 2 hard cooked eggs, sliced, 1 teaspoon minced parsley and ¼ teaspoon each, chopped onions and salt. Moisten with salad dressing and serve in a bowl lined with crisp salad greens. Sprinkle with grated hard-cooked egg yolks.

VELVET CUSTARD SAUCE gives a festive touch to fruit, gelatin and cake desserts. It is a nutritious summer food, gay in color. A jar of the sauce will keep two days in the refrigerator. Beat 2 egg yolks, add ⅓ cup granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt and 2½ cups milk. Cook in a double boiler over low heat. Stir constantly. The sauce is done when it thickens slightly. Be careful not to overcook it. Immediately remove the upper part of the boiler and beat the sauce for a minute. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon each of lemon and almond extracts and ¼ cup shredded almonds. Cool and chill.

You can vary the flavor of this sauce by adding, when served, fresh peaches, pears, oranges or bananas and a little chopped candied fruits, cocoanut or grated sweet chocolate.

PINEAPPLE FROST

1 standard measuring cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice
1 scoop vanilla ice cream

Shake to a froth and serve in a tall glass.

Cottage Cheese An Attractive Summer Food

COLLEGE PARK, July 5—Cottage cheese is one of the most attractive summer foods and should be appreciated by more people, it is stated by Miss Margaret McPheeters, specialist in nutrition for the University of Maryland Extension Service. Few people realize, she says, the diverse ways that cottage cheese may be used.

Beacuse of the mild flavor, it combines well with other foods, such as fresh, dried and canned fruits, jams, jellies, marmalades, nuts, most fresh vegetables, and tart or spicy foods. Cottage cheese sandwiches are delicious on warm days and it also gives a new appeal to simple sandwiches, especially for picnics. As a substitute for meat it is not heavy and makes a most attractive addition to the menu, as the white contrasts nicely with the greens, yellows and reds of summer vegetables, thereby enhancing eye and appetite appeal. From a food standpoint, cottage cheese contains much of the protein of the whole milk and will not tax the most delicate digestive system.

Miss McPheeter suggests two recipes for making cottage cheese:

Sour Clabber Milk Cheese

One gallon of firm, slightly sour milk clabber, two teaspoonfuls of salt, two tablespoonsfuls of cream. Place the pan of clabber in a pan of warm water and keep it at a temperature of 85 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit until the curd and whey separate (fifteen to thirty minutes), or pour an equal quantity of boiling water around and through the clabber and let stand in a warm place until it separates. Drain, without pressing, through a seive or cheese cloth. Remove and season with salt, cream or butter and a dash of paprika. The cheese should be very tender and of a creamy consistency, not tough, stringy, or dry.

Sweet Milk Cheese

One gallon of skimmed, sweet milk, one cup of sour or buttermilk for start, one-eighth of a junket tablet dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water or two to three drops of rennet in one-half cup of salt water, and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Stir together the milk, the dissolved junket or rennet, and the starter (if used). Heat to 75 degrees Fahrenheit by placing the vessels in a pan of warm water and set aside over night to clabber. (With a starter, it takes from twelve to fifteen hours; without the starter, it takes approximately thirty hours). In the morning, drain and season without breaking the curd or heating.

Banana Souffle

Here is a dish that is fit for kings, and one that is really nourishing. Besides, most youngsters love it.

Beat the yolks of four eggs and mix in one cup of sugar and two cups of mashed banana pulp. Then put in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Smooth Cake Slices

To cut cake so that the edges will be smooth, dip the knife blade in a bowl of warm water just before cutting each slice. This is especially effective if the cake is very fresh and the frosting soft. Work quickly so that the moisture will not get into the cake.

A study of tree rings in house beams at Oraibi, Ariz., Hopi Indian village which is the oldest continuously inhabited settlement in the United States, shows they were cut as early as 1260.

Cookies and pineapple frost, a treat for youngsters that not many adults would refuse.

Catering to Young Palates Does Adults a Good Turn, Too

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

When youngsters speak out their food likes, it behooves us grown-ups to listen. We can learn a lot from scientifically-reared young moderns. Specialized child feeding has gone far in forming sensible food habits and in building sturdy bodies.

Children naturally prefer simple food, well cooked and attractively served. They enjoy real food flavors and do not want them disguised by highly seasoned gravies, rich stuffings, pungent sauces.

But youngsters, like the rest of us, do like variety in their menus. Here are some new dishes especially planned to appeal to the young folks—and you'll find that oldsters will enjoy them, too.

For a speedy pick-up on a sultry day serve FRUIT CHILLS. They have plenty of minerals, acids and vitamins, they're easy to make up and they will keep two weeks if you store them in a very cold place. Make them this way: Boil together for 2 minutes, 2 cups of granulated sugar and 3 cups of water. Cool and add 2 cups each of pineapple juice, grape juice and orange juice and ½ cup lemon juice. Pour into glass jars, cover and keep in the refrigerator. This makes a concentrated base. When you're ready to serve, half-fill glasses with the fruit blend and use cold water for the rest.

Build a hot weather luncheon around this CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE. To make the syrup, boil together until thick and creamy, 6 squares chocolate, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1½ cups water. Stir constantly while cooking. Cool, add 2 teaspoons of vanilla. Use 2 tablespoons of this syrup for each cup of milk. Beat or shake until frothy. Top with marshmallows, beaten egg whites or whipped cream. Serve this with a meat and a lettuce sandwich, some fruit and a few sugar cookies, and you have a very satisfying luncheon or supper.

Children will crave the coolness of this SUMMER SALAD BOWL. It is as refreshing to taste as it looks. Mix together ½ cup grated raw carrots (very crisp), ½ cup each of diced celery, cabbage and cooked beets, ½ cup cooked meat) beef, veal, lamb or chicken), 2 hard cooked eggs, sliced, 1 teaspoon minced parsley and ¼ teaspoon each, chopped onions and salt. Moisten with salad dressing and serve in a bowl lined with crisp salad greens. Sprinkle with grated hard-cooked egg yolks.

VELVET CUSTARD SAUCE gives a festive touch to fruit, gelatin and cake desserts. It is a nutritious summer food, gay in color. A jar of the sauce will keep two days in the refrigerator. Beat 2 egg yolks, add ⅓ cup granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt and 2½ cups milk. Cook in a double boiler over low heat. Stir constantly. The sauce is done when it thickens slightly. Be careful not to overcook it. Immediately remove the upper part of the boiler and beat the sauce for a minute. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon each of lemon and almond extracts and ¼ cup shredded almonds. Cool and chill.

You can vary the flavor of this sauce by adding, when served, fresh peaches, pears, oranges or bananas and a little chopped candied fruits, cocoanut or grated sweet chocolate.

PINEAPPLE FROST

1 standard measuring cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice
1 scoop vanilla ice cream

Shake to a froth and serve in a tall glass.

Cottage Cheese An Attractive Summer Food

COLLEGE PARK, July 5—Cottage cheese is one of the most attractive summer foods and should be appreciated by more people, it is stated by Miss Margaret McPheeters, specialist in nutrition for the University of Maryland Extension Service. Few people realize, she says, the diverse ways that cottage cheese may be used.

Beacuse of the mild flavor, it combines well with other foods, such as fresh, dried and canned fruits, jams, jellies, marmalades, nuts, most fresh vegetables, and tart or spicy foods. Cottage cheese sandwiches are delicious on warm days and it also gives a new appeal to simple sandwiches, especially for picnics. As a substitute for meat it is not heavy and makes a most attractive addition to the menu, as the white contrasts nicely with the greens, yellows and reds of summer vegetables, thereby enhancing eye and appetite appeal. From a food standpoint, cottage cheese contains much of the protein of the whole milk and will not tax the most delicate digestive system.

Miss McPheeter suggests two recipes for making cottage cheese:

Sour Clabber Milk Cheese

One gallon of firm, slightly sour milk clabber, two teaspoonfuls of salt, two tablespoonsfuls of cream. Place the pan of clabber in a pan of warm water and keep it at a temperature of 85 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit until the curd and whey separate (fifteen to thirty minutes), or pour an equal quantity of boiling water around and through the clabber and let stand in a warm place until it separates. Drain, without pressing, through a seive or cheese cloth. Remove and season with salt, cream or butter and a dash of paprika. The cheese should be very tender and of a creamy consistency, not tough, stringy, or dry.

Sweet Milk Cheese

One gallon of skimmed, sweet milk, one cup of sour or buttermilk for start, one-eighth of a junket tablet dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water or two to three drops of rennet in one-half cup of salt water, and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Stir together the milk, the dissolved junket or rennet, and the starter (if used). Heat to 75 degrees Fahrenheit by placing the vessels in a pan of warm water and set aside over night to clabber. (With a starter, it takes from twelve to fifteen hours; without the starter, it takes approximately thirty hours). In the morning, drain and season without breaking the curd or heating.

Banana Souffle

Here is a dish that is fit for kings, and one that is really nourishing. Besides, most youngsters love it.

Beat the yolks of four eggs and mix in one cup of sugar and two cups of mashed banana pulp. Then put in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Smooth Cake Slices

To cut cake so that the edges will be smooth, dip the knife blade in a bowl of warm water just before cutting each slice. This is especially effective if the cake is very fresh and the frosting soft. Work quickly so that the moisture will not get into the cake.

A study of tree rings in house beams at Uraibi, Ariz., Hopi Indian village which is the oldest continuously inhabited settlement in the United States, shows they were cut as early as 1260.

Job Tempted to Doubt God's Goodness

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 7-6

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 7 is Job 1 and 2, the Golden Text being Job. 1:22, "In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly.")

THE STORY of Job, which we have for today's lesson, is one of the most dramatic and intensely interesting in the Bible. Here again we take up the problem of disaster which hits at the good as well as the evil.

There are people who think there never was a person in Old Testament times named Job. There is, however, much evidence to show there was, and his courage and faith under unspeakable affliction is a lesson for all of us—old and young, rich or poor.

The story of Job's life starts: "There was a man in the land of Uz (whose location cannot be definitely determined at the present time), whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God and eschewed evil."

Then the account tells of his seven sons and three daughters and his great riches in the form of sheep, oxen, female asses and camels. When his sons held feasts in their homes, and invited their sisters to these merrymakings, Job "sent and sanctified them and rose up early and offered burnt offerings according to the number of them all: for Job said, It may be that my sons have sinned, and cursed God in their hearts. Thus did Job continually."

Satan Goes to and Fro

Now the story changes to the abode of God—Heaven. On a day when the Sons of God (the angels) came to present themselves to the Lord, Satan (whom you remember was once an angel fallen because of his pride) came too, and the Lord asked him: "Whence comest thou?" And Satan answered, "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it."

Then the Lord asked Satan if he had noticed His servant Job, "of whom there is none like him in earth, a perfect and upright man, one that feareth God and eschewed evil?"

Satan replied that he had, and suggested that the reason Job was so good was that he had everything the heart of man could ask; and furthermore gave it as his (Satan's) opinion, that if Job should lose his possessions he would not be such a good man, but would curse God to His face.

So to test Job and see if his worship was merely face devotion, the Lord gave Satan power to take away all that Job had.

One day when Job's sons and daughters were feasting at the home of one of the son's, a messenger came to Job, telling him that the Sabeans had come upon his oxen plowing with the asses feeding beside them, and had taken them all away, killing all of his servants but the one who escaped to tell him the dreadful news.

Then another messenger came and announced that fire had fallen from heaven on all his sheep and the servants that tended them, and that only he had escaped to tell him.

His Children Killed

Yet another messenger came to poor Job, telling him that the Chaldeans had taken away his camels and killed all the servants with them. And most dreadful of all, another came, saying that as his sons and daughters were feasting a great wind came from the wilderness, blew down the house, and killed them all, excepting the one who come to him.

"Then Job arose, and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped, saying: Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Satan then asked that the Lord put forth His hand and afflict Job with a loathsome disease and see what he would say. The Lord told Satan he must spare Job's life, but that He put him in Satan's hands and he could so afflict him, to test him further.

When boils appeared on Job's body, from his head to his feet, his wife said to him: "Dost thou still retain thine integrity? curse God, and die." But Job told her she was speaking foolishly. "What?" said he, "shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?"

"In all this did not Job sin with his lips," the account says.

At the end of this chapter (Job 2), three friends came to find and comfort him, but they "knew him not" at first, and when they did, they wept, rent their mantles, put dust on their heads and sat down with him on the ground for seven days and seven nights.

We shall read about his further trials and how he bore them and what he answered his friends about his afflictions in the next lesson.

Tempted to Doubt God's Goodness — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Job 1, 2.

Job was a perfect and upright man, who feared God and eschewed evil; he had seven sons and three daughters and much riches in sheep, camels, oxen and she asses.

Satan, however, suggested to the Lord that Job was only good because he was prosperous, so the Lord allowed Satan to take away all his riches, to tempt him to curse God.

Even when his children were all killed by a great wind that blew the house down on them, Job "shaved his head and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped."

Then Satan afflicted Job with boils, but even in his misery he would not curse his creator to the friends who visited him in his affliction. (GOLDEN TEXT—Job 1:22)

Satan replied that he had, and suggested that the reason Job was so good was that he had everything the heart of man could ask; and furthermore gave it as his (Satan's) opinion, that if Job should lose his possessions he would not be such a good man, but would curse God to His face.

So to test Job and see if his worship was merely face devotion, the Lord gave Satan power to take away all that Job had.

One day when Job's sons and daughters were feasting at the home of one of the son's, a messenger came to Job, telling him that the Sabeans had come upon his oxen plowing with the asses feeding beside them, and had taken them all away, killing all of his servants but the one who escaped to tell him the dreadful news.

Then another messenger came and announced that fire had fallen from heaven on all his sheep and the servants that tended them, and that only he had escaped to tell him.

His Children Killed

Yet another messenger came to poor Job, telling him that the Chaldeans had taken away his camels and killed all the servants with them. And most dreadful of all, another came, saying that as his sons and daughters were feasting a great wind came from the wilderness, blew down the house, and killed them all, excepting the one who come to him.

"Then Job arose, and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped, saying: Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Satan then asked that the Lord put forth His hand and afflict Job with a loathsome disease and see what he would say. The Lord told Satan he must spare Job's life, but that He put him in Satan's hands and he could so afflict him, to test him further.

When boils appeared on Job's body, from his head to his feet, his wife said to him: "Dost thou still retain thine integrity? curse God, and die." But Job told her she was speaking foolishly. "What?" said he, "shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?"

"In all this did not Job sin with his lips," the account says.

At the end of this chapter (Job 2), three friends came to find and comfort him, but they "knew him not" at first, and when they did, they wept, rent their mantles, put dust on their heads and sat down with him on the ground for seven days and seven nights.

We shall read about his further trials and how he bore them and what he answered his friends about his afflictions in the next lesson.

Tempted to Doubt God's Goodness — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Job 1, 2.

Job was a perfect and upright man, who feared God and eschewed evil; he had seven sons and three daughters and much riches in sheep, camels, oxen and she asses.

Satan, however, suggested to the Lord that Job was only good because he was prosperous, so the Lord allowed Satan to take away all his riches, to tempt him to curse God.

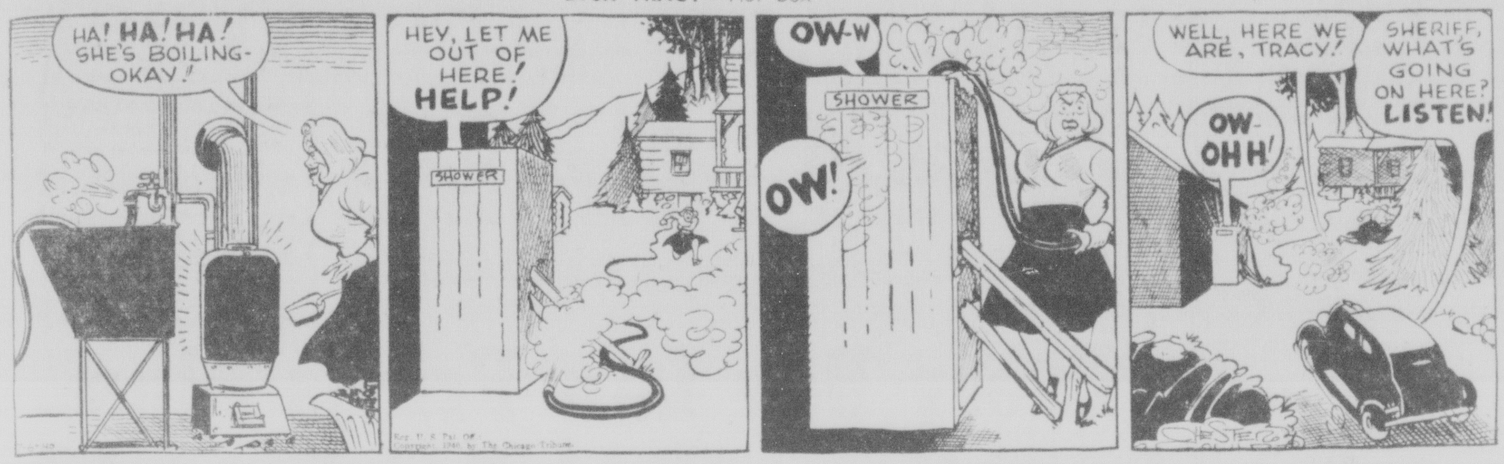

Even when his children were all killed by a great wind that blew the house down on them, Job "shaved his head and fell down upon the ground, and worshipped."

Then Satan afflicted Job with boils, but even in his misery he would not curse his creator to the friends who visited him in his affliction. (GOLDEN TEXT—Job 1:22)

Two Cresaptown Men Are Fined

KEYSER, W. Va., July 5 — Carl Skelley, 31, and Lyle Hershberger, 28, Cresaptown, were fined $24.10 and $19.10, respectively in Justice of the Peace court here today on drunkenness charges, following their arrest late Wednesday night near an overturned car on the Keyser-Fort Ashby road.

The men were arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. E. Aronhalt today on charges of drunkenness, pending a further investigation. Officers said it had been impossible so far to determine who had been driving the wrecked automobile.

Skelley paid the fine and was released. Hershberger was still in the Mineral county jail this evening.

The pair, who escaped serious injury, was arrested near the Reeves Service station on the Fort Ashby road by State Police Troopers L. W. Kelly and R. R. Karickhoff, and Constable William Adams.

Half a century ago a notorious forger named Robert Spring forged autographs of every famous American, including those of Washington, Franklin, Poe. These autographs now lie in many libraries where they are exhibited as forgeries.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—The State Fair Commission announced today 23-year-old Eleanor Steber, Wheeling soprano, had accepted Governor Holt's invitation to sing at the West Virginia day program at the New York World's Fair August 3.

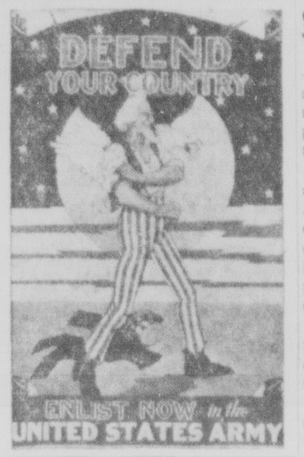

She recently was selected in a nation-wide audition contest for a contract next season with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Held Under Bond

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—John Robert Payne, 28, and George Washington Crum, 38, were held under $2,500 bond each today for Federal grand jury action on charges they stole letters from a business concern's postoffice box.

Payne pleaded guilty, and U. S. Commissioner A. V. Fitzwater said Payne also admitted taking letters from apartment boxes and cashing checks he found in them. Crum pleaded innocent.

Surgeons Renew Offer

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—West Virginia surgeons have renewed an offer of free service for relief clients even though a similar proposal last year was only partially claimed.

Executives Secretary Joe W. Savage of the West Virginia Medical Association, announcing the second offer, said only $2,935 in fees were claimed in four months of operation last year, although the doctors had pledged annual free services of $38,000.

Only eleven of the state's fifty-five counties participated, and four counties furnished twenty-seven of the thirty-seven patients treated.

He said the novelty of the program probably was responsible for the last of response, adding:

"After the county directors (of public assistance) get a little more familiar with it and realize that there are no strings attached, they will probably take more advantage of it."

Oakland Council Approves Plans For Building

Community Structure Will Be Erected on the Helbig Property

OAKLAND, July 5—Preliminary plans for the proposed Community Building, to be constructed on the town's property at the north edge of town, formerly the Helbig property, have been approved by the Mayor and Town council, and the plans now go to Washington WPA officials for final approval.

The plans were presented by F. L. W. Moehle and Associates, Baltimore, architects and engineers, this week to the council. Mr. Moehle showed photographs of how the building would look when completed and the only change from the plans submitted several weeks ago is the addition of a rear entrance. According to present plans the long side of the building will parallel U. S. Route 219, although it will be situated well back in the property, in the place originally planned for it. The large grove on the property along the highway will remain without change and the building will be on the brow of the hill leading down to the proposed skating or swimming lake.

Henry Tarring, Jr., Cumberland, WPA resident engineers for both Allegany and Garrett counties, and James L. Pollock, WPA county supervisor also conferred with town officials about the building. The construction of the community building will be by WPA labor, the project for which was approved some time ago. The building is supposed to cost $75,000 with the town furnishing approximately $25,000. The building is to be of native stone and provides an auditorium and stage, and spacious quarters for various organizations of town. The auditorium will also be available as a gymnasium, and a games room is also provided.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—The State Fair Commission announced today 23-year-old Eleanor Steber, Wheeling soprano, had accepted Governor Holt's invitation to sing at the West Virginia day program at the New York World's Fair August 3.

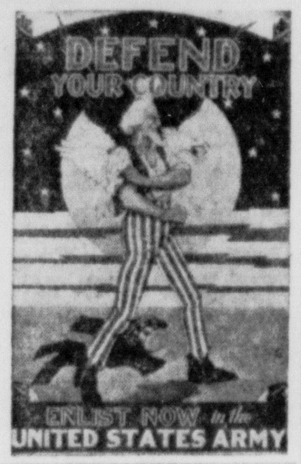

She recently was selected in a nation-wide audition contest for a contract next season with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Tri-Towns Loop All-Stars Will Play Devon Club

Westernport, July 5.—Devon Club tossers, setting the pace in the Tri-Towns Softball League, will tangle with a loop all-star team at Memorial Park here next Tuesday evening starting at 5:30.

The clash will be extended from the usual seven innings to nine. Admission will be charged and the proceeds will be donated to the American Red Cross war relief fund.

Frank Sullivan will be umpire-in-chief. Assisting him will be John "Red" Laughlin, Marshal Wilson and Cecil Nichols. George Angle will manage the All-Stars, assisted by Bill Hamer and Mike Hoban.

Held Under Bond

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—John Robert Payne, 28, and George Washington Crum, 38, were held under $2,500 bond each today for Federal grand jury action on charges they stole letters from a business concern's postoffice box.

Payne pleaded guilty, and U. S. Commissioner A. V. Fitzwater said Payne also admitted taking letters from apartment boxes and cashing checks he found in them. Crum pleaded innocent.

Surgeons Renew Offer

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—West Virginia surgeons have renewed an offer of free service for relief clients even though a similar proposal last year was only partially claimed.

Executives Secretary Joe W. Savage of the West Virginia Medical Association, announcing the second offer, said only $2,935 in fees were claimed in four months of operation last year, although the doctors had pledged annual free services of $38,000.

Only eleven of the state's fifty-five counties participated, and four counties furnished twenty-seven of the thirty-seven patients treated.

He said the novelty of the program probably was responsible for the last of response, adding:

"After the county directors (of public assistance) get a little more familiar with it and realize that there are no strings attached, they will probably take more advantage of it."

Oakland Council Approves Plans For Building

Community Structure Will Be Erected on the Helbig Property

OAKLAND, July 5—Preliminary plans for the proposed Community Building, to be constructed on the town's property at the north edge of town, formerly the Helbig property, have been approved by the Mayor and Town council, and the plans now go to Washington WPA officials for final approval.

The plans were presented by F. L. W. Moehle and Associates, Baltimore, architects and engineers, this week to the council. Mr. Moehle showed photographs of how the building would look when completed and the only change from the plans submitted several weeks ago is the addition of a rear entrance. According to present plans the long side of the building will parallel U. S. Route 219, although it will be situated well back in the property, in the place originally planned for it. The large grove on the property along the highway will remain without change and the building will be on the brow of the hill leading down to the proposed skating or swimming lake.

Henry Tarring, Jr., Cumberland, WPA resident engineers for both Allegany and Garrett counties, and James L. Pollock, WPA county supervisor also conferred with town officials about the building. The construction of the community building will be by WPA labor, the project for which was approved some time ago. The building is supposed to cost $75,000 with the town furnishing approximately $25,000. The building is to be of native stone and provides an auditorium and stage, and spacious quarters for various organizations of town. The auditorium will also be available as a gymnasium, and a games room is also provided.

Thousands See Parade

Queen Sylvia's band, Elkins, W. Va., the Parsons, W. Va., fire department, and the Kelly-Mansfield Post, American Legion Drum corps, Piedmont, W. Va., won honors in the Fourth of July parade yesterday at Oakland.

Sixteen fire companies of the tri-state area, and seven bands were included in line of march besides other organizations, and the procession was one of the best in Oakland's history.

Taking second respectively were the Mickey's Band of Loch Lynn, the Tri-Towns fire company and the Meadow Mountain CCC drum and bugle corps. Around 10,000 people thronged Oakland's streets during the afternoon.

At one time a Boston radio station broadcast the frying of an egg on the pavement. Commentators included a weather man to discuss the heat, a poultry man to discuss the hen that laid the egg, and a professional chef to comment on the condition of the sun-fried egg.

Guardsman To Train For Army Maneuvers

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—This state's national guardsmen are scheduled to spend their July week-ends practicing at Camp Dawson and Camp Conley for participation in the Second Army maneuvers in Wisconsin August 11-31.

Adjutant General William L. Hornor said the men must qualify wit htheir respective arms in advance of the encampment. The state's units are armed with rifles, pistols, howitzers, 37 mm guns and machine guns.

Staffs of both the One Hundred and Fiftieth and One Hundred and First infantry regiments have been holding monthly exercises to work out tactical problems, he said.

A supply detachment of two officers and four enlisted men will leave for Wisconsin August 6, and an advance detachment of five officers and 114 men will depart the following day, taking tents, mess supplies and all other equipment.

The 2,200 state guardsmen will leave by train Aug. 11 for successive periods of training by units and regiments. The principal maneuvers, Aug. 24-27, will pit the Fifth Corps, which includes West Virginia, against the Sixth Corps in mimic warfare.

The One Hundred and Fiftieth infantry, from the Southern part of the state, will be assigned to the Thirty Eighth division under Major General Robert H. Tyndall, Hornor said. The Two Hundred and First infantry will act as Headquarters troops for the Fifth Corps, commanded by Major General C. B. Hodges.

Sailor on Leave Nabbed by Cops

Fined $110 and Costs On Traffic Charges

A stormy sea was just a breeze compared to the trouble a Washington, D. C., sailor, on leave got himself into and out of yesterday.

First, C. A. Wicker, of Anacostia, Washington, D. C., was arrested early yesterday morning on charges of drunken and reckless driving. He crashed into a tree on Greene street and then drove on to Baltimore avenue where Officers J. J. Condon and J. E. Kelley curbed his car.

Later, Wicker was sentenced to 110 days in the county jail in Trial Magistrates court in lieu of fines amounting to $110 and costs on the two charges. He pleaded guilty to both.

Last night, however, Wicker was released from jail after the money to pay his fines and court costs was wired here from a relative in Seattle, Wash.

Wicker did not testify in court yesterday, but he told court attaches that he was supposed to be in Washington today (Friday) for duty.

"It's the guard house for me," he said as he left the court room for jail.

Claude M. Wilson, 19, of Mt. Savage road, was fined $5 for speeding, while James F. Dunne, 18, of Meyersdale, Pa., was fined $5 and costs for failing to give the right-of-way.

Both were arrested Monday night following a collision on the National highway at Allegany Grove. Dunne, traveling west, was turning from the road into a barbecue stand when the crash occurred. Wilson was coming toward Cumberland.

State Trooper Austin H. Bikle preferred the charge.

Charges against Lawrence Smith, of Anderson, Ind., and Pete Simon, of Cannonsburg, Pa., growing out of an accident Wednesday on the Baltimore Turnpike, 20 miles east of Cumberland, were dismissed when the men settled the case out of court.

Smith and Simon were both charged with failing to keep to the right-center of the road. State Trooper H. F. Schulthies investigated.

Man Gets Thirty Days On Vagrancy Charge

Harold Ralston, 37, of Cumberland, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail yesterday in Trial Magistrates court on a charge of vagrancy.

Ralston gained public attention Dec. 30, 1939, when he was stabbed during a "name calling" argument with another man at the Walton hotel, Baltimore avenue. He was not expected to recover from the abdomen wound which he received in the slashing affray.

Ralston was taken to court yesterday morning after being released from the city jail, where he had served five days on charges of being drunk and panhandling. Lieut. James E. Van preferred the vagrancy coup-

Court Asked To Authorize Sale

Couple Just Divorced To Sell Real Estate

Circuit Court yesterday was requested to authorize the sale of a Cumberland property owned jointly by a couple divorced in The District of Columbia last month.

The petition docketed by Mrs. Martha M. Adams states that she and her former husband, James R. Adams, bought a lot and home at No. 84, Gephart's Bedford road addition in 1929.

Both own an equal share in the real estate the petition says.

In view of the fact that the property cannot be partitioned, Mrs. Adams has asked the court to authorize its sale and a proper distribution of the proceeds made.

Support Asked For Miss Riggin

Democrats of the Eastern Shore of Maryland are reaching into Western Maryland in an effort to create support for Miss Lena H. Riggin of Worcester county as the next Democratic National Committeewoman for Maryland.

Miss Riggin seeks the post now held by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menafee of Cumberland, juvenile court judge, who has made no definite announcement as to whether she will be a candidate to succeed herself.

Prominent Democrats of her home county have jointed Miss Riggin in seeking the support of the Maryland delegation to the National Convention in Chicago the week of July 14. She also has been said to have the support of the Democratic faction that supported U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe in his primary campaign for re-election.

Members of the Maryland delegation have been advised that they are to be in Chicago on July 14, and for that reason a special train will leave Baltimore Saturday afternoon, July 13, arriving in Chicago early Sunday morning, July 14.

Attorney General William C. Walsh and M. F. Prendergast, of Cumberland, are members of the Maryland delegation.

Two Vacation Schools To Be Conducted

"Lady Champ" of Marksmen Bows

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 5. (AP)—The "lady champ" was dethroned today at the National Rifle Association's eastern regional rifle and pistol tournament.

Gloria Jacobs of Los Angeles, the only woman ever to hold a world's championship in pistol shooting, relinquished her title to Al Hemming, Detroit policeman, from whom she had won the crown last fall.

Hemming scored a perfect 300 in the individual .22 calibre pistol shoot over the Camp Perry course, becoming the first person to register a 100 per cent performance in this match.

Miss Jacobs was beaten by one point, the same margin by which she defeated Hemming last year.

Walter Walsh, the crack-shot Washington G-man, continued his march toward his second eastern pistol championship by winning the center fire slow match with a score of 190, three points better than Hemming and H. L. Benner of the U. S. infantry team, Camp Perry.

Joseph F. Welden and Herman Hunter, both of the New York city police team, won the timed and rapid fire matches with center fire pistols, Welden scored 199 in timed fire to beat Hemming by two points. Hunter posted 194 in rapid fire, the same as Benner but outranking him.

First honors in the eastern doubles small bore rifle match went to Ransford Triggs of Madison, N. J., and William P. S. Chweitzer of Hillside, N. J., who scored a combined 392.

Two points behind them were Frank and Harry Frohm of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Russell Parry and Floyd Oswald of New Tripoli, Pa., were third, also with 390 but outranked by the Frohm brothers.

Man Gets Thirty Days On Vagrancy Charge

Harold Ralston, 37, of Cumberland, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail yesterday in Trial Magistrates court on a charge of vagrancy.

Ralston gained public attention Dec. 30, 1939, when he was stabbed during a "name calling" argument with another man at the Walton hotel, Baltimore avenue. He was not expected to recover from the abdomen wound which he received in the slashing affray.

Ralston was taken to court yesterday morning after being released from the city jail, where he had served five days on charges of being drunk, and panhandling. Lieut. James E. Van preferred the vagrancy coup-

Court Asked To Authorize Sale

Couple Just Divorced To Sell Real Estate

Circuit Court yesterday was requested to authorize the sale of a Cumberland property owned jointly by a couple divorced in The District of Columbia last month.

The petition docketed by Mrs. Martha M. Adams states that she and her former husband, James R. Adams, bought a lot and home at No. 84, Gephart's Bedford road addition in 1929.

Both own an equal share in the real estate the petition says.

In view of the fact that the property cannot be partitioned, Mrs. Adams has asked the court to authorize its sale and a proper distribution of the proceeds made.

Support Asked For Miss Riggin

Democrats of the Eastern Shore of Maryland are reaching into Western Maryland in an effort to create support for Miss Lena H. Riggin of Worcester county as the next Democratic National Committeewoman for Maryland.

Miss Riggin seeks the post now held by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menafee of Cumberland, juvenile court judge, who has made no definite announcement as to whether she will be a candidate to succeed herself.

Prominent Democrats of her home county have jointed Miss Riggin in seeking the support of the Maryland delegation to the National Convention in Chicago the week of July 14. She also has been said to have the support of the Democratic faction that supported U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe in his primary campaign for re-election.

Members of the Maryland delegation have been advised that they are to be in Chicago on July 14, and for that reason a special train will leave Baltimore Saturday afternoon, July 13, arriving in Chicago early Sunday morning, July 14.

Attorney General William C. Walsh and M. F. Prendergast, of Cumberland, are members of the Maryland delegation.

"Lady Champ" of Marksmen Bows

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 5. (AP)—The "lady champ" was dethroned today at the National Rifle Association's eastern regional rifle and pistol tournament.

Gloria Jacobs of Los Angeles, the only woman ever to hold a world's championship in pistol shooting, relinquished her title to Al Hemming, Detroit policeman, from whom she had won the crown last fall.

Hemming scored a perfect 300 in the individual .22 calibre pistol shoot over the Camp Perry course, becoming the first person to register a 100 per cent performance in this match.

Miss Jacobs was beaten by one point, the same margin by which she defeated Hemming last year.

Walter Walsh, the crack-shot Washington G-man, continued his march toward his second eastern pistol championship by winning the center fire slow match with a score of 190, three points better than Hemming and H. L. Benner of the U. S. infantry team, Camp Perry.

Joseph F. Welden and Herman Hunter, both of the New York city police team, won the timed and rapid fire matches with center fire pistols, Welden scored 199 in timed fire to beat Hemming by two points. Hunter posted 194 in rapid fire, the same as Benner but outranking him.

First honors in the eastern doubles small bore rifle match went to Ransford Triggs of Madison, N. J., and William P. S. Chweitzer of Hillside, N. J., who scored a combined 392.

Two points behind them were Frank and Harry Frohm of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Russell Parry and Floyd Oswald of New Tripoli, Pa., were third, also with 390 but outranked by the Frohm brothers.

Dejan, who started professional ball as a pitcher with the New York Yankee organization four years ago, is hitting at a .403 clip, has clouted 17 homers, batted in 80 runs and stands 6 feet 3 inches in his socks. He bats from the portside and throws right-handed.

He will report July 10 in Cincinnati, General Manager Warren C. Giles said.

Teachers Are Great Help To Many Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

I believe it would do us parents good to recall some teachers of our children or of our childhood we have admired, to note some of the splendid things they have done and observe some of lovable traits they possess.

All of us have known that teacher whom the little child almost worshipped in the early years of school; who was quoted and referred to as the final authority in many matters arising in the family conversation. We easily could be wrong, but that teacher, never. Some of us may even have entertained faint jealous feelings of the teacher who had so completely captivated the confidence and affections of our child.

Deep Respect

Also that teacher we know, to whom the older children, even high school students, refer always with great respect, whose sympathetic understanding attitude, whose constant efforts at being fair and just, whose kindness, whose honesty, whose humility, whose human interest in each pupil as a sacred personality are on many occasions described by our children or their playmates.

We know that teacher whose speech, movement and appearance bespeak culture and refinement. We like to meet her and be in her presence. We count our children fortunate to be in the classroom with such a teacher. It is the quiet, sweet-voiced teacher who is most calming to us and our children. We wish we might imitate her well-managed voice, and we wish that all other teachers were, in this respect, like her.

We parents know teachers who make us feel assured that they are personally interested in each of their pupils as an individual different from all others. Our children know that such teachers have a very high regard for their personality. How our children strive to do well for these teachers.

Masters of Selves

Teachers we know, moreover, who are perfect masters of themselves, who are completely self-controlled, no matter what happens; whose composure is so nearly perfect and so contagious that our children acquire poise in their presence. Too bad there is not some way to have such teachers properly rewarded. Yet they do reap a rich reward in the joyousness they afford their pupils and the wholesome atmosphere for mental health they help create for their school children.

Some of the teachers stand out also in our minds as powerful at imbuing our children with high ideals, with the wish to live good lives and to grow alway as good citizens.

Yet, there are some bad teachers; but why not keep our eyes on the good ones with the hope that our children might have more like them?

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My eleven-year-old daughter sometimes sulks. Should she be punished then?

A. No; be not the least annoyed at her sulking. Act as if you did not notice it. Talk of things in her presence so interesting to her she cannot resist entering the conversation. If possible, touch upon some of her achievements and successes.

We parents know teachers who make us feel assured that they are personally interested in each of their pupils as an individual different from all others. Our children know that such teachers have a very high regard for their personality. How our children strive to do well for these teachers.

Masters of Selves

Teachers we know, moreover, who are perfect masters of themselves, who are completely self-controlled, no matter what happens; whose composure is so nearly perfect and so contagious that our children acquire poise in their presence. Too bad there is not some way to have such teachers properly rewarded. Yet they do reap a rich reward in the joyousness they afford their pupils and the wholesome atmosphere for mental health they help create for their school children.

Some of the teachers stand out also in our minds as powerful at imbuing our children with high ideals, with the wish to live good lives and to grow alway as good citizens.

Yet, there are some bad teachers; but why not keep our eyes on the good ones with the hope that our children might have more like them?

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My eleven-year-old daughter sometimes sulks. Should she be punished then?

A. No; be not the least annoyed at her sulking. Act as if you did not notice it. Talk of things in her presence so interesting to her she cannot resist entering the conversation. If possible, touch upon some of her achievements and successes.

Discuss Meter Problem

Police Commissioner Walter Powell reports that a number of local business men who find the present parking meter arrangement an inconvenience, have rejuested that they be granted the privilege of paying a monthly rate for parking permits in front of their respective business places. Mr. Powell has a plan under consideration which he will submit to the city council next Monday evening, one of the conditions being that there will be a limit on the time a car may be permitted to park in the same meter zone.

The police commissioner is also arranging with City Attorney Edward J. Ryan to have an ordinance drafted and presented at next Monday's meeting of the city council, regulating the use of bicycles on the city's streets and providing for a license on a non-profit basis. This ordinance, according to Mr. Powell, is being drafted for the purpose of safeguarding children riding in traffic. The license he said, will cost twenty-five cents and with each license and permit the child will be given instructions concerning traffic laws. In case of failure to observe these laws, the license will be revoked and the child will not be permitted to ride a bicycle in the city limits.

The police commissioner is also arranging with City Attorney Edward J. Ryan to have an ordinance drafted and presented at next Monday's meeting of the city council, regulating the use of bicycles on the city's streets and providing for a license on a non-profit basis. This ordinance, according to Mr. Powell, is being drafted for the purpose of safeguarding children riding in traffic. The license he said, will cost twenty-five cents and with each license and permit the child will be given instructions concerning traffic laws. The tank was owned by the Standard Oil Company of N. J. and was stored on the west side of the building owned by the Yough Motor Co. The explosion was so great that the glass was knocked out of seven 32x36 windows as well as many smaller windows in the Yough Motor Company's building. Stone Base on Route 23 Has Been Finished

Road between Baker and High View Is Improved with Prison Labor

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 5.—The section of Route 23 between Baker and High View was completed this week with stone base by the prisoners at the State Road Camp at McCauley. A few sections of the base which did not hold up under traffic is being replaced near Intermont.

The crew making the cuts and straightening the route between Moorefield and Bakes is still working after nearly a year. It was necessary to dynamite in several places to get through the solid rock. The shovels and tractor scrapers are still in use on this stretch. On th new road across the mountains fifteen curves will be eliminated and the road shortened nearly two miles.

The workers are to start this week on a section of State Route 58 consisting of approximately twenty miles from the Virginia line north through Mathias, Lost River, Lost City to Baker.

New School Building

Major June Moore reports the new Moorefield high school building, one of the three units in the county will be ready for occupancy by the time school opens for the fall term. Sheet rock has been installed within the entire structure and the plasterers will begin work Monday.

All electrical work and wiring is in and all plumbing has been rougher in. The roof has been completed over the class rooms and the structural steel for the roof of the gymnasium has been ordered and is now being fabricated at the mill. The steel will be delivered the first week in August.

The foundation of the Wardensville unit of the school building program is nearly complete and the brick work will start some time next week. The Wardensville unit will not be completed in time for occupancy at the start of the school year but will be completed in the fall.

The Mathias unit has been held up somewhat due to the unusual amount of excavation necessary, all of which was in solid rock. Foundations are started and the work of laying the brick walls will be started within two weeks.

Selected Stocks Advance, but Trading Drops to 283,000 Shares

Mounting Taxes and Drop in Exports Discourages Traders

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Selected stocks edged forward in today's market but the advance was accomplished on the second smallest volume for a full session in more than a year.

The five hours amounted to only 283,030 shares which, with the exception of last Monday, was the lowest aggregate since July 3, 1939. It compared with Wednesday's pre-holiday total of 377,170.

Gains for several steels, aircrafts, motors, rails and specialties, running to a point or so in the forenoon, were reduced at the close. The Associated Press average of sixty stocks ended up .2 of a point at 41.2.

Mounting taxes, the waning outlook for exports due to the shifting tides of the European conflict, and the desire of speculative forces to keep commitments light pending results at the Democratic convention, tended to restrain buyers, analysts said.

Finishing on the upside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Electric, N. Y. Shipbuilding, White Rock, American Smelting and others. A shade under water were Anaconda, Kennecott, U. S. Rubber and Western Union.

In a sluggish curb, gains of fractions were posted for Brewster Aero, Cities Service, and American Gas. Giving ground were Gulf Oil, Glen Alden Coal and Phoenix Securities. The turnover here was around 53,000 shares against 85,000 Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP) — Heavy receipts of wheat at principal southwestern markets where the 1940 harvest is in full swing helped to depress domestic prices today.

After rising as much as 1½ cents early in the day due to failure of moisture relief to materialize over the week-end, wheat tumbled 2¾-2⅞ from the highs following the forecast and when hedging sales against the heavy movement of new grain increased. Wheat closed ¾-1¼ lower than Wednesday, July 77⅛-⅜, September 77⅜-⅞. Oats ¼-½ lower; rye ⅝-¾ lower and lard 5-8 higher.

Bob Baker Sings In Garden Film

Baker, who appeared on the National Barn Dance program for two years, sings two original numbers by Milt Rosen and Everett Carter entitled "On the Trail of Tomorrow" and "Let's Go."

The story of an orphan boy and an orphan horse, RKO Radio's "Two Thoroughbreds," now at the Garden, offers a juvenile team in youngsters in their middle teens.

Young Lydon is cast as an ill-treated orphan who works on his miserly uncle's Arizona farm. His efforts to raise a stray colt he has found and his uncle's determination to get rid of it, form the basis of the plot.

When the girl, daughter of a wealthy rancher, learns the horse is really the foal of her father's prize brood mare stolen by crooks, unhappy complications develop for the young boy.

Marital Comedy Is At New Liberty

"My Favorite Wife," reuniting Irene Dunne and Cary Grant for the first time since their Academy Award winner, "The Awful Truth," is showing at the New Liberty theater.

A marital comedy, written especially for Miss Dunne and Grant by Bella and Samuel Spewack, Broadway playwrights and screen writers, "My Favorite Wife" is a production by Leo McCarey, who brought Miss Dunne and Grant together in "The Awful Truth."

"My Favorite Wife" is accorded a streamlined treatment of the familiar Enoch Arden plot, equipped with martial mix-ups and plot complications which should develop the film into a ranking comedy success of the year. Miss Dunne, missing for seven years, supposedly drowned in the Pacific, is miraculously and quietly rescued, and returns home on the very day that her husband has had her declared legally dead and is embarking on his second honeymoon with Gail Patrick.

Miss Dunne intercepts the newly-weds, sending home a flabbergasted Cary Grant and his kissless bride. Returning, he learns that his first spouse spent those seven years alone with handsome Randolph Scott on a desert isle!

Technicolor Picture Is Booked at Embassy

The second feature will be "I Demand Payment" with Jack La Rue and Betty Hughes.

Closing today at the Embassy will be the double feature attraction consisting of "Texas Renegades" and "Non-Stop New York".

In addition, the Louis-Godoy fight films and another chapter of the serial, "The Shadow", will be offered.

American Success Story Is Screened

"Edison, the Man," now showing on the Maryland theater screen, is a success story. And looming above everything else is the portrayal of Spencer Tracy as Edison.

The supporting cast includes Rita Johnson, Lynne Overman, Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart, Henry Travers, Felix Bressart and clever actors who play Edison's loyal workmen.

"SAPS AT SEA"

FROM "MY FAVORITE WIFE"

Story of Philippines Is Told in Film

A brand new issue in the March of Time film series brings to the screen of the New Liberty theater today an engrossing story entitled "The Philippines: 1898-1946".

In this release The March of Time depicts the new problems facing the Philippines as a result of today's mounting war fever, and shows how Philippine independence—scheduled to take effect in 1946—is already seriously threatened by Japan's current expansion program in the South Pacific.

Many people in the Philippines today believe that a Japanese "Fifth Column"—an advance guard for occupation of the islands—is already at work laying the foundation for eventual seizure of the Philippines after their independence becomes effective, The March of Time shows.

In view of high current interest in the new technique of "Fifth Column" invasion, which was employed with great success by the Nazis in taking over Norway, this phase of the film should command attention and interest.

The federal government and the seven basin states have spent more than $3,000,000 on surveys of the Colorado River to determine its reclamation and power possibilities.

Physician Says Apple Is Own Cure for Colic

Dr. Adrian Gibbs Tells Mother How Child Should Be Fed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"Yes," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs to the mother, "I know that the cause of this child's colic is eating apples and I know it sounds queer to you for me to tell him to eat apples. Yet I want you to fix the apples in a certain particular way.

"Take a good Jonathan apple and pare it, and then take a spoon and scrape around and around until you get a nice mush, and then feed it to our little friend here a small amount at a time in the course of the next hour or two.

An Effective Cure

"I have been doing this for years and it is only recently that I find myself in fashion and having some authority behind me. Some European scientists began to use raw apple pulp and apple powder in different kinds of intestinal disorders, including summer complaint, in infants and children several years ago. I do not really believe that this child's diarrhea comes from eating apples. It is probably an infection, but at any rate the apple will do it good, whatever is the matter.

"It appears there is something in apple fiber that is called 'pectin' that is supposed to do the work. Don't ask me too much about pectin because I don't understand it myself although I have read all the scientific literature on the subject. All that I got out of the last article I read was that there were 1,000 cases of diarrhea of all kinds studied and ninety-eight per cent of them responded to the use of scraped raw apple pulp.

"You can give as much as two heaping teaspoonfuls of this to the baby with prospects of benefit, if you spread th edosage out over a couple of hours. For older people it is best to withhold all food for three or four days, except for a glass of water containing scraped apple, at three or four hour intervals.

Soft Diet Best

"When this baby begins to get better, don't feed any solid food for three or four days; give nothing but custards and egg. I should classify raw milk as a solid food; it becomes solid as soon as it gets into the stomach.

"If it is any comfort to you, you may also know that this raw apple pulp contains Vitamin A and that is supposed to have some beneficial action also.

"I understand that you can get dried apple powder now at the drug store but I see no reason for going to that trouble and expense when you can take a nice raw apple yourself and if you scrape it in front of the baby, it will probably increase his appetite for it and the very smell will make him feel better right away."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. E. N—"Is there more suffering from heat today than back in the 'horse and buggy' days?"

Answer—Certainly not. With the use of electric fans, air conditioning and the availability of the automobile to carry people to the seashore and lakeside, our position is far better than our ancestors in the "horse and buggy" days in the United States. As a matter of fact, statistics show that heat prostrations have been reduced in the last decade about 50 per cent over the period of twenty or thirty years ago.

B. R.: "Please tell me how to obtain Vitamin E other than in wheat germ oil and green vegetables. I am under the impression that it can be had in concentrated form."

Answer: It has recently been isolated in concentrated form but the process is very expensive and the product correspondingly expensive. It can be obtained when a patient with a rare form of paralysis needs it, but it is not necessary for the average person to obtain it in this way because in an average diet there is plenty of Vitamin E to take care of the needs.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP) — Heavy receipts of wheat at principal southwestern markets where the 1940 harvest is in full swing helped to depress domestic prices today.

After rising as much as 1½ cents early in the day due to failure of moisture relief to materialize over the week-end, wheat tumbled 2¼-2⅜ from the highs following the forecast and when hedging sales against the heavy movement of new grain increased. Wheat closed ¾-1¼ lower than Wednesday, July 77¼-⅜, September 77⅜-¾. Oats ¼-½ lower; rye ⅜-⅝ lower and lard 5-8 higher.

Bob Baker Sings In Garden Film

Baker, who appeared on the National Barn Dance program for two years, sings two original numbers by Milt Rosen and Everett Carter entitled "On the Trail of Tomorrow" and "Let's Go."

The story of an orphan boy and an orphan horse, RKO Radio's "Two Thoroughbreds," now at the Garden, offers a juvenile team in youngsters in their middle teens.

Young Lydon is cast as an ill-treated orphan who works on his miserly uncle's Arizona farm. His efforts to raise a stray colt he has found and his uncle's determination to get rid of it, form the basis of the plot.

When the girl, daughter of a wealthy rancher, learns the horse is really the foal of her father's prize brood mare stolen by crooks, unhappy complications develop for the young boy.

Marital Comedy Is At New Liberty

"My Favorite Wife," reuniting Irene Dunne and Cary Grant for the first time since their Academy Award winner, "The Awful Truth," is showing at the New Liberty theater.

A marital comedy, written especially for Miss Dunne and Grant by Bella and Samuel Spewack, Broadway playwrights and screen writers, "My Favorite Wife" is a production by Leo McCarey, who brought Miss Dunne and Grant together in "The Awful Truth."

"My Favorite Wife" is accorded a streamlined treatment of the familiar Enoch Arden plot, equipped with martial mix-ups and plot complications which should develop the film into a ranking comedy success of the year. Miss Dunne, missing for seven years, supposedly drowned in the Pacific, is miraculously and quietly rescued, and returns home on the very day that her husband has had her declared legally dead and is embarking on his second honeymoon with Gail Patrick.

Miss Dunne intercepts the newlyweds, sending home a flabbergasted Cary Grant and his kissless bride. Returning, he learns that his first spouse spent those seven years alone with handsome Randolph Scott on a desert isle!

Technicolor Picture Is Booked at Embassy

The second feature will be "I Demand Payment" with Jack La Rue and Betty Hughes.

Closing today at the Embassy will be the double feature attraction consisting of "Texas Renegades" and "Non-Stop New York".

In addition, the Louis-Godoy fight films and another chapter of the serial, "The Shadow", will be offered.

American Success Story Is Screened

"Edison, the Man," now showing on the Maryland theater screen, is a success story. And looming above everything else is the portrayal of Spencer Tracy as Edison.

The supporting cast includes Rita Johnson, Lynne Overman, Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart, Henry Travers, Felix Bressart and clever actors who play Edison's loyal workmen.

"SAPS AT SEA"

FROM "MY FAVORITE WIFE"

Story of Philippines Is Told in Film

A brand new issue in the March of Time film series brings to the screen of the New Liberty theater today an engrossing story entitled "The Philippines: 1898-1946".

In this release The March of Time depicts the new problems facing the Philippines as a result of today's mounting war fever, and shows how Philippine independence —scheduled to take effect in 1946— is already seriously threatened by Japan's current expansion program in the South Pacific.

Many people in the Philippines today believe that a Japanese "Fifth Column"—an advance guard for occupation of the islands—is already at work laying the foundation for eventual seizure of the Philippines after their independence becomes effective, The March of Time shows.

In view of high current interest in the new technique of "Fifth Column" invasion, which was employed with great success by the Nazis in taking over Norway, this phase of the film should command attention and interest.

The federal government and the seven basin states have spent more than $3,000,000 on surveys of the Colorado River to determine its reclamation and power possibilities.

Physician Says Apple Is Own Cure for Colic

Dr. Adrian Gibbs Tells Mother How Child Should Be Fed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"Yes," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs to the mother, "I know that the cause of this child's colic is eating apples and I know it sounds queer to you for me to tell him to eat apples. Yet I want you to fix the apples in a certain particular way.

"Take a good Jonathan apple and pare it, and then take a spoon and scrape around and around until you get a nice mush, and then feed it to our little friend here a small amount at a time in the course of the next hour or two.

An Effective Cure

"I have been doing this for years and it is only recently that I find myself in fashion and having some authority behind me. Some European scientists began to use raw apple pulp and apple powder in different kinds of intestinal disorders, including summer complaint, in infants and children several years ago. I do not really believe that this child's diarrhea comes from eating apples. It is probably an infection, but at any rate the apple will do it good, whatever is the matter.

"It appears there is something in apple fiber that is called 'pectin' that is supposed to do the work. Don't ask me too much about pectin because I don't understand it myself although I have read all the scientific literature on the subject. All that I got out of the last article I read was that there were 1,000 cases of diarrhea of all kinds studied and ninety-eight per cent of them responded to the use of scraped raw apple pulp.

"You can give as much as two heaping teaspoonfuls of this to the baby with prospects of benefit, if you spread th edosage out over a couple of hours. For older people it is best to withhold all food for three or four days, except for a glass of water containing scraped apple, at three or four hour intervals.

Soft Diet Best

"When this baby begins to get better, don't feed any solid food for three or four days; give nothing but custards and egg. I should classify raw milk as a solid food; it becomes solid as soon as it gets into the stomach.

"If it is any comfort to you, you may also know that this raw apple pulp contains Vitamin A and that is supposed to have some beneficial action also.

"I understand that you can get dried apple powder now at the drug store but I see no reason for going to that trouble and expense when you can take a nice raw apple yourself and if you scrape it in front of the baby, it will probably increase his appetite for it and the very smell will make him feel better right away."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. E. N.—"Is there more suffering from heat today than back in the 'horse and buggy' days?"

Answer—Certainly not. With the use of electric fans, air conditioning and the availability of the automobile to carry people to the seashore and lakeside, our position is far better than our ancestors in the "horse and buggy" days in the United States. As a matter of fact, statistics show that heat prostrations have been reduced in the last decade about 50 per cent over the period of twenty or thirty years ago.

B. R.: "Please tell me how to obtain Vitamin E other than in wheat germ oil and green vegetables. I am under the impression that it can be had in concentrated form."

Answer: It has recently been isolated in concentrated form but the process is very expensive and the product correspondingly expensive. It can be obtained when a patient with a rare form of paralysis needs it, but it is not necessary for the average person to obtain it in this way because in an average diet there is plenty of Vitamin E to take care of the needs.

Garrison Finish by Reds Beats Bucs 5 to 4

Held Helpless in Pinches They Get Through in Ninth

Four Hits and Fumble Give Cincinnati Triumph

Three Runs in Final Frame Sew Up Ball Game

CINCINNATI, July 5. (AP)—The Reds staged an old-time garrison finish today, coming from behind with three runs in the ninth for a 5 to 4 victory over the Pirates.

Joe Beggs was the winning pitcher, his fourth triumph of the season in a relief role.

For eight innings, the Reds kept punching away, once, aided by one of two Pirate errors, loading the bases in the fourth.

But until the ninth inning splurge they left 10 men on base, and the case looked hopeless. Their only tally to that point was racked up on Ival Goodman's sixth homer of the year which also scored Lonnie Frey, who had singled.

The Pirates lost little time in forging to their long-held lead, Arky Vaughan's infield single and successive doubles by Maurice Van Robays and Vince DiMaggio netting two in the second.

A walk and two errors by Red shortstop Eddie Joost netted another in the fifth and in the next frome, Vaughan hit a homer.

In the ninth, with one away, Frey doubled for his third hit of the day. Goodman was saved by Vaughan's fumble and Frank McCormick singled to score the Red second baseman.

Mace Brown replaced MacFayden. He forced Ernie Lombardi to line but Harry Craft singled to score Goodman with the tying run and another one-base clout by Morrie Arnovich sent McCormick across the plate.

Berkley Springs Nines Win Clashes

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., July 5—Berkeley Springs' two sandlot baseball teams scored victories recently, the Panthers hanging a 5-2 setback on Blair and the Independents swamping the Jones Spring outfit 17-8. Both games were played here.

The Panthers drove out 11 hits as Miller, local hurler, pitched five-hit ball. Only one man in the Panther fold failed to hit safely. Bowden's homer in the first inning touched off a barrage that sent three men across the plate in that frame.

The Independents tallied in every inning except the last and collected an assortment of 25 hits. Six members of the winning team each had three blows while Gallion rapped out four safeties in six trips.

Barney and Stotler worked on the slab for the Independents while Manghini was the losing pitcher. The locals made five of their runs in the second on four hits and three walks. The Panther-Blair score:

Baer Needs Some Changing In Next Fight with Louis

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 5—When they capture Max Baer next September and toss him into the ring with Joe Louis, it will be five years to the month since the last time they played this same dirty trick on Max.

Ordinarily, from a study of the habits of the ferret, or stoat, I would not believe they could catch Baer napping again. The ferret, or stoat, can be trapped once, but if he emerges from the trap alive, it is practically impossible to trap the ferret, or stoat, a second time. And Baer's I. Q. is higher than the ferret's, or stoat's, in nine tests out of twelve.

This Max is full of primitive guile. Before he enters a room, he makes sure there are no contracts or similar papers in it, and no fountain pen concealed up the real silk shirt-sleeve of Mike Jacobs.

It is useless to bait the snare with a sirloin steak. Baer knows that the moment he touches the sirloin, a pair of Mike Jacobs's store teeth, carefully hidden in the parsley, will snap shut on his wrist and hold him there till he signs to fight Louis.

A Wary Eye On Louis

When climbing into a prize ring to be introduced, Max keeps a wary eye on Louis, who might suddenly strip off his bon ton gaberdine costume and his shoes and stand revealed in boxing trunks, ready for action. To defeat this artifice, Baer always carries with him a doctor's certificate testifying that he has six months to live — and not a day less.

"You wouldn't want to make a liar out of my personal physician, would you?" Max might ask Louis, and while Joe racked his brain for an answer, Mr. Baer would produce a pair of crutches and hobble out of the ring again, to take refuge with his fourteen lawyers, all armed to the teeth, or thereabouts.

As I say, that is Maxie's normal line of action. But I understand that the man has been framed, and that even now a contract for another Louis-Baer fight is drying on the clothesline in Mr. Jacobs's office. By what vicious ruse they obtained Max's signature, I do not know. The point is, they got it, and all Baer can do now is to claim he is under twenty-one, a very hard story to prove.

The contract is one thing. Luring Max into the ring is something else. I don't know how Mr. Jacobs and Max's manager, Ancil Hoffman, plan to work it, with Max prepared for every kind of trick, but these are men who will stop at nothing.

All Is Over

They could show Baer a morning paper with a picture of Louis getting off a ship at Honolulu. Satisfied that the menace was thousands of miles away, Maxie might agree to take a little drive with Mike and Ancil in the moonlight. By the time the chloroform wore off, the victim would find himself seated in a corner of a ring with gloves on his hands and Louis just opposite — not in Honolulu at all. The devilish plot would then become clear to Maxie. The picture was a hoax. Mr. Jacobs bought the newspaper beforehand. And now it is too late even to punch Mike in the nose. All is over.

If you think this theory is unfair to Max, he has only himself to blame for it. Maybe the butcher boy has changed in five years, but the last time he fought Louis, he was in a cold panic, and thus totally unable to defend himself. Unless he does change, unless he conquers this psychological obstacle, the next fight will be worse than the last one, and the public will be hamstrung.

I don't mean that Baer quit last time, in the physical sense of the word. He took punches until he could take no more. Louis testifies to that.

"I never hit nobody more hard punches, except maybe Godoy," says Joe.

But the reason he hit Max so hard so often was because Baer was paralyzed with alarm. His nerves were tight as fiddle strings, his reflexes didn't work. No man can fight his fight in that condition. To challenge Louis in the slightest degree, Baer must achieve at least some measure of nonchalance, like Galento and Godoy.

Galento and Godoy were by no means calm when they fought Louis. But they were calm enough to think and to act.

Max says he is now a new Baer. For the public's sake, and his own, he had better be.

The SPORT TRAIL

By GAIL FOWLER

(Batting for Whitney Martin)

SEATTLE, July 5 (AP)—The scribbled notes had lain forgotten until the wirephoto fellow came in the other night with the cigars and that beaming smile that means a nine-pound boy.

Then we dug out the notes and found "6,303-yard long hospital corridor," "Expectant fathers," "tough on golf courses as hospital" and a few other scrawled hieroglyphics.

And now we might as well write the story—as suggested by the nervous demeanor of Arnold Gleason, Spokane insurance man, while his 18-year-old daughter, Carol, was playing in the Pacific northwest women's golf tournament here last week.

What Gleason wants is a special golf clubhouse ward for high strung fathers whose offspring are competing in tournaments. This was the first tournament for his daughter, and Arnold lost 10 pounds and the skin off his sunburned nose tramping the fairways and flitting around the scoreboard trying to follow the girl without her seeing him.

"This is worse than pacing the corridor of a hospital," he moaned. "I'd rather have another baby than go through this—this—er, uncertainty."

Mrs. Gleason just gave him a look.

Miss Gleason did her best to prolong the agony.

She finally was put out on the last day in the first flight finals.

That 14-inning tussle in the American Association the other night in which Louisville had 21 men left on bases before defeating Columbus, brings to mind a recent Hollywood-Seattle game here.

Hollywood had 18 men stranded that night and lost in nine innings.

American Association records show 17 left as the record for a nine-inning game that loop, set by Kansas City five years ago, so the Pacific Coast League has it topped, although sketchy records don't disclose whether those 18 stranded stars made a permanent name for themselves in the books.

You never can tell what'll happen in a golf tournament.

Bud Ward of Spokane, the national amateur champion, won the Pacific northwest open with a nine-under-par 271 and the next week was second low qualifier in the northwest amateur, a stroke behind former U. S. Walker cupper Harry Givan of Seattle.

Then in the first round, Ward was eliminated on the 19th hole by 52-year old Ralph Whaley of Seattle, who, with his bow and arrow has killed every kind of game on the North American continent except buffalo and antelope.

Carrying on the upset motif, Whaley was eliminated two rounds later, and in the final Givan took the worst walloping of his career—and 11 and 9 shellacking from Jack Westland of Everett, Wash., who as a Chicagoan was a Walker Cup team member in 1932 and 1934. It was Westland's third consecutive northwest amateur title.

It was the second time Whaley had eliminated Ward in the Northwest tournament, as he turned the trick in 1935. He didn't need his bow and arrow either time, but maybe it's a suggestion for the boys in this year's national amateur.

Mrs. Quarrier Is Again Winner of W.Va. Golf Crown

Takes Title for Tenth Time, Beating Ex-Champ in Finals

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP) — Fritzi Stifel Quarrier, blonde Wheeling golfer, won her 10th state championship on the 16th hole today, defeating defending champion Ann Hoblitzell of Parkersburg.

Mrs. Quarrier, returning to tournament competition for the first time since her victory in 1937, won 3 and 2, shooting 70 to her opponent's 74.

The decision came on the greens, where the Parkersburg girl, three times a champion herself, faltered after matching her shorter, accurate game against Mrs. Quarrier's powerful golf.

Mrs. Hoblitzell won the first advantage, taking the third hole with a birdie four to her opponent's five after the first two had been halved.

Mrs. Quarrier was two up at the end of the ninth and then added another one with a birdie three to Mrs. Hoblitzell's four on the 10th.

They halved the 11th, but Mrs. Hoblitzell lost the 12th when her tee shot went into the rough and her third shot plumped into a trap. They halved the 13th with bogie fives, and then both recovered and shot par to halve the next.

Mrs. Hoblitzell won the 15th when her opponent shot into the rough, topped her second shot and then placed the third one 50 yards short. The Parkersburg player put her third on the green and chipped to within four feet of the pin, then sank it for five.

The match ended when both halved the 16th with par fives.

One Up On Uncle

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP) — Blonde Fritzi Stifel Quarrier went one up on her Uncle Jule in golf championships today, but then Jule Pollack said he would rather go fishing.

By winning the state title from Ann Hoblitzell of Parkersburg, Mrs. Quarrier stretched her string of victories in the amateur event to 10.

She told her uncle, who won the men's title nine times in earlier days, that he had better come down to compete again, just in case she won.

Uncle Jule replied, she said, that he would rather fish.

Giants Slug 15-2 Win over Phillies

NEW YORK, July 5. (AP) — The New York Giants partially made up for their shabby showing in the Dodgers series by whaling out a 15-2 victory over the Phillies today before a ladies day crowd of 10,234.

Hugh Mulcahy and Lefty Lloyd Brown of the Phils were touched for 17 blows while Cliff Melton went the route, scattering seven hits for his eighth victory of the season.

The Giants equalled their best previous scoring of the year in the second inning when they tallied eight runs and bounced Mulcahy.

Wilburn Captures Uniontown Feature

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 5. Speedy Jimmy Wilburn, of Los Angeles broke his own record to win the half-mile dirt track Independence Day feature at Uniontown Speedway.

Wilburn, 1938-39 champion of the Central States Automobile Racing Association, was clocked at 21.46—shattering his previous record of 21.72 for the lap. His time for the entire 30-mile feature was 14:39.98.

Johnny DeCamp, Richmond, Ind., pushed Wilburn hard and took second spot followed by Ed Zaluckie, third; Bob Dryer, fourth; Spider Webb, fifth and Henry Schlosser, sixth.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the program on the oiled-dirt track.

Garrison Finish by Reds Beats Bucs 5 to 4

Three Runs in Final Frame Sew Up Ball Game

CINCINNATI, July 5. (AP)—The Reds staged an old-time garrison finish today, coming from behind with three runs in the ninth for a 5 to 4 victory over the Pirates.

Joe Beggs was the winning pitcher, his fourth triumph of the season in a relief role.

For eight innings, the Reds kept punching away, once, aided by one of two Pirate errors, loading the bases in the fourth.

But until the ninth inning splurge they left 10 men on base, and the case looked hopeless. Their only tally to that point was racked up on Ival Goodman's sixth homer of the year which also scored Lonnie Frey, who had singled.

The Pirates lost little time in forging to their long-held lead, Arky Vaughan's infield single and successive doubles by Maurice Van Robays and Vince DiMaggio netting two in the second.

A walk and two errors by Red shortstop Eddie Joost netted another in the fifth and in the next frome, Vaughan hit a homer.

In the ninth, with one away, Frey doubled for his third hit of the day. Goodman was saved by Vaughan's fumble and Frank McCormick singled to score the Red second baseman.

Mace Brown replaced MacFayden. He forced Ernie Lombardi to line but Harry Craft singled to score Goodman with the tying run and another one-base clout by Morrie Arnovich sent McCormick across the plate.

Berkley Springs Nines Win Clashes

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., July 5—Berkeley Springs' two sandlot baseball teams scored victories recently, the Panthers hanging a 5-2 setback on Blair and the Independents swamping the Jones Spring outfit 17-8. Both games were played here.

The Panthers drove out 11 hits as Miller, local hurler, pitched five-hit ball. Only one man in the Panther fold failed to hit safely. Bowden's homer in the first inning touched off a barrage that sent three men across the plate in that frame.

The Independents tallied in every inning except the last and collected an assortment of 25 hits. Six members of the winning team each had three blows while Gallion rapped out four safeties in six trips.

Barney and Stotler worked on the slab for the Independents while Manghini was the losing pitcher. The locals made five of their runs in the second on four hits and three walks. The Panther-Blair score:

BLAIR	000 000 101	2	5 0

Blair—Slinkman, Dillow and H. Slinkman. Panthers—Miller and Waugh.

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 5—When they capture Max Baer next September and toss him into the ring with Joe Louis, it will be five years to the month since the last time they played this same dirty trick on Max.

Ordinarily, from a study of the habits of the ferret, or stoat, I would not believe they could catch Baer napping again. The ferret, or stoat, can be trapped once, but if he emerges from the trap alive, it is practically impossible to trap the ferret, or stoat, a second time. And Baer's I. Q. is higher than the ferret's, or stoat's, in nine tests out of twelve.

This Max is full of primitive guile. Before he enters a room, he makes sure there are no contracts or similar papers in it, and no fountain pen concealed up the real silk shirt-sleeve of Mike Jacobs.

It is useless to bait the snare with a sirloin steak. Baer knows that the moment he touches the sirloin, a pair of Mike Jacobs's store teeth, carefully hidden in the parsley, will snap shut on his wrist and hold him there till he signs to fight Louis.

A Wary Eye On Louis

When climbing into a prize ring to be introduced, Max keeps a wary eye on Louis, who might suddenly strip off his bon ton gaberdine costume and his shoes and stand revealed in boxing trunks, ready for action. To defeat this artifice, Baer always carries with him a doctor's certificate testifying that he has six months to live — and not a day less.

"You wouldn't want to make a liar out of my personal physician, would you?" Max might ask Louis, and while Joe racked his brain for an answer, Mr. Baer would produce a pair of crutches and hobble out of the ring again, to take refuge with his fourteen lawyers, all armed to the teeth, or thereabouts.

As I say, that is Maxie's normal line of action. But I understand that the man has been framed, and that even now a contract for another Louis-Baer fight is drying on the clothesline in Mr. Jacobs's office. By what vicious ruse they obtained Max's signature, I do not know. The point is, they got it, and all Baer can do now is to claim he is under twenty-one, a very hard story to prove.

The contract is one thing. Luring Max into the ring is something else. I don't know how Mr. Jacobs and Max's manager, Ancil Hoffman, plan to work it, with Max prepared for every kind of trick, but these are men who will stop at nothing.

All Is Over

They could show Baer a morning paper with a picture of Louis getting off a ship at Honolulu. Satisfied that the menace was thousands of miles away, Maxie might agree to take a little drive with Mike and Ancil in the moonlight. By the time the chloroform wore off, the victim would find himself seated in a corner of a ring with gloves on his hands and Louis just opposite — not in Honolulu at all. The devilish plot would then become clear to Maxie. The picture was a hoax. Mr. Jacobs bought the newspaper beforehand. And now it is too late even to punch Mike in the nose. All is over.

If you think this theory is unfair to Max, he has only himself to blame for it. Maybe the butcher boy has changed in five years, but the last time he fought Louis, he was in a cold panic, and thus totally unable to defend himself. Unless he does change, unless he conquers this psychological obstacle, the next fight will be worse than the last one, and the public will be hamstrung.

I don't mean that Baer quit last time, in the physical sense of the word. He took punches until he could take no more. Louis testifies to that.

"I never hit nobody more hard punches, except maybe Godoy," says Joe.

But the reason he hit Max so hard so often was because Baer was paralyzed with alarm. His nerves were tight as fiddle strings, his reflexes didn't work. No man can fight his fight in that condition. To challenge Louis in the slightest degree, Baer must achieve at least some measure of nonchalance, like Galento and Godoy.

Galento and Godoy were by no means calm when they fought Louis. But they were calm enough to think and to act.

Max says he is now a new Baer. For the public's sake, and his own, he had better be.

The SPORT TRAIL

By GAIL FOWLER

(Batting for Whitney Martin)

SEATTLE, July 5 (AP)—The scribbled notes had lain forgotten until the wirephoto fellow came in the other night with the cigars and that beaming smile that means a nine-pound boy.

Then we dug out the notes and found "6,303-yard long hospital corridor," "Expectant fathers," "tough on golf courses as hospital" and a few other scrawled hieroglyphics.

And now we might as well write the story—as suggested by the nervous demeanor of Arnold Gleason, Spokane insurance man, while his 18-year-old daughter, Carol, was playing in the Pacific northwest women's golf tournament here last week.

What Gleason wants is a special golf clubhouse ward for high strung fathers whose offspring are competing in tournaments. This was the first tournament for his daughter, and Arnold lost 10 pounds and the skin off his sunburned nose tramping the fairways and flitting around the scoreboard trying to follow the girl without her seeing him.

"This is worse than pacing the corridor of a hospital," he moaned. "I'd rather have another baby than go through this—this—er, uncertainty."

Mrs. Gleason just gave him a look.

Miss Gleason did her best to prolong the agony.

She finally was put out on the last day in the first flight finals.

That 14-inning tussle in the American Association the other night in which Louisville had 21 men left on bases before defeating Columbus, brings to mind a recent Hollywood-Seattle game here.

Hollywood had 18 men stranded that night and lost in nine innings.

American Association records show 17 left as the record for a nine-inning game that loop, set by Kansas City five years ago, so the Pacific Coast League has it topped, although sketchy records don't disclose whether those 18 stranded stars made a permanent name for themselves in the books.

You never can tell what'll happen in a golf tournament.

Bud Ward of Spokane, the national amateur champion, won the Pacific northwest open with a nine-under-par 271 and the next week was second low qualifier in the northwest amateur, a stroke behind former U. S. Walker cupper Harry Givan of Seattle.

Then in the first round, Ward was eliminated on the 19th hole by 52-year old Ralph Whaley of Seattle, who, with his bow and arrow has killed every kind of game on the North American continent except buffalo and antelope.

Carrying on the upset motif, Whaley was eliminated two rounds later, and in the final Givan took the worst walloping of his career—and 11 and 9 shellacking from Jack Westland of Everett, Wash., who as a Chicagoan was a Walker Cup team member in 1932 and 1934. It was Westland's third consecutive northwest amateur title.

It was the second time Whaley had eliminated Ward in the Northwest tournament, as he turned the trick in 1935. He didn't need his bow and arrow either time, but maybe it's a suggestion for the boys in this year's national amateur.

Mrs. Quarrier Is Again Winner of W.Va. Golf Crown

Takes Title for Tenth Time, Beating Ex-Champ in Finals

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP) — Fritzi Stifel Quarrier, blonde Wheeling golfer, won her 10th state championship on the 16th hole today, defeating defending champion Ann Hoblitzell of Parkersburg.

Mrs. Quarrier, returning to tournament competition for the first time since her victory in 1937, won 3 and 2, shooting 70 to her opponent's 74.

The decision came on the greens, where the Parkersburg girl, three times a champion herself, faltered after matching her shorter, accurate game against Mrs. Quarrier's powerful golf.

Mrs. Hoblitzell won the first advantage, taking the third hole with a birdie four to her opponent's five after the first two had been halved.

Mrs. Quarrier was two up at the end of the ninth and then added another one with a birdie three to Mrs. Hoblitzell's four on the 10th.

They halved the 11th, but Mrs. Hoblitzell lost the 12th when her tee shot went into the rough and her third shot plumped into a trap. They halved the 13th with bogie fives, and then both recovered and shot par to halve the next.

Mrs. Hoblitzell won the 15th when her opponent shot into the rough, topped her second shot and then placed the third one 50 yards short. The Parkersburg player put her third on the green and chipped to within four feet of the pin, then sank it for five.

The match ended when both halved the 16th with par fives.

One Up On Uncle

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP) — Blonde Fritzi Stifel Quarrier went one up on her Uncle Jule in golf championships today, but then Jule Pollack said he would rather go fishing.

By winning the state title from Ann Hoblitzell of Parkersburg, Mrs. Quarrier stretched her string of victories in the amateur event to 10.

She told her uncle, who won the men's title nine times in earlier days, that he had better come down to compete again, just in case she won.

Uncle Jule replied, she said, that he would rather fish.

Giants Slug 15-2 Win over Phillies

NEW YORK, July 5. (AP) — The New York Giants partially made up for their shabby showing in the Dodgers series by whaling out a 15-2 victory over the Phillies today before a ladies day crowd of 10,234.

Hugh Mulcahy and Lefty Lloyd Brown of the Phils were touched for 17 blows while Cliff Melton went the route, scattering seven hits for his eighth victory of the season.

The Giants equalled their best previous scoring of the year in the second inning when they tallied eight runs and bounced Mulcahy.

Wilburn Captures Uniontown Feature

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 5. Speedy Jimmy Wilburn, of Los Angeles broke his own record to win the half-mile dirt track Independence Day feature at Uniontown Speedway.

Wilburn, 1938-39 champion of the Central States Automobile Racing Association, was clocked at 21.46—shattering his previous record of 21.72 for the lap. His time for the entire 30-mile feature was 14:39.98.

Johnny DeCamp, Richmond, Ind., pushed Wilburn hard and took second spot followed by Ed Zaluckie, third; Bob Dryer, fourth; Spider Webb, fifth and Henry Schlosser, sixth.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the program on the oiled-dirt track.

Brooklyn Beats Boston in 20 Innings 6 to 2

Durable Dodgers Punch over Four In Final Flare-Up

Five Hour and 19-Minute Struggle Is "One For The Books"

Teams Fought Scoreless Ball from Ninth To Finish

BOSTON, July 5. (AP)—It took the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers 20 innings to subdue the seventh-place Boston Bees today by 6-2.

In a five-hour and 19-minute struggle that ranks as one of the longest games in modern baseball, the durable Dodgers punched across four runs in the twentieth and then blanked the Bees in their half for victory in the longest game in either league this season.

The two teams are not unaccustomed to playing over-time matches. Last year they went 23 innings to a 2-2 tie and in 1920 they set a major league record for the longest game by struggling through 26 innings to a 1-1 deadlock.

Newel Kimball got credit for the win, while Joe Sullivan, who put the winning runs on base in the 20th before he was relieved, was charged with the defeat.

Boston scored a run in the first inning, but the Dodgers tied it in the sixth and then went ahead by 2-1 in their half of the ninth, only to have the Bees' Philip Masi punch out a single to score Eddie Miller, with the tying run that same inning.

Boston threatened often, but the Dodgers played brilliantly afield and put off would-be rallies with three smartly executed double plays.

Red Sox Pound 14 Hits and Defeat Washington 9-4

Foxx Hits 20th Homer and Williams Wallops 11th of Season

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) — The Boston Red Sox stopped their American League descent today as they pounded out 14 hits to beat the Washington Senators 9 to 4.

Jimmy Foxx hit his 20th homer of the year with none on in the third and Ted Williams walloped his 11th in the fifth with one on. Jake Early hit a belated round tripper for the Senators in the eighth. Washington got 12 hits off Jim Bagby.

The Sox started early on young Walter Masterson, getting three runs in the second on Lou Finney's single, a walk, a wild pitch, and two singles. Foxx's homer gave them a 4 to 0 lead in the third.

Washington tallied its third, however, as Buddy Lewis singled, moved to third on two infield outs and came home on Cecil Travis' single. The fifth inning saw plenty of scoring with the Sox counting four times and the Senators twice.

Diving Star Bows Out With Victory

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Ohio State University's Al Patnik bowed out of the American diving picture late today by retaining his three-meter springboard championship.

The 23-year-old Pittsburgh star turned back the challenge of his friend and perrenial foe of Ohio State, Earl Clark, in the finals of the National A.A.U. swimming and diving tournament.

The event, which followed victory by youthful B. Akama of Hawaii in the one mile free-style race, featured the second day of the A.A.U. meet in Coral Casino pool.

Clark, the only diver to defeat Patnik in four years of major competition, was generally favored to lift the crown because of his victory over the champion in the qualifying round.

At the end of the five compulsory dives, Clark held a margin lead of less than one point, but he lost it, and a chance to attain the title, in the optional back, one and a half layout, when Patnik cut the green waters for a score of 99, and Clark fell off with 72.6, his worst dive of the event.

At the finish, Patnik had scored 163.8 points, Clark 160.94 points. Clark rallied on the final and hit 108.1 with a marvelous full twist forward one and a half, while Patnik had to be content with 96.6 points.

Patnik, newly graduated from Ohio State, announced his retirement from A.A.U. competition. He plans to go into business in Cleveland.

Athletics Beat Yankees 6 to 3

PHILADELPHIA, July 5 (AP) — Home runs by Bob Johnson and Frank Hayes, coupled with Johnny Babich's seven-hit pitching, gave the Athletics a 6 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees before 25,520 at Shibe Park tonight.

Joe Gordon and Joe DiMaggio blasted a pair of round trippers for the Yanks, but both came with the bases empty.

Hayes connected for his four-base clout following Dick Siebert's single in the fourth. Johnson's smash came off relief pitcher Steve Sundra with Benny McCoy on base in the eighth and assured victory.

Babish, who beat the Yanks in a ten-inning game at New York last Sunday, was in trouble in the second and eighth, but pulled out with a minimum of damage. Following Gordon's homer in the second the Yanks loaded the sacks with one out but failed to score another run.

In the eighth DiMaggio's double, a walk to George Selkirk and Gordon's single gave the Yanks their third run. Selkirk was nipped trying to go to third on Gordon't hit to cut short the rally. Coach Art Fletcher was banished for protesting the decision.

Johnson's single in the opening inning following walks to Bill Lillard and Wally Moses scored the A's first run. Moses came home when Selkirk fumbled the ball.

AFTER THE FOURTH

If you recall young April's preview in Florida and other training centers, the following was booked to happen through baseball's 1940 season—just as the first peach trees were in bloom and the dogwood was snow-white in Dixie:

Yankees and Red Sox were to scrap it out for the A. L. pennant with Yankees favored; in fact, as 1 to 2 shots against the field.

Reds, Cardinals and Dodgers were to mix it up for the N. L. flag, with Reds and Cardinals favored.

Having skipped lightly by the Fourth of July there seems to be a slight discrepancy in the April outlook. The crash of the Yankees was the high spot in one league while the Cardinal cave-in was almost as puzzling in the other.

The Dodgers struck off a slightly faster gait than many looked for, but the main uprising took part among the Giants, Indians and Tigers, who refused to believe what they read back in April.

After all, no ball games are played on copy paper, and no early predictions are made on the field under fire.

Looking Ahead

The stretch is still well ahead, on through and beyond July and August heat, which often leaves sagging morale a trifle frizzled.

Here are the main queries to be considered—

1. Can Indians and Tigers maintain their early foot on to the wire?

2. What is the chance for a keen Yankee revival, with dust removed from the batting eyes of many Yankee stars?

3. Can Reds, Dodgers and Giants hold their near deadlock until late September, or will one or more from this trio hit the soapy chute a trifle later on?

4. Will the Red Sox be able to locate their lost pitching force, wandering in the underbrush for many weeks?

The main problems here are the Yankees and Red Sox.

The Yankees have almost the same club that was something like 13 games in front just a year ago. There is no logical reason for any such headlong dive as they have taken from their four-year leadership.

Red Sox pitching was known to be on the softer side from the start, but it is due to improve.

Most of the Yankee trouble has been on the jittery mental side. They were not used to being shoved around by high and low alike. Bill Dickey is overdue for an early revival, and if this happens the Yankees will be another team. If it doesn't—well, you can turn back to Father Ryan's poem on "The Conquered Banner."

I believe you will hear a lot more thunder from Dickey's bat the rest of the route. If you ever chased Arkansas Bill through an all-day quail hunt on his native heath you would at least know there was nothing the matter with his long legs.

Another Forecast

It is my somewhat blurred belief that the Reds and Tigers will be the two teams to beat. In the first and main place, they have the pitching—so far, at any rate.

Cincinnati can offer Walters, Derringer, Thompson, Turner, Whitey Moore and others day after day—a highly-dependable outfit.

Detroit can offer Buck Newsom, Bridges, Rowe and several younger stars, backed up by long distance artillery.

Cleveland, with a better infield and a pitching staff headed by Feller and Milnar, has about an even chance. It would be no surprise to see young Feller reach the 30-game mark, with Milnar over the 20-game border. The two should be good for 50 victories, which is no meager chunk.

The Dodgers must still bank on the finest spirit in either league. They have that type of a front man in Larry MacPhail and they have that type of a manager and field leader in Leo Durocher. Here is the best hustling outfit in baseball, and hustle is a factor that will count against known odds when the pressure develops a tighter squeeze.

What the Yankees need is a bunch of giant firecrackers set off under their bench to wake them up again. They are no longer any part of sure things, but they are not out of it unless they bog down mentally and psychologically.

So it is still too soon to count the Yankees out. No one can look back on their record through four years and not give them a chance—a fighting chance, at least. Dickey and Gordon are almost certain to move up. So is Joe DiMaggio. The team, after a fashion, slumped or cracked up together, almost as a unit.

They may hit the comeback trail in the same fashion. They are still dangerous with three months ahead. But they can afford no further extensive lapses. There are too many good ball clubs barring the highway.

Hagerstown Racing Starts Next Week

Hagerstown, Md., July 5—Maryland's 1940 half-mile track racing reason will be launched here Tuesday, July 9, with the opening of the annual ten-day race meet of the Hagerstown Fair Association.

General Manager Harold F. Bester reported to the officers and directors of the association today that all was in readiness for the session and that Hagerstown can now boast of the finest half-mile oval in the country.

During the past several weeks the track installed a complete totalisator system, greatly renovated its clubhouse and grandstand and resurfaced the track. A Puett electric starting gate will be used.

With over 500 thoroughbreds available, Racing Secretary Edward J. Brennan has selected the best for local cards and fans can expect a calibre of racing found only on larger tracks.

Manager Bester reported that arrangements have been completed for special train service daily from Washington.

The grounds of the association provide ample parking room for automobiles.

City Net Tourney Nears Final Stage

Weather permitting, the annual city tennis championship tournament will be completed this weekend, it was announced yesterday by Director L. E. "Red" Van Sant, who added that matches not arranged and played immediately will be defaulted.

In the men's singles division, Robert Bane advanced to the quarter-finals by eliminating W. E. Hinkel 6-2, 6-3 Thursday on the Dingle courts.

Russ Ponton and K. R. Dye, beginning their quest for the men's doubles crown, defeated Gordon Bowie and Gower 8-6, 6-4 Thursday at the Cumberland Country Club.

In women's singles, Cody Whitman went to the semi-final round by disposing of Margaret Hetzel 7-5, 7-5. Miss Whitman will next play the winner of the Mrs. Peyton Brown-Mrs. James Kelly match.

Tutwiler To Play Bannerot in Final

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—True to the gallery's predictions, an ex-champion and the defender frustrated the rallies of the opposition today to put Fred Bannerot and Ed Tutwiler in the finals of the state amateur golf tournament.

Tutwiler, playing for his second title, caught John Chenoweth short just as the Charleston city champion was making a desperate recovery, and the semi-finals match went to the 20-year-old titleholder from Mount Hope.

Bannerot, twice a champion, stood on the 18th green and watched Fred Hawkins of Charleston make a fine try for a 52-foot putt. It missed and Bannerot had another chance for a state crown.

The winners will meet tomorrow in a 36-hole finals match, postponed one day because rain washed out the second round play on Wednesday.

"King Tut" was the favorite to defeat Bannerot, largely because the bronzed youngster's booming drives have smothered every type of opposition in this tournament.

On the other hand, the champion of 1932 and 1933 is a hammering marvel from the tees and also is one of the most canny of players on a short game.

In his 2 and 1 defeat of Chenoweth, Tutwiler also demonstrated his superiority on the greens, a department wherein the Charleston player developed shakiness at times.

Wilkinson's Win Two

The Wilkinson's Grocers took two games in recent days, winning from Corriganville by forfeit Wednesday, and tripping Narrows Park yesterday 5 to 4. McAwlee pitched for the Wilkinson's with Durst catching, while Martin and Moore made up the Park battery.

Brooklyn Beats Boston in 20 Innings 6 to 2

Durable Dodgers Punch over Four In Final Flare-Up

Five Hour and 19-Minute Struggle Is "One For The Books"

Teams Fought Scoreless Ball from Ninth To Finish

BOSTON, July 5. (AP)—It took the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers 20 innings to subdue the seventh-place Boston Bees today by 6-2.

In a five-hour and 19-minute struggle that ranks as one of the longest games in modern baseball, the durable Dodgers punched across four runs in the twentieth and then blanked the Bees in their half for victory in the longest game in either league this season.

The two teams are not unaccustomed to playing over-time matches. Last year they went 23 innings to a 2-2 tie and in 1920 they set a major league record for the longest game by struggling through 26 innings to a 1-1 deadlock.

The Dodgers, in winning their sixth straight game, polled 12 hits off four Boston pitchers, while five Dodger hurlers gave up 14 blows.

Newel Kimball got credit for the win, while Joe Sullivan, who put the winning runs on base in the 20th before he was relieved, was charged with the defeat.

Boston scored a run in the first inning, but the Dodgers tied it in the sixth and then went ahead by 2-1 in their half of the ninth, only to have the Bees' Philip Masi punch out a single to score Eddie Miller, with the tying run that same inning.

Boston threatened often, but the Dodgers played brilliantly afield and cut off would-be rallies with three smartly executed double plays.

Foxx Hits 20th Homer and Williams Wallops 11th of Season

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) — The Boston Red Sox stopped their American League descent today as they pounded out 14 hits to beat the Washington Senators 9 to 4.

Jimmy Foxx hit his 20th homer of the year with none on in the third and Ted Williams walloped his 11th in the fifth with one on. Jake Early hit a belated round tripper for the Senators in the eighth. Washington got 12 hits off Jim Bagby.

The Sox started early on young Walter Masterson, getting three runs in the second on Lou Finney's single, a walk, a wild pitch, and two singles. Foxx's homer gave them a 4 to 0 lead in the third.

Washington tallied its third, however, as Buddy Lewis singled, moved to third on two infield outs and came home on Cecil Travis' single. The fifth inning saw plenty of scoring with the Sox counting four times and the Senators twice.

Diving Star Bows Out With Victory

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Ohio State University's Al Patnik bowed out of the American diving picture late today by retaining his three-meter springboard championship.

The 23-year-old Pittsburgh star turned back the challenge of his friend and perrenial foe of Ohio State, Earl Clark, in the finals of the National A.A.U. swimming and diving tournament.

The event, which followed victory by youthful B. Akama of Hawaii in the one mile free-style race, featured the second day of the A.A.U. meet in Coral Casino pool.

Clark, the only diver to defeat Patnik in four years of major competition, was generally favored to lift the crown because of his victory over the champion in the qualifying round.

At the end of the five compulsory dives, Clark held a margin lead of less than one point, but he lost it, and a chance to attain the title, in the optional back, one and a half layout, when Patnik cut the green waters for a score of 99, and Clark fell off with 72.6, his worst dive of the event.

At the finish, Patnik had scored 163.8 points, Clark 160.94 points. Clark rallied on the final and hit 108.1 with a marvelous full twist forward one and a half, while Patnik had to be content with 96.6 points.

Patnik, newly graduated from Ohio State, announced his retirement from A.A.U. competition. He plans to go into business in Cleveland.

Three Homers by Cubs Sew Up Game

ST. LOUIS, July 5. (AP)—Four-run, three-run and two-run home runs powered the Chicago Cubs to an 11 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

Glen Russell hit for the circuit with the bases filled, Augie Galan with two on and Bill Nicholson with one aboard. On top of that, Billy Herman had a perfect day at bat with four singles. The Cubs got 15 hits altogether.

No one was on base for the Cards when Johnny Mize hit his twenty-first homer of the season and Terry Moore his seventh off Lefty Vern Olsen. He had to be rescued by Ken Raffensburger in the eighth when the Cards threatened.

Athletics Beat Yankees 6 to 3

PHILADELPHIA, July 5 (AP) — Home runs by Bob Johnson and Frank Hayes, coupled with Johnny Babich's seven-hit pitching, gave the Athletics a 6 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees before 25,520 at Shibe Park tonight.

Joe Gordon and Joe DiMaggio blasted a pair of round trippers for the Yanks, but both came with the bases empty.

Hayes connected for his four-base clout following Dick Siebert's single in the fourth. Johnson's smash came off relief pitcher Steve Sundra with Benny McCoy on base in the eighth and assured victory.

Babish, who beat the Yanks in a ten-inning game at New York last Sunday, was in trouble in the second and eighth, but pulled out with a minimum of damage. Following Gordon's homer in the second the Yanks loaded the sacks with one out but failed to score another run.

In the eighth DiMaggio's double, a walk to George Selkirk and Gordon's single gave the Yanks their third run. Selkirk was nipped trying to go to third on Gordon't hit to cut short the rally. Coach Art Fletcher was banished for protesting the decision.

Johnson's single in the opening inning following walks to Bill Lillard and Wally Moses scored the A's first run. Moses came home when Selkirk fumbled the ball.

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox unloosed a 13-hit attack today to defeat St. Louis 10 to 8, in a slugging match which gave the Chicago team its fourth straight victory.

The Browns made seven hits, including homers by Harlond Clift and Walter Judnich, off Johnny Rigney and Pete Appleton. Rigney, who didn't allow a hit in the first four innings, was driven from the mound in the fifth, but Appleton finished up satisfactorily while the White Sox continued their hitting spree.

Nalon Breaks Auto Record

MECHANICSBURG, Pa., July 5 (AP)—Duke Nalon, Chicago, bettered a world's record for a twelve-lap auto race on a half-mile dirt track in an A.A.A.-sanctioned program at the Williams Speedway yesterday with a time of 5.31.09.

Nalon's time bettered by .2.21 seconds the record established by Buddy Rusch, Dallas, Texas, at Williams Grove last October 8.

AFTER THE FOURTH

If you recall young April's preview in Florida and other training centers, the following was booked to happen through baseball's 1940 season—just as the first peach trees were in bloom and the dogwood was snow-white in Dixie:

Yankees and Red Sox were to scrap it out for the A. L. pennant with Yankees favored; in fact, as 1 to 2 shots against the field.

Reds, Cardinals and Dodgers were to mix it up for the N. L. flag, with Reds and Cardinals favored.

Having skipped lightly by the Fourth of July there seems to be a slight discrepancy in the April outlook. The crash of the Yankees was the high spot in one league while the Cardinal cave-in was almost as puzzling in the other.

The Dodgers struck off a slightly faster gait than many looked for, but the main uprising took part among the Giants, Indians and Tigers, who refused to believe what they read back in April.

After all, no ball games are played on copy paper, and no early predictions are made on the field under fire.

Looking Ahead

The stretch is still well ahead, on through and beyond July and August heat, which often leaves sagging morale a trifle frizzled.

Here are the main queries to be considered—

1. Can Indians and Tigers maintain their early foot on to the wire?

2. What is the chance for a keen Yankee revival, with dust removed from the batting eyes of many Yankee stars?

3. Can Reds, Dodgers and Giants hold their near deadlock until late September, or will one or more from this trio hit the soapy chute a trifle later on?

4. Will the Red Sox be able to locate their lost pitching force, wandering in the underbrush for many weeks?

The main problems here are the Yankees and Red Sox.

The Yankees have almost the same club that was something like 13 games in front just a year ago. There is no logical reason for any such headlong dive as they have taken from their four-year leadership.

Red Sox pitching was known to be on the softer side from the start, but it is due to improve.

Most of the Yankee trouble has been on the jittery mental side. They were not used to being shoved around by high and low alike. Bill Dickey is overdue for an early revival, and if this happens the Yankees will be another team. If it doesn't—well, you can turn back to Father Ryan's poem on "The Conquered Banner."

I believe you will hear a lot more thunder from Dickey's bat the rest of the route. If you ever chased Arkansas Bill through an all-day quail hunt on his native heath you would at least know there was nothing the matter with his long legs.

Another Forecast

It is my somewhat blurred belief that the Reds and Tigers will be the two teams to beat. In the first and main place, they have the pitching—so far, at any rate.

Cincinnati can offer Walters, Derringer, Thompson, Turner, Whitey Moore and others day after day—a highly-dependable outfit.

Detroit can offer Buck Newsom, Bridges, Rowe and several younger stars, backed up by long distance artillery.

Cleveland, with a better infield and a pitching staff headed by Feller and Milnar, has about an even chance. It would be no surprise to see young Feller reach the 30-game mark, with Milnar over the 20-game border. The two should be good for 50 victories, which is no meager chunk.

The Dodgers must still bank on the finest spirit in either league. They have that type of a front man in Larry MacPhail and they have that type of a manager and field leader in Leo Durocher. Here is the best hustling outfit in baseball, and hustle is a factor that will count against known odds when the pressure develops a tighter squeeze.

What the Yankees need is a bunch of giant firecrackers set off under their bench to wake them up again. They are no longer any part of sure things, but they are not out of it unless they bog down mentally and psychologically.

So it is still too soon to count the Yankees out. No one can look back on their record through four years and not give them a chance—a fighting chance, at least. Dickey and Gordon are almost certain to move up. So is Joe DiMaggio. The team, after a fashion, slumped or cracked up together, almost as a unit.

They may hit the comeback trail in the same fashion. They are still dangerous with three months ahead. But they can afford no further extensive lapses. There are too many good ball clubs barring the highway.

Hagerstown Racing Starts Next Week

Hagerstown, Md., July 5—Maryland's 1940 half-mile track racing reason will be launched here Tuesday, July 9, with the opening of the annual ten-day race meet of the Hagerstown Fair Association.

General Manager Harold F. Bester reported to the officers and directors of the association today that all was in readiness for the session and that Hagerstown can now boast of the finest half-mile oval in the country.

During the past several weeks the track installed a complete totalisator system, greatly renovated its clubhouse and grandstand and resurfaced the track. A Puett electric starting gate will be used.

With over 500 thoroughbreds available, Racing Secretary Edward J. Brennan has selected the best for local cards and fans can expect a calibre of racing found only on larger tracks.

Manager Bester reported that arrangements have been completed for special train service daily from Washington.

Daily programs will consist of seven races with purses scaling to $600 and post time at 2:30 o'clock.

The grounds of the association provide ample parking room for automobiles.

City Net Tourney Nears Final Stage

Weather permitting, the annual city tennis championship tournament will be completed this weekend, it was announced yesterday by Director L. E. "Red" Van Sant, who added that matches not arranged and played immediately will be defaulted.

In the men's singles division, Robert Bane advanced to the quarter-finals by eliminating W. E. Hinkel 6-2, 6-3 Thursday on the Dingle courts.

Russ Ponton and K. R. Dye, beginning their quest for the men's doubles crown, defeated Gordon Bowie and Gower 8-6, 6-4 Thursday at the Cumberland Country Club.

In women's singles, Cody Whitman went to the semi-final round by disposing of Margaret Hetzel 7-5, 7-5. Miss Whitman will next play the winner of the Mrs. Peyton Brown-Mrs. James Kelly match.

Tutwiler To Play Bannerot in Final

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—True to the gallery's predictions, an ex-champion and the defender frustrated the rallies of the opposition today to put Fred Bannerot and Ed Tutwiler in the finals of the state amateur golf tournament.

Tutwiler, playing for his second title, caught John Chenoweth short just as the Charleston city champion was making a desperate recovery, and the semi-finals match went to the 20-year-old titleholder from Mount Hope.

Bannerot, twice a champion, stood on the 18th green and watched Fred Hawkins of Charleston make a fine try for a 52-foot putt. It missed and Bannerot had another chance for a state crown.

The winners will meet tomorrow in a 36-hole finals match, postponed one day because rain washed out the second round play on Wednesday.

"King Tut" was the favorite to defeat Bannerot, largely because the bronzed youngster's booming drives have smothered every type of opposition in this tournament.

On the other hand, the champion of 1932 and 1933 is a hammering marvel from the tees and also is one of the most canny of players on a short game.

In his 2 and 1 defeat of Chenoweth, Tutwiler also demonstrated his superiority on the greens, a department wherein the Charleston player developed shakiness at times.

Wilkinson's Win Two

The Wilkinson's Grocers took two games in recent days, winning from Corriganville by forfeit Wednesday, and tripping Narrows Park yesterday 5 to 4. McAwlee pitched for the Wilkinson's with Durst catching, while Martin and Moore made up the Park battery.

Thomas Mewshaw Former Master Mechanic, Dies

Injuries in Automobile Accident in Canada Prove Fatal

Thomas Edward Mewshaw, 50, former master mechanic at the local Baltimore and Ohio roundhouse, died yesterday at a hospital in Timiskaming, Canada, of pneumonia which developed as a result of injuries he is reported to have received in an automobile accident last Monday.

According to word received here by friends, Mr. Mewshaw was spending his vacation in Canada when the accident which caused his death occurred on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Mewshaw, native of Elk Ridge, Md., came to Cumberland in 1921 from the B.&O. shops at Glenwood Pa., where he was general foreman. Prior to becoming master mechanic here in about 1928 he served as assistant master mechanic under the late Thomas F. Perkinson, the late August Hodges and Franklin Pritchey, who now resides in Baltimore.

On April 1, 1938, when the local back shops and roundhouse were consolidated with Jack Rowe as superintendent, Mr. Mewshaw was transferred to DuBois, Pa., to the post of master mechanic at the shops of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh branch of the B.&O. railroad. He held this position at the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Carl Mewshaw, who is a machinist apprentice at DuBois and Charles Mewshaw, employed by the Bethlehem Steel company, Baltimore; his father, Charles A. Mewshaw, former trainmaster on the Baltimore division, B.&O. railroad, and now rule examiner for B.&O. Eastern lines; one brother and two sisters.

THE PARK'S BEST FRIEND— Doctor Thomas W. Koon, former mayor who visualized Constitution Park long before the work ever began, was on hand for Thursday's "Americanism Day" program. "With the help of the WPA, the city has made a park out of a wilderness," Dr. Koon declared.

"AMERICA IS GETTING SOFT"— This warning was sounded by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, principal speaker at Thursday's Fourth of July program at Constitution Park. His thumbs hooked in his vest pockets, Judge Sloan bluntly told the large audience, "we are nearer to this war than most people think."

STRESSED FREEDOM— The Rev. Boniface Weckman, O. M. Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, Thursday was described by Master-Of-Ceremonies William A. Gunter as a "good man who goes about doing good". America's freedom to worship was stressed by Father Boniface in his address at the amphitheater.

Price Increases Recommended by Beer Dealers

Lower Price Favored For Bottled Beer on Outskirts of City

A recommendation that the price of bottle beer be increased from ten to fifteen cents and that draught beer be sold for ten cents a glass at establishments in the central section of the city was made yesterday at a joint meeting of the Allegany County Retail Liquor and Beer Dealers' associations at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

At the same time it was recommended that bottled beer be sold at the rate of two-for-a-quarter at places on the outskirts of the city and in the smaller towns.

The all-around increase was suggested for places operating in the central section of the city because owners at those establishments are required to pay higher rent than those located in the outlying districts. Under the recommendation retail dealers in North and South Cumberland could sell bottled beer at two bottles for twenty-five cents, as well as places operating in the smaller towns.

Because of the small turnout of dealers at yesterday's session no definite action was taken but the recommendations will be submitted at another joint meeting of the county associations to be held next Tuesday at 2 p. m., in the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The majority in attendance at yesterday's meeting were liquor dealers, ample proof that whiskey is stronger than beer.

It was estimated at 3,500 persons were present at the amphitheatre for "Americanism Day" ceremonies and that there were at least 400 family picnics on the grounds. Defense of Liberty To Be Tough Job, Judge Sloan Says

Life in United States Has Been Too Easy, Jurist Tells Crowd

Defending America's liberty is going to be a tougher job in the future than it has in the past, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan told an audience of 3,500 Thursday at Constitution Park.

Speaking in th beautiful outdoor amphitheatre, Judge Sloan told his attentive audience that he had no fear of fifth columnists nor did he doubt the loyalty of the descendents of people who fled Europe and persecution.

"I have no fear of fifth columnists in this country" Judge Sloan said. We can catch them and give them what's coming to them. Nor am I fearful regarding the allegiance of our people.

America Soft

"But life, in recent years, has become easier and easier. And America has became soft. Our forefathers traveled a hard road, a harder road than anyone would be willing to travel now. And as we look back, we must admit that our people have had more fun than worry and sorrow."

Judge Sloan referred to a propeople of the United States were going to have to buck up and be willing to make greater sacrifices for the freedom they enjoy.

He quoted a statement by a well-known military authority who declared recently that the United States has barely a skeleton army and that a call for volunteers would meet little response.

Referring to the boys and girls in the audience, Judge Sloan said they were going to be called on for military service. He said they would be called, not asked to volunteer.

"In the past," Judge Sloan said, "all we've asked is to be let alone."

It Happen Here

But of late, he added, Americans have become more and more uneasy over such familiar quotations as "It Can't Happen Here."

"Most of us will agree, I think, that the quotation "It Needn't Happen Here" is more suitable in our case," Judge Sloan said.

Juudge Sloan referred to a prophetic statement taken from the memories of General Ulysses S. Grant. General Grant declared, "to maintain peace in the future it is necessary to be prepared for war."

In the future, the Civil War leader predicted twenty years ago, a combined movement "may be made to crush us out."

Concluding, Judge Sloan told the audience that Americans must be willing to foot the bill for an adequate defense program and make necessary sacrifices to protect the freedom this country has enjoyed for 164 years.

Other leading Cumberland citizens who took part in Thursday's program were Dr. Thomas W. Koon, former mayor; Mayor Harry Irvine, William A. Gunter, the Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox, and the Rev. Alfred L. Creager.

Edgar Reynolds was chairman of the program committee. He was assisted by Lester Bolinger, Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Vincent P. Ingram and Wesley Abrams, American Legion; Mayor Harry Irvine and Commissioners James Orr, William J. Edwards and Thomas F. Conlon.

The band of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, supplied the musical portion of the program.

Youth Is Seventh Motor Accident Victim of Year

Quietest 4th in History Experienced in City

Cumberland experienced one of the quietest Fourth's in its history, Chief Oscar A. Eyerman said yesterday.

No arrests were made for the violation of the new municipal ordinance banning the sale or setting off of fireworks within the city limits.

Allegany and Memorial hospitals also reported a quiet Independence Day. No persons were treated at either hospital for burns received from fireworks.

Few explosions were heard in Cumberland, but in other sections of the county the noise was terrific, one of the noisest spots being at the Celanese plant gates when the shifts were changed.

Allegany county's seventh motor accident fatality of the year was recorded on Independence Day when Paul Clinton Grant, 20, of Cresaptown, was instantly killed when hurled from a skidding automobile on Dan's mountain road and two of his companions suffered injuries about the head and are now under observation at Allegany hospital.

Those injured are:

Robert W. Elliott, 16, of Cresaptown, brush burns about the face and cuts about the head.

James Grant, 16, brush burns about the back and scalp lacerations.

Condition "Fair"

The condition of both youths is reported "fair" by hospital attaches.

Investigating the accident, Officer George J. Miller, of the State Police, reported the machine carried no license tags and that Grant did not have a driver's card. The officer was told the machine was purchased several months ago from a Flintstone man by Robert W. Elliott, but the vehicle was not registered at the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Boys Pinned under Car

Grant, a parcel post messenger at the Celanese plant, accompanied by his brother James, and young Elliott, were riding on the Brant road shortly after 10 a. m., and while descending a grade and rounding a curve the machine skidded, turned over twice and landed on the open top. Elliott and James Grant were pinned beneath while Paul was hurled clear. The latter was pronounced dead by Dr. Linne H. Corson, medical examiner. His neck was broken.

Pried Boys Loose

Philip S. Gordon and Clarence W. Shuck, of Rawlings, obtained a log and pried the overturned car from the other boys and then took all three to the hospital.

Paul C. Grant was a son of Richard and Eva Grant, and besides his parents is survived by two brothers, Robert and William and five sisters, Mrs. T. J. Clayton, Pinto; Mrs. Mildred Raley, Cresaptown; Mrs. Thomas Shimes, Eckhart, and Pauline and Verna Ruth Grant, at home. He was a member of the Pentecostal church.

It marked the fifth fatal automobile accident of the year in the county and Grant was the seventh person to die in a highway mishap. Twelve were killed in auto accidents in the county in 1939.

Six Persons Injured

Six other persons were injured in holiday accidents.

Leonard Ward, 22, of Ridgeley, a B. and O. employe at the Keyser, W. Va., shops, was injured about

Sheriff, Tax Collector Completely Outsmart Fish in South Branch

Two Cumberland fishermen, looking very happy about the whole thing, yesterday reported having completely outsmarted the fish in the South Branch on July 4.

The fish were absolutely no match for the bait offered by themselves, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and City Tax Collector James M. Conway modestly reported yesterday.

As a result both angleds and other members of the Radcliffe party today had a very fell-fed self-satisfied look. This was partly due to the fish and partly due to the fact that Ralph "Doc" Wilkinson, who accompanied the party in the capacity of chef, cooked them.

Asked to tell the secret of their success, Fisherman Radcliffe replied "worms."

The plain worms along with a few chubs were used by Conway and Radcliffe in snaring enough fish to turn life on the South Branch into a continual round of fish fries.

The fishermen also did some casting but for the most part they relied on the worms and chubs.

Legion Ladies Win Meade Cup Second Time

Sold 4,500 Poppies; Will Receive Award At Convention Here

For the second straight year the Ladies auxiliary of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 will be awarded the Meade cup for having sold the greatest number of poppies in the state on annual "Poppy Day", it was announced yesterday by Mrs. David Allen, chairman of the local auxiliary's "Poppy Day" committee.

The Meade silver cup, donated by Mrs Meade, Department of Maryland treasurer, was placed in competition in 1939 and the auxiliary of Fort Cumberland Post won its first leg on the prize by selling 4,000 poppies.

This year the local post was credited with selling 4,500 poppies. Between forty and fifty Cumberland high school girls sold the artificial flowers and Miss Betty Bogler was awarded the first of three prizes for having sold the greatest number of poppies.

Another first place in the state contest will give the Fort Cumberland post auxiliary permanent possession of the Meade cup which must be won three times not necessarily in succession.

Poppies sold by the American Legion are made by disabled war veterans at the Perry Point hospital.

In 1938 the auxiliary of Fort Cumberland Post received a gavel from the State Department for having topped the other posts in the state in the annual poppy sale.

The Meade cup, now in possession of Fort Cumberland Post, will be turned over to the State Department at a meeting of the executive committee to be held at the War Memorial, Baltimore, July 18, and the prize again will be presented to Fort Cumberland Post at the Department convention scheduled for Cumberland, August 21 to 24, inclusive.

The Meade cup, now in possession of Fort Cumberland Post, will be turned over to the State Department at a meeting of the executive committee to be held at the War Memorial, Baltimore, July 18, and the prize again will be presented to Fort Cumberland Post at the Department convention scheduled for Cumberland, August 21 to 24, inclusive.

Defense of Liberty To Be Tough Job, Judge Sloan Says

Life in United States Has Been Too Easy, Jurist Tells Crowd

Defending America's liberty is going to be a tougher job in the future than it has in the past, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan told an audience of 3,500 Thursday at Constitution Park.

Speaking in th beautiful outdoor amphitheatre, Judge Sloan told his attentive audience that he had no fear of fifth columnists nor did he doubt the loyalty of the descendents of people who fled Europe and persecution.

"I have no fear of fifth columnists in this country" Judge Sloan said. We can catch them and give them what's coming to them. Nor am I fearful regarding the allegiance of our people.

America Soft

"But life, in recent years, has become easier and easier. And America has became soft. Our forefathers traveled a hard road, a harder road than anyone would be willing to travel now. And as we look back, we must admit that our people have had more fun than worry and sorrow."

Judge Sloan referred to a propeople of the United States were going to have to buck up and be willing to make greater sacrifices for the freedom they enjoy.

He quoted a statement by a well-known military authority who declared recently that the United States has barely a skeleton army and that a call for volunteers would meet little response.

Referring to the boys and girls in the audience, Judge Sloan said they were going to be called on for military service. He said they would be called, not asked to volunteer.

"In the past," Judge Sloan said, "all we've asked is to be let alone."

It Happen Here

But of late, he added, Americans have become more and more uneasy over such familiar quotations as "It Can't Happen Here."

"Most of us will agree, I think, that the quotation "It Needn't Happen Here" is more suitable in our case," Judge Sloan said.

Juudge Sloan referred to a prophetic statement taken from the memories of General Ulysses S. Grant. General Grant declared, "to maintain peace in the future it is necessary to be prepared for war."

In the future, the Civil War leader predicted twenty years ago, a combined movement "may be made to crush us out."

Concluding, Judge Sloan told the audience that Americans must be willing to foot the bill for an adequate defense program and make necessary sacrifices to protect the freedom this country has enjoyed for 164 years.

Other leading Cumberland citizens who took part in Thursday's program were Dr. Thomas W. Koon, former mayor; Mayor Harry Irvine, William A. Gunter, the Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox, and the Rev. Alfred L. Creager.

Edgar Reynolds was chairman of the program committee. He was assisted by Lester Bolinger, Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Vincent P. Ingram and Wesley Abrams, American Legion; Mayor Harry Irvine and Commissioners James Orr, William J. Edwards and Thomas F. Conlon.

Youth Is Seventh Motor Accident Victim of Year

Quietest 4th in History Experienced in City

Cumberland experienced one of the quietest Fourth's in its history, Chief Oscar A. Eyerman said yesterday.

No arrests were made for the violation of the new municipal ordinance banning the sale or setting off of fireworks within the city limits.

Allegany and Memorial hospitals also reported a quiet Independence Day. No persons were treated at either hospital for burns received from fireworks.

Few explosions were heard in Cumberland, but in other sections of the county the noise was terrific, one of the noisest spots being at the Celanese plant gates when the shifts were changed.

Allegany county's seventh motor accident fatality of the year was recorded on Independence Day when Paul Clinton Grant, 20, of Cresaptown, was instantly killed when hurled from a skidding automobile on Dan's mountain road and two of his companions suffered injuries about the head and are now under observation at Allegany hospital.

Those injured are:

Robert W. Elliott, 16, of Cresaptown, brush burns about the face and cuts about the head.

James Grant, 16, brush burns about the back and scalp lacerations.

Condition "Fair"

The condition of both youths is reported "fair" by hospital attaches.

Investigating the accident, Officer George J. Miller, of the State Police, reported the machine carried no license tags and that Grant did not have a driver's card. The officer was told the machine was purchased several months ago from a Flintstone man by Robert W. Elliott, but the vehicle was not registered at the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Boys Pinned under Car

Grant, a parcel post messenger at the Celanese plant, accompanied by his brother James, and young Elliott, were riding on the Brant road shortly after 10 a. m., and while descending a grade and rounding a curve the machine skidded, turned over twice and landed on the open top. Elliott and James Grant were pinned beneath while Paul was hurled clear. The latter was pronounced dead by Dr. Linne H. Corson, medical examiner. His neck was broken.

Pried Boys Loose

Philip S. Gordon and Clarence W. Shuck, of Rawlings, obtained a log and pried the overturned car from the other boys and then took all three to the hospital.

Paul C. Grant was a son of Richard and Eva Grant, and besides his parents is survived by two brothers, Robert and William and five sisters, Mrs. T. J. Clayton, Pinto; Mrs. Mildred Raley, Cresaptown; Mrs. Thomas Shimes, Eckhart, and Pauline and Verna Ruth Grant, at home. He was a member of the Pentecostal church.

It marked the fifth fatal automobile accident of the year in the county and Grant was the seventh person to die in a highway mishap. Twelve were killed in auto accidents in the county in 1939.

Six Persons Injured

Six other persons were injured in holiday accidents.

Leonard Ward, 22, of Ridgeley, a B. and O. employe at the Keyser, W. Va., shops, was injured about

Sheriff, Tax Collector Completely Outsmart Fish in South Branch

Two Cumberland fishermen, looking very happy about the whole thing, yesterday reported having completely outsmarted the fish in the South Branch on July 4.

The fish were absolutely no match for the bait offered by themselves, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and City Tax Collector James M. Conway modestly reported yesterday.

As a result both angleds and other members of the Radcliffe party today had a very fell-fed self-satisfied look. This was partly due to the fish and partly due to the fact that Ralph "Doc" Wilkinson, who accompanied the party in the capacity of chef, cooked them.

As prepared by "Doc," fish become a gastronomical delicacy of the highest order, Sheriff Radcliffe answered friends yesterday.

Asked to tell the secret of their success, Fisherman Radcliffe replied "worms."

The plain worms along with a few chubs were used by Conway and Radcliffe in snaring enough fish to turn life on the South Branch into a continual round of fish fries.

The fishermen also did some casting but for the most part they relied on the worms and chubs.
